MOTHERS, TODDLERS AND ANTIDRAFT SIGNS

Fifty members and supporters of the Marin chapter of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom march along Fourth Street in San Rafael, to urge abolition of the draft. Carol Shattuck (on right side of foremost sign) was co-chairman for today's demonstration; she and Marsha Amada guided the parade from the old courthouse to the federal building on D Street. There the marchers picketed briefly and formed a four-foot peace symbol with the flowers they carried, on the sidewalk in front of the military recruiting posters. Marchers included one set of grandparents, dozens of mothers and preschool youngsters, and a few draft-age youth plus a clergyman.

New ABMs Needed, Says Laird Report

Growing Soviet, Chinese Missile Threats Cited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird today unveiled evidence Red China may have already fired its first ICBM and said an apparent pause last year in Russian missile development could have heralded the birth of a new Soviet ICBM system.

In his annual report to Congress on the world military situation, Laird also predicted that between 1973 and 1975 China could develop an initial force of operation intercontinental ballistic missiles.

"The Soviet and Chinese threats to the U.S. call for moving ahead toward the full Safeguard (anti-ballistic missile) deployment," he said. The complete Safeguard system would include 12 ABM sites in the United States. At present only three sites have been approved.

Laird announced plans to start surveys for a fourth site in the Safeguard system. He also outlined military threats to the free world and potential hot spots, detailed plans for a top-level Pentagon reorganization and traced a long-range program to hand over more defense responsibility to U.S. allies by substituting increased military aid for the presence of American soldiers.

"The better equipped our friends and allies are to provide for their own security, the more firm will be our own security," Laird said. "This is so because the probability of war and of U.S. involvement in war will be lowered."

Laird also revealed that during the first half of 1971, despite an increase by 110 in the total number of Russian missiles while the U.S. total holds steady, the number of Soviet warheads will increase by only 11 per cent while the U.S. warhead total goes up 15 per cent.

Pentagon officials said this is because of multiple-warhead Minuteman 3 and Poseidon submarine missile installations in progress by the United States.

He said this world-wide strategy of "realistic deterrence" was a direct outgrowth of the more local Vietnamization policy of President Nixon and was made possible by that policy's success.

In the unclassified version of his book-length report, presented to the House Armed Services Committee, Laird made only passing mention of the new Russian ICBM system. He was only a little more specific about the Chinese ICBM status.

Pentagon officials said, however, both subjects were discussed in more detail in the secret classified version of the report.

"There has been an unexplained slowdown in deployment of current Soviet ICBM models," Laird said. But he said tests of modifications to the huge SS9 and smaller SS11 and SS13 missiles have continued.

"The implications of these trends are still not clear," he said. Two possible explanations he offered were that planned installations had been completed or that new installations had been slowed down to permit installation of improved missiles or multiple warheads in existing silos.

"Alternatively, the explanation may be that the Soviets are preparing to deploy new ICBM missile systems," Laird said.

Pentagon officials said this seems closer to the truth. They said U.S. intelligence sources have spotted new silos and equipment unlike anything that has been seen before and that the size of the missiles to fit them would rival that of the SS9, the world's biggest ICBM.

It was these intelligence reports, they said, which led Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., to report this weekend Russia was developing a big and qualitatively better new ICBM.

Of the Chinese ICBM program, Laird said: "The start of testing has not yet been confirmed, but a reduced range test of an ICBM may have occurred in late 1970."

Pentagon officials said the flight took place entirely within China, without any warhead on the missile, and covered about 2,000 miles. They said a great many defense experts are positive it was an ICBM test, with the range cut down to keep the missile in China.

Average flight distance of an ICBM would be 5,000 miles or more.

Laird also said within the past year China "may have" deployed its first medium range, nuclear tipped missiles which would put all the great cities of Asia within their

Chain Reactions To Sepone Bombs

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. saturation bombing of the Ho Chi Minh Trail junction near Sepone has touched off a massive series of secondary explosions caused by the blowing up of Communist supplies, military spokesmen said today.

Air Force forward air controllers said more than 1,600 secondary explosions were touched off Monday by 3 1-2 hours of heavy air strikes one mile northeast of Sepone, captured Saturday by South Vietnamese forces. On Sunday, spokesmen said, B52 bombing missions brought about 500 secondard explosions in the same area.

A secondary blast —an explosion following the blowing up of a bomb —indicates direct hits on ammunition or fuel dumps.

The 2,100 secondary explosions recorded in the two days were more than recorded in the entire previous month, spokesmen said.

In other action, the South Vietnamese reported killing 343 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese in a series of battles in Laos Monday, while Laotian troops said they killed at least 250 Communists.

A third accidental American air strike against South Vietnamese troops in three days was reported today. Lt. Col. Hoang Tich Thong, commander of a Marine battalion at artillery base Delta, 12 miles southwest of Lao Bao in Laos, said a U.S. jet bombed a South Vietnamese bunker Monday, killing one Marine, wounded 11 others and killing a number of communist troops as well.

The South Vietnamese earlier reported two U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom jets and army helicopter gunships dropped napalm and cluster bombs and fired guns on government infantrymen, killing eight and wounding 54 on Saturday.

The action by Laotian troops took place when North Vietnamese attacked their position on the northeast rim of the Bolovens Plateau 300 miles south of the capital of Vientiane, a government spokesman said. The Laotian troops beat off the attacks on "Hill PS22" with the help of AC47 gunships, he said, but did not say what nationality the gunships were.

He said 250 Communists were killed, while the Laotian forces lost three dead and 36 wounded.

South Vietnamese spokesmen said 250 North Vietnamese were killed in general fighting in scattered parts of Laos earlier Monday. The latest clashes at two points near the town of Lao Bao Monday afternoon killed another 93 Communists.

Frazier Is Champ In 15 Rounds

It's all over now, but boxing fans are already asking about a rematch.

Joe Frazier, who defended his world heavyweight boxing title last night with a 15-round decision over Muhammad Ali-Cassius Clay, says he just wants some time to think things over.

Ali, who suffered his first loss in 32 professional bouts, was subdued today and said, "I'm not going to cry. A lot of great fighters get whipped." About a rematch, Ali said, "It's up to the public. It's up to him (Frazier)." But when pressed later on he said he would like a rematch.

While the fighters were slugging it out in the ring at New York's Madison Square Garden, Bay Area fight fans were storming gates and breaking windows at closed circuit television locations after finding out there were no seats left.

Riverside Bombing

RIVERSIDE (UPI)—A bomb exploded in a third floor hallway of a men's dormitory at the University of California at Riverside early Tuesday causing $300 damage. According to a university spokesman, a student confessed to the bombing as a prank.

There were no reports of injuries.

Marin's Invitation To The Animals

Animal hunters in Golden Gate Park may find only one raccoon a year, but if they do, Marin would be glade to provide refuge.

This is the gist of a letter that will be sent by the Marin County Board of Supervisors to the San Francisco Board of Supervisors.

Rather than have unwanted animals in Golden Gate Park shot by hunters, Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. last week suggested that the animals be trapped and released in the Marin hills.

Trouble was, San Francisco parks and recreation officials said, foxes and raccoons are almost nonexistent, and hunters now concentrate on gophers and rats.

Arrigoni said he had read about the shooting of foxes and raccoons in the February issue of San Francisco Magazine, "and someone is not telling the truth somewhere along the line."

Pierre W. Joske, Marin County Parks and Recreation director, continued that San Francisco's hunting is largely confined to gophers and rats, although one raccoon was spotted about a year ago.

Arrigoni and Michael Wornum declared that whether there is one unwanted raccoon or a thousand in San Francisco, they are still welcome in Marin.

On a motion by Arrigoni, supervisors authorized a letter to San Francisco, offering a haven for raccoons or other wild animals, but not for gophers or rats.

Venereal Disease Hike Brings Plea For Support

Venereal disease has risen so sharply in Marin that the county is "totally understaffed, underspaced, and is turning people away," the county health officer announced today.

Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht made the statement before the Marin County Board of Supervisors in support of Frederick S. Mayer, who made an impassioned plea for more funds and more space to treat gonorrhea and syphillis.

The number of gonorrhea cases in Marin jumped from 1,202 in 1969 to 1,480 in 1970, a rise of 23 per cent, said Mayer. Syphilis cases rose by 51 per cent in the same period, from 37 to 56.

"If there were such an epidemic in Marin, I'm amazed that the public health officer did not appear before this time," said Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.

Dr. Albrecht conceded she probably should have warned the supervisors before today, but explained she had planned to bring it up during her budget request for the next fiscal year.

Mayer wanted direct action immediately. He said volunteer union carpenters are ready to offer free services to remodel the county health department clinic space in the Civic Center for treating VD patients.

County Administrator Alan Bruce recommended against immediate remodeling, explaining that space problems need a careful study before the clinic space is expanded.

Supervisors asked Bruce to bring in statistics on the venereal disease epidemic and recommendations on how the treatment can be expanded.

Another Pitch For The Marigold

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., has introduced a proposed joint congressional resolution to make the marigold the national flower.

The marigold was championed as a national floral emblem for many years by Baker's late father-in-law, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill. Baker said the United States is the only free world nation which does not have a national flower

Fairfax Will Not Slap Board

By C. P. McCARTHY

The Fairfax City Council backed away last night from taking retaliatory action against the Marin County Board of Supervisors for defeating proposed police services district — in unincorporated areas of the county. (Other Fairfax City Council stories, page 3.)

A motion directing Fairfax's police and fire departments not to respond first to calls from outside the city limits was withdrawn before it was voted upon.

The supervisors last month voted against formation of a police services district which Marin County cities insist would equalize the burden of police costs between incorporated and unincorporated areas of Marin.

Cities contend they are paying twice for police services — once in city tax to finance their police departments and again in a county tax for the sheriff's patrols.

The Fairfax council's discussion was sparked by a letter from Priscilla Gray of 126 Ridge Road, who urged the council to forbid Fairfax police to answer calls from the sheriff's office.

"I do not care to see the Fairfax police, which is not paid for by our neighbors, going to their assistance, since they are well able to look after themselves," Mrs. Gray wrote.

Councilman Robert R. Souza agreed with Mrs. Gray and moved that the city's police and fire departments be instructed not to respond to calls from outside the city. Under the present procedure, city police and fire units respond first to emergencies in the unincorporated area as a matter of courtesy to county units.

Both Fairfax Fire Chief Charles F. Thornton and Police Chief James R. Orr had reservations about Souza's motion.

Thornton said this depart-

'Charge Disrupters,' Trustee Suggests

A Sausalito School District trustee recommended last night that the district board consider lodging misdemeanor charges against persons who repeatedly disrupt board meetings. (Other Sausalito School District stories, page 7.)

Although trustee Robert A. Thompson said he did not like to contemplate the board leveling such charges against a member of the public, he said the time "has come to do something" about the district's often heated sessions.

"We have a dedicated group of young women who do everything but set off the bombs to disrupt our meeting," Thompson, an attorney, said. "They interrupt. They make whatever noise they want to and seem to have their own rules.

"He added: "Their behavior is intolerable and embarrassing and I think it is time to recognize their disruptive influence." He noted there is a state statute which provides that persons who create havoc at public meetings can be charged with a crime.

Thompson said that at some Sausalito School Board meetings, the board members have begun "to feel like they are bulls in a bull-baiting contest. You have to have an iron constitution and the skin of a wart hog to accomplish any business here sometimes," the trustee charged. "This wouldn't be tolerated at any other function, except a prison riot."

Board Chairman Nathaniel

Johnson admitted disruptions of board meetings are serious — "A situation we have to look at carefully." He said he felt charging individuals with misdemeanors, however, would "only be adding fat to the fire."

Mishandling of the situation would be more detrimental than interruptions and noise, Johnson said. "Sometimes I feel there is no control on either side — the board or the public," he said.

Johnson suggested the matter be brought up at a future board meeting.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

'Latin' Used

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Susan Atkins told her former lawyer that Charles Manson ordered the Tate-Labianca murders, but she repudiated that statement and her confession after a "Pig Latin" conversation with the cult leader.

"They talked in a sort of Pig Latin which I couldn't understand," Miss Atkins former attorney Richard Caballero, told the penalty phase of the trial Monday.

"But they could understand each other—much to their satisfaction and much to my dismay. Two days later she fired me."

Caballero, the attorney who persuaded Miss Atkins to go before a grand jury and admit the 1969 slayings, appeared as one of the last defense witnesses at the trial, now nearing the end of its ninth month.

His testimony about his former client's story directly contradicted Miss Atkins' recent confession on the stand when she implicated herself but tried to clear Manson.

Denies Any Gap

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A White House spokesman says President Nixon has no intention of misleading the American people about U.S. policies in Indochina.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler came to the defense of the administration's credibility on the war Monday in response to a national poll showing 69 per cent of Americans feel Nixon is not telling them all they should know about the fighting in Southeast Asia.

"We have not and will not pursue a communications policy where we in any way attempt to mislead the American people about what we are doing," Ziegler said.

The poll also showed an 18 per cent drop since August in public confidence in Nixon's handling of the war. It showed 46 per cent of those questioned disapproved of Nixon's policies, 41 per cent approved, while 13 per cent expressed no opinion.

Flee Pakistan

DACCA, East Pakistan (UPI) —Hundreds of foreign residents today evacuated East Pakistan, where more than 300 persons have been reported killed in political rioting.

Ninety Britons from the estimated 1,000 in the British community in East Pakistan flew to London. Monday, 113 of the 300 West German nationals in the eastern part of the country left for Bangkok, the West German consulate said today.

In Tokyo, the foreign ministry announced 166 persons, most of them employes of Japanese firms and their families, would be flown out from Dacca this week.

A spokesman for the U.S. consul general said no decision has been taken yet whether to evacuate American citizens. The consulate is "still watching the situation," a spokesman said.

Troop Policy

SEOUL (UPI) —President Park Chung-Hee of South Korea says his government is studying a timetable for eventual withdrawal of the 50,000 South Korean troops in Vietnam but that no immediate withdrawal is planned. The United States will be fully informed of any decision, he said.

He also said in an interview with UPI Monday that South Korea plans to increase its defense forces at home to offset the withdrawal of 20,000 American troops from Korea before the end of June. That would leave 43,000 U.S. servicemen in South Korea.

"Under no circumstances would we withdraw without full consultation with our allies," Park said. "The United States consulted us on its own withdrawal plans."

Approval Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) —William J. Casey is expected to win the Senate Banking Committee's approval to head the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) despite a charge that he hid damaging information about his business background from the Senate.

The allegation came from Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and it was serious enough to convince the committee to reopen its hearing into the nomination and call Casey back. The new hearing was set for 2 p.m. EST today.

But privately a number of committee members said they felt Casey's explanation was satisfactory to assure him of the committee's approval and the Senate's confirmation.

Proxmire was unlikely to carry his fight against the nomination to the Senate floor if none or only one or two members of the 15-member committee join him in raising objections.

'Human Error'

PARIS (UPI)—A spokesman for a group of American pacifists said today it was "human error" that caused some of them to report the United States and North Vietnam had broken the Paris peace talks deadlock and were holding secret negotiations.

Stan Dale, a Quaker spokesman and newsman for radio station WDAI in the Chicago area, and Paul Jamieson, a Massachusetts attorney, announced at a news conference Monday that the chief Hanoi negotiator told them during a meeting with the 170 American pacifists he had resumed private negotiations with chief U.S. negotiator David K.E. Bruce.

Another spokesman for the group telephoned news media nine hours later to say, "Its a regrettable error and were very embarrassed that we made this mistake."

"I make no apologies, it was a human error," Dale said today. "I've been in the news business 25 years and I guess I'm human, it's one of those thing."

Harold Lloyd, 77, A Giant Among Film Comics, Succumbs

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI)—Harold Lloyd, one of the world's great comics who epitomized the meek loser but who always escaped from terrifying predicaments, died Monday. He was 77.

A pair of lenseless celluloid spectacles that cost 10 cents and a boater straw hat were Lloyd's trademarks as he rose to stardom in silent pictures and appeared in nearly 500 films.

His bumbling antics in silent and later in talkies won Lloyd millions of fans and a vast fortune. He became one of the wealthiest men in movie history.

He is best remembered for terrifying feats while dangling from the side of tall buildings and for uproarious chases. One famed scene found him clutching the hand of a giant clock high above the ground. Each minute brought him closer to disaster as the minute hand edged toward the bottom of the dial.

Lloyd had been ill for 18 months and recently had undergone a kidney operation. His death was attributed to cancer.

Lloyd created the character of "Lonesome Luke," a country bumpkin who wore big shoes, tight fitting coats and a small mustache. He discarded that character in 1915, donning his glassless spectacles which he later insured with Lloyds of London for $25,000.

HAROLD LLOYD
From a 1962 shot

In his later films, he wore the spectacles as a good-luck charm in the first scene of each picture, then used substitutes.

His silent hits included "Safety Last," "The Freshman," "Speedy" and "Grandma's Boy." His first talkie was "Movie Crazy."

Lloyd had his own film production company and owned most of the pictures in which he appeared. Although he hadn't made a film since 1950 when he starred in "Mad Wednesday," he did compile some of his famous scenes and released them as "Harold Lloyd's World of Comedy" in 1962. For that film he was honored in 1962 at the Cannes film festival with a plaque that read "To the Grand Prince of Cinema."

"There are many good comedians today," he said recently. "But in the old days we had a different technique.

"Ours was more visual. Now it's just question-and-answer gags. We worked on the main character. He was built up so people felt sorry for him and wanted him to win out."

During his early days in the movies, Lloyd costarred with a young actress named Mildred Davis. He later married her and they had three children, Gloria, Peggy and Harold Jr.

He lived in the grand manner of old time movie stars. The Lloyd family mansion here, where he died, was a showplace. Besides a swimming pool, the grounds once had a private nine-hole golf course.

His wife died in 1969.

Funeral services will be Thursday at the Scottish Rite Temple with entombment at Forest Lawn Memorial Park Mausoleum.

In addition to his son and two daughters, Lloyd is survived by three grandchildren.

Medina To Be Tried For Deaths

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (UPI) —Capt. Ernest L. Medina, under investigation for one year in the My Lai incident, has been ordered to stand court-martial for the murder of 102 Vietnamese civilians.

Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, commanding general of the Third Army, ordered the court-martial Monday. He said Medina is charged with five specifications, three alleging the murder of the civilians and two of assault by shooting at a Viet Cong suspect during interrogation.

Connor said two other specifications of murder and one of maiming were dismissed for lack of evidence.

Medina, 34, is a career soldier from Montrose, Colo. One of his subordinates, Lt. William L. Calley Jr., is being tried at Ft. Benning, Ga., and 20 other witnesses at the Calley court-martial have testified it was Medina who ordered the extermination of the Vietnamese village March 16, 1968.

"I am innocent of the charges against me and the Army itself has a special reason to know that this is true," Medina said in a statement issued in Washington. "I am surprised and dismayed that the Army has taken this action."

Oil Firms Band To Fight Spills

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A petroleum company executive said this weekend oil firms on the West Coast are pooling resources in an effort to protect the environment against the effects of oil spills.

George F. L. Bishop of Phillips Petroleum Co. said five regional nonprofit organizations are stockpiling cleanup materials and charting contingency plans to protect major ports and coastal areas.

Clean Seas, Inc., in Santa Barbara, is the first functioning organization with 14 member oil firms. Similar groups are being established in San Diego, Long Beach-Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle.

Justice Data Bank Safeguards Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., said today government computers are "bringing the ammunition for persecution, harassment and idle gossip within the reach of every prosecutor and part-time deputy sheriff in the land."

Mathias said Attorney General John N. Mitchell secretly had given the FBI control over an elaborate national criminal justice data bank without regard to standards that had been developed to protect the individual against unjust accusations.

In testimony prepared for the Senate constitutional rights subcommittee, Mathias urged development of legislation to insure that such computerized operations contain built-in safeguards against police state tactics.

Mathias said a pioneer 10-state system called Project SEARCH (System for Electronic Analysis and Retrieval of Criminal Histories) had been developed as the forerunner of a national criminal justice data bank.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration was put in charge of the system and made a $1.5 million grant for its operational development Dec. 9.

"On Dec. 10, in an internal directive which was not publicly released, the attorney general transferred the prime responsibility for future development of a nationwide system for exchanging criminal histories from LEAA to the FBI," Mathias said. He said he understood Mitchell's letter mentioned nothing about a "code of ethics" that had been developed by Project SEARCH to protect individual privacy.

The code barred the use of "irrelevant data" and "unverified intelligence tips"; recommended continuous purging of the system to eliminate records of accused first offenders who were found innocent, and prescribed procedures to permit individuals to correct inaccuracies or prejudicial omissions in their arrest records.

Mathias said the individual should have some assurance that a youthful indiscretion will not follow him forever. A suspended sentence at age 18 for marijuana possession should not "pop up for years to jeopardize his applications for jobs, for credit cards and for home loans," Mathias said.

Among the 64,000 computerized files maintained by the Bureau of Narcotics, he noted, were dossiers on "three boys under three years old. Will that item be buried in statistical reports, surfacing only as curiosity? Or will three boys be pursued for life by the tragic fact that they were exposed to narcotics almost before they could talk?"

Some Controls Still Studied

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson today renewed the Nixon administration's pledge not to clamp wage-price controls on the entire economy in an effort to curb inflation, but kept the door open for selective controls in specific industries.

Hodgson, without mentioning the word "controls," promised "a policy of measured and carying response ... will be concentrated on those who choose to lead the way in inflationary acts."

He did not spell out what types of action would be taken, but said "The range of response can be fairly wide. The specific reaction would depend on the individual case."

The secretary, in remarks prepared for a businessmen's meeting, said President Nixon already had acted against steel and oil companies and construction unions to hold down inflation.

$50,000 FIRE IN PEACOCK GAP

Firemen battle to control flames in the two-story home of the John J. Zimmer family, 374 Riviera Drive, San Rafael. The flames broke out at 4:14 a.m. today while the family was on a trip to Los Angeles. Fire Chief Vance Trivett said the cause of the blaze was unknown; he estimated structural damage to the home at $35,000 and damage to its contents at $15,000.

'Guarded' Approval To Billing Plan

The Petaluma City Council last night gave what it called "guarded approval" to installing a newly developed computer system in the water billing department the next fiscal year.

In giving its tentative approval, the council set side $12,000 from the general fund and $7,000 from the water fund to finance the first-year operation of the International Business Machines system.

City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer said details on how the system would work will be brought before the council next month.

Meyer said the water billing would be the first task given the computer and that later it could be used by the police payroll and finance departments. He estimated the first year cost at $19,720.

Vice Mayor John W. Cavanagh Jr. complained that installation of the system had not been justified and felt high city officials were the only persons pushing the computer idea. He said that some staff members and employees who have spoken against the system have been "called on the carpet" by the city manager.

Cavanagh said he felt the new system would be an "utterly ridiculous and useless spending of tax dollars" and said Petaluma shouldn't be the first city to try it out.

Councilmen Robert A. Brunner and Robert E. Daly supported the project, but had reservations. Councilman Fred V. Mattei said he wanted more information on possible joint use of county data processing facilities.

Councilman Albert L. Battaglia Jr. said he felt costs would be higher than Meyer had estimated and felt the system would not reach the "break even" stage until after the third year of operation.

The Petaluma City Council also:

SEWER STUDY — Approved an agreement with sanitation districts in Northern Marin and Southern Sonoma for a subregional sewer study.

CONSULTANTS — Approved employment of Stone and Youngburg of San Francisco as financial consultants for the proposed $2 million sewer and bond election on June 8.

REVENUE — Approved a resolution supporting federal revenue sharing for cities.

Arts Information Center Rejected

While extending an offer of help, the Fairfax City Council refused permission last night to a nonprofit group to operate a performing arts information center on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

The council upheld planning commission denial of a conditional zoning permit to the Marin Performing Arts Guild, formerly called Marin Music Switchboard.

The organization acts as a clearing house for performers in Marin and provides information on activities in the performing arts in the county.

It had hoped to move into a building at 1750 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, its lease at 1001 D Street in San Rafael having expired.

Although David Hutchinson, a guild director, told the council 95 per cent of the group's business is done by telephone, councilmen said guild use of the Sir Francis Drake site would cause major traffic problems.

Following a 4-1 vote, in which Mayor Frank J. Egger dissented, Councilman Cornelis van Vliet asked, "Is there no one around to help find the boys a place?"

With that, van Vliet was appointed to talk to Max Friedman, owner of Fair-Anselm Shopping Center, about finding a place for the non-profit organization to operate.

The Fairfax City Council Also:

LIGHTS — Approved installation of lights on the southwest side of Fairfax Pavilion. Egger and Souza voted against the move, with Egger saying lights would attract people to the park after dark.

COASTLINE — Went on record, with Egger dissenting, in opposition to a proposal for the Association of Bay Area Governments to prepare an ocean coastline plan for the San Francisco Bay Area. Councilman Francis J. O'Connell said such a plan should be of concern to coast counties, but not to ABAG and such counties as Alameda and Contra Costa.

BUSES — Endorsed in principle the concept of the Golden Gate Bridge District operating buses on exclusive rights-of-way.

DISASTER — Recommended formation of a City-County Civil Defense Disaster Committee to review and update disaster procedures in the county.

BIDS — Called for bids to build a retaining wall on Arroyo Road. Bids will be opened at the council's next meeting April 12. Two bids on the project were rejected last October when they both exceeded the estimated cost of the job — $6,638.

ANNEXATION — Decided to ask the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission for a three-month extension past the May deadline for final action on the proposed annexation of two parcels of property west of the city.

CONTAINERS — With O'Connell and Souza opposed, passed a resolution, recommended by the city of Palo Alto, which urges the League of California Cities and County Supervisors' Association of California to seek legislative action to alleviate problems caused by sale of beverages in disposable, nonreturnable containers.

Peaceful Rally, Then Big Rioting

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—A crowd of blacks, swollen by hundreds of truant students, broke windows, damaged plumbing in a state office building and later vandalized several downtown stores after a peaceful protest demonstration Monday over alleged racism in the public schools.

The destruction was the outcropping of a confrontation between about 500 blacks and city school Superintendent Harold Eibling at city school offices. As many as 1,000 gathered later.

After Eibling released a five-point program that answered the group's demands, a contingent left there for the Ohio Departments Building five blocks away.

Youthful crowds roamed the halls, vandalizing a snack bar run by blind workers and smashing the glass door of state school Superintendent Martin Essex's office. The building was closed by a group of state patrolmen after a bomb threat was received.

Gov. John J. Gilligan, ordered the building closed.

Later, across from the capital building, in the heart of the business district, gangs roamed from store to store, breaking windows, harassing customers and taking some merchandise.

Three hundred riot-equipped officers patrolled the area to deter further damage. They took 68 juveniles into custody for "safekeeping" and later returned them to their parents without filing charges.

Eight others were arrested, mostly on disorderly conduct charges.

Rockefeller Takes Look At '72 Race

He promised to support Nixon if he runs.

Rockefeller has made himself available for the Republican presidential nomination three previous times. He pulled out of the 1960 race early, lost a convention battle with Barry Goldwater in 1964 and challenged Nixon and lost in 1968.

Each time, Rockefeller waited before actually making a decision.

"I'm supporting President Nixon in running again," Rockefeller told a news conference. "I think the president is going to get us out of Vietnam, and that he's going to get the economy turned around."

He was asked what would happen if the President decided to serve only four years and not try for reelection in 1972.

"That's a whole new ball game," he said.

"Does this mean you will consider a presidential run under those circumstances?" he was asked.

"I wouldn't rule out anything," Rockefeller said.

Lot Of Talk, But No Action On Fairfax Pavilion Dances

With visions of a 1969 melee dancing in their heads, Fairfax city councilmen last night had a few unkind words for a dance held in Fairfax Pavilion last month. (Another Fairfax City Council story, page 1.)

David R. Seyler, chairman of the Fairfax Park and Recreation Commission, said he wanted the dance discussed because his group, which co-sponsored the event, had been accused by some of holding a "fiasco."

Mayor Frank J. Egger replied that no councilman had made the charge, but he didn't have long to wait to hear his colleagues speak out against the dance.

According to city department reports, 829 tickets were sold to the dance in the 700-capacity Pavilion on Feb. 19, $53 damage was done to doors and a step, and one extra policeman and three extra reserve officers had to be called in because of the size of the crowd.

"As far as I'm concerned, dances are through," said Councilman Francis J. O'Connell, adding that "they get out of hand" everytime.

"If this stuff continues, we're going to end up with a policeman injured or some youth injured," warned Councilman Lee Nelder.

Nelder said he thought that only about 10 per cent of those attending the dance were from Fairfax and that the average age of those attending appeared to be about 30.

Councilman Robert R. Souza said he thought more persons attended last month's dance than the ill-fated Memorial Day dance at the Pavilion in 1969 — "something we don't want to reoccur," according to Souza.

At the Memorial Day event, two policemen and a 17-year-old youth were injured when youths threw rocks, cans and bottles as officers attempted to halt the dance because it was allegedly overcrowded.

The Fairfax Youth Commission and Wild Bill Productions, dance promoters, sponsored last month's event with the park and recreation commission.

William Cummings, 20, a partner in Wild Bill Productions, defended the dance and his organization. He said the crowd, whose average age he estimated to be less than 20, was "calm and orderly."

His group has paid the $53 damages, he said, adding that most of the damage was to the exterior of the building.

The size of the crowd was unexpected, he said, because two previous dances sponsored by Wild Bill had attracted only about 300 persons each.

A teen-aged member of the parks and recreation commission, Edwin H. McGee, also defended the dance, saying he thought it was ''done very well.''

He accused Souza of contradicting himself when Souza said on the one hand that he did not enter the Pavilion but was outside, and on the other hand said most of the persons were not from Fairfax.

The council referred further discussion of the dance to the park and recreation commission for a future report to the council.

Alcatraz Appeal For More Indians

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Indian occupants of Alcatraz, their ranks reduced by bad weather and a diet of rice and beans, are seeking reinforcements.

"The winter has been pretty rough," said Herb Simmons, a member of the island's ruling council. "It has been cold during the last few weeks, and we are having beans and rice a lot, but the people are happy."

Simmons, 22, an ex-Marine, said the former federal penitentiary in the middle of San Francisco Bay is without electricity because its generator broke down.

Buildings are being torn down "to provide firewood" and water is carried out daily in five-gallon cans aboard a boat whose maintenance has bankrupted the Indians, who seized the island 16 months ago.

"But what we need more than anything is more Indians," said Simmons.

City Strike Call Despite Pay Hike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two unions that represent a majority of employes in city schools have scheduled strike votes.

The Teachers Union and Local 400 of the City and County Employees Union, which represents the school district's clerks, cafeteria workers, secretaries and miscellaneous personnel, both planned votes for Thursday.

Teachers Union President Jim Ballard said the executive committee will recommend a strike and predicted the teachers would walk out.

The negotiating committee of the county employees union also was expected to recommend a strike.

Ballard said the issues involve no cutbacks in teaching positions, giving teachers $100 for books and supplies they need, and pay scale increases. He said the issues were presented to Superintendent Thomas A. Shaheen last month.

First Steps Taken On Rail Bike Path

The Tiburon City Council took the first step last night to turn the recently acquired Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way into a useable bicycle and pedestrian pathway.

Acting City Mgr. Robert L. Kleinert said the council told City Engineer Ray W. Foreaker to prepare plans and specifications for paving an eight-foot strip down the corridor from Lagoon Road near San Rafael Avenue to Blackie's pasture.

The paving and related work, including replacement of a storm drain and six culverts, will cost about $50,900, Foreaker said.

Kleinert said bids for the work could be called for at the council's March 22 meeting and a contract awarded shortly thereafter. He said several members of the audience, who urged the council to take action on the path, were pleased with the decision to proceed.

The council deleted an additional $8,000 worth of improvements, including construction of a rest stop along the pathway and rough grading from Lagoon Road to Tiburon Boulevard. These items will be considered again later, Kleinert said.

Several sources of funding are being explored, he said, including contributions by Belvedere and the Reed School District, a citizens committee to raise money and a grant from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. These will be examined by the council's business and administration committee.

In other business the council declared it would prohibit motor vehicles on Lower Racoon Lane, a narrow, steep dirt road from Mar West Street to Centro West Street.

But Kleinert said the council agreed to provide auto access from Centro West to a two-unit apartment owned by Albert Rundberg, who has complained that closing the lane would deprive him of such access.

A resolution ordering the closure will be considered at the council's March 22 meeting, along with another resolution that the city is willing to accept and maintain upper raccoon Lane if adjacent property owners pave it to city standards.

Tension Mounts In Mideast

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israel reported clashes on its borders with Jordan and Lebanon today in surge of Arab guerrilla activity. The Suez Canal front with Egypt remained quiet despite tension described as so thick it could be cut "with a knife."

In Cairo, a government spokesman denied Israel's charge that the Soviet Union was determining Egyptian policy. The spokesman said Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban, who made the charge, "has lost his balance."

"Eban knows very well, as well as the whole world knows, that the policy of Egypt is made in Cairo alone," the spokesman said. Eban said Sunday that Egypt refused at the direction of the Soviets to renew the Middle East cease-fire which expired Sunday.

There was no shooting along the Suez Canal but the Israeli newspaper Ma-Ariv said "One can cut the tension with a knife."

An Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv announced an Arab guerrilla bazooka round wounded an Israeli soldier in the occupied Golan Heights of Syria today and a guerrilla infiltrator was killed by an Israeli patrol on the Lebanese front near Jebel Ras.

The incidents were the second and third clashes reported along Arab-Israeli frontiers since the expiration of the cease-fire. A long-range rocket from Jordan landed in Israel's Beisan Valley Monday, causing no casualties but drawing a barrage from Israeli gunners.

Egyptian officials said today in Cairo that President Nixon and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat exchanged messages shortly before the expiration of the cease-fire. The contents of the messages were not given, but it was understood Nixon urged Sadat to accept an official trace extension in return for promises of further American efforts towards a Middle East peace settlement.

When he refused to extend the truce Sunday, Sadat said he still expected the United States to fulfill pledges to put pressure on Israel to withdraw from occupied Arab territory.

Nixon met with Israeli President Zalman Shazar in Washington Monday but details of their discussion were not disclosed. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the meeting was unofficial and private.

Egypt and Israel have announced they intend to continue to hold their fire, but there is fear on both countries that an accidental incident could touch off another fullscale war.

Egyptians sounded air raid sirens Monday when three Israeli warplanes flew over their Suez Canal positions but the planes withdrew without any shots being fired by either side.

Hearing Set On Rail Strike Call

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A federal judge has scheduled a hearing Wednesday on a petition seeking to head off a strike by at least some of the 150,000 members of the United Transportation Union against part of the nation's railway system.

Spokesmen for the UTU said Monday there would be a strike at 2 p.m. EST Thursday unless the action is blocked by a court order. The Union called off plans to strike two railroads Monday to give U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt a chance to consider the issue at a hearing at 2 p.m. EST Wednesday.

Ernest Gus Sonnenberg Found Dead

Ernest Gus Sonnenberg, 52, of San Rafael, was found dead in his parked car on Redrock Way near San Rafael about 10:30 p.m. yesterday, apparently the victim of self-inflicted carbon monoxide poisoning, according to Deputy Coroner Jack D. Darblay.

Darblay said that the car was locked with a hose attached to the exhaust and running to the interior of the vehicle.

Police and sheriff's deputies unsuccessfully attempted resuscitation, Darblay said, and Sonnenberg was taken to Marin General Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Sonnenberg, who lived at 19 Merrydale Road, had been despondent over financial problems, according to the manager of his apartment house, Darblay said.

Sonnenberg was native of Canada and was a freelance salesman.

LAIRD

reach. Recently, he said, the thrust seems to have switched to intermediate range missiles which could hit the industrial centers of the Soviet Union.

But for the present, he said, the Chinese are still relying primarily on the Badger bomber, a medium range aircraft of Russian design.

Laird said results of the Straegic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) soon to resume between the United States and Russia might limit the full Safeguard deployment to counter the Soviet and Chinese nuclear threat.

He said President Nixon requested that surveys for the fourth safeguard site take place at both Warren Air Force Base, Wyo., and Washington, D.C. The decision about where to install the ABM missile site will be made based on the SALT outcome, he said.

Aside from these developments, Laird said the Russians are actively developing a long range submarine-launched missile and a new anti-ballistic missile system. There already are four ABM complexes set up around Moscow, he said.

By mid-1971, the defense secretary said, the Soviet Union will have 1,500 ICBMs. This is an increase of 60 during 1971 alone, while the United States will hold at 1,054. But he said U.S. submarine missiles will still outnumber Russia's 656 to 400 by mid-1971 despite a six-month Soviet increase of 50 missiles.

Laird said even if this rate of increase remains steady and no new missiles are introduced, however, by the mid-1970s the Russians could have 1,900 ICBM re-entry vehicles.

"This force alone would be more than enough to destroy all U.S. cities of any substantial size," he said. "Practically all of the U.S. population lies within range of the growing Soviet SLBM (submarine missile) force."

Laird emphasized that "we do not intend to be the policeman of the world," but said American strategic forces "will remain the cornerstone of the free world's deterrence against nuclear attack and must always be sufficient for this role."

To this end, while the size of the U.S. armed forces is shrinking, he urged a stepped-up program of research and development to keep the United States from getting another Sputnik-type surprise. He said conventional force quality had been degraded by the heavy demands of money to support the Vietnam War.

WAR

12 South Vietnamese wounded. Another clash seven miles southwest of the town killed 15 communists.

South Vietnamese headquarters said in a statement from Saigon that 6,052 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong had been killed in the Laotian operation that began Feb. 8 in an effort to cut the Ho Chi Minh Trail, the main Communist supply route into South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Military sources said North Vietnam has shifted its Laotian supply lines farther west, out of the way of the South Vietnamese drive.

American headquarters said 58 U.S. helicopters had been lost in support of the Laotian offensive and American casualties were 50 killed, 50 wounded and 16 missing. The U.S. Command counts as lost only those helicopters destroyed, not those shot down but later recovered.

A communique from Phnom Penh quoted a Cambodian military spokesman as speculating the Communists are under orders to conserve ammunition.

Quake Is Felt In Wide Area Of California

MONTEREY, Calif. (UPI)— An earthquake early today shook a wide section of the California coast and was felt from the Monterey area to San Francisco.

Residents in Carmel, Monterey and other communities reported a strong shake, but no serious damage was reported immediately.

The earthquake was also felt by residents 100 miles north in San Francisco, where police said they had calls from a number of people who reported their houses trembled in the quake.

The University of California seismograph laboratory at Berkeley said the quake seemed to be centered in the ocean off Monterey.

A quake was recorded in the same area Monday afternoon, with a magnitude of 3.5 on the Richter scale.

Date Endorsed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly Rules Committee today unanimously endorsed and cleared for floor action a Senate-adopted measure proposing that the legislature adjourn its current session on July 30.

SGT. GEORGE M. NEWMAN
Eleven years on force

OBITUARIES

George Newman, 41, Dies

Sgt. George M. Newman of the Larkspur Police Department died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital after a short illness. He was 41.

Newman had been on the Larkspur force for 11 years and was the city's first "police officer of the year" in 1967.

Prior to becoming a policeman, he was a janitor for the Larkspur School District.

Newman was born in Great Falls, Mont., but moved to Corte Madera in 1942. He moved to Larkspur in 1950.

He was a member of the Redwood Investigators Association.

Surviving are his wife, Eunice M. Newman, three sons, George Jr., Jeffery and Gary Newman, and two daughters, Laura and Kathryn Newman, all of the family home, 163 Elm Avenue, Larkspur; four sisters, Margaret Newman of Corte Madera, Mary Hall of Los Angeles, Lucille Tompkins of Redwood City and Georgina Effrunti of Sunnyvale; and three brothers, Arthur Newman of San Rafael, Charles Newman of Corte Madera and Lester Newman of Great Falls.

Funeral will be Thursday at 2 p.m. at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael followed by burial at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery in San Rafael.

The family requested that memorial contributions be made to the cancer research division of the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco.

ment would not respond to a fire call it knew was outside the city limits, unless a life were in danger.

Orr voiced a similar reaction. "We are not in anyway legally obligated to go into Oak Manor (the unincorporated area adjacent to Fairfax," he said, but added that his department could not "just sit back" if someone was being assaulted.

Councilman Lee Nelder spoke against Souza's proposal, arguing that catching a burglary suspect in Oak Manor reduces the threat to Fairfax as well.

Councilman Francis J. O'Connel said he agreed with Mrs. Gray that people in "Oak Manor and Sleepy Hollow (close to San Anselmo) are freeloading," but he said he thought council action now would be premature.

Souza eventually withdrew his motion and the council voted to table further discussion of the subject for 90 days. The group said it would keep its eye on further action by the board of supervisors; a proposal to annex the Oak Manor area, and a proposal, which the council endorsed, for a county criminal justice coordinator to study police consolidation in Marin.

Senate Refuses To Alter Rules On Filibusters

WASHINGTON (UPI) —For the fourth straight time, the Senate refused today to kill a filibuster against stronger curbs on unlimited debate.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield announced that he would now abandon—at least for the time being—the biennial fight to change the 54-year-old filibuster rule.

The vote today was 55 to 39 in favor of softening the cloture rule. That was eight short of the necessary two-thirds majority.

Three times previously this year the Senate rejected a move to cut off debate on a bill to reduce from two-thirds to three-fifths the number of senators required to stop a filibuster and bring an issue to a vote.

Driver Plunges Off Bay Bridge

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A man stopped an automobile on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge on Monday and plunged over a span railing into the water.

The car was registered to Ronald Hendrix of Sacramento.

DOUGLAS RICHWAGEN

Private service was held yesterday for Douglas Oliver Richwagen of San Anselmo, an executive of the Bay Area Surgical Co.

Richwagen died Sunday in a local hospital, after a brief illness. He was 58.

A native of San Anselmo, he had lived in Marin County all his life except for six years service in the Army medical corps during World War Two.

He is survived by his wife, Norma, of the family home at 100 Chipman Place; a sister, Mrs. Coulter Stewart of San Anselmo, and a brother, Paul Reichwagen of Hayward.

The funeral was followed by inurnment at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. The family prefers contributions to the Animal Lovers of Marin, 28 Laverne Avenue, Mill Valley.

EMMA GRIES

Emma M. Gries, a longtime Greenbrae resident, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 84.

A resident of Greenbrae for about 25 years, Miss Gries last lived at a San Rafael convalescent home.

She was a native of San Francisco and spent her entire life in the state. She was employed as a bookkeeper.

Miss Gries is survived by a sister, Ruth C. Piltz of San Francisco.

Funeral will be 10 a.m. Thursday at Martin and Brown Mortuary, San Francisco, with burial to follow at Woodlawn Memorial Park, San Francisco.

GABRIEL F. FRANCHINI

Gabriel F. Franchini of San Anselmo, founder of the Home Market and father of former San Anselmo Mayor William F. Franchini, died today at a local convalescent hospital after a long illness. He was 95.

Born in Lucca, Italy, he emmigrated to San Francisco in 1890, then moved to San Anselmo in 1916. He lived at 209 Ross Avenue.

He founded the market at 407 San Anselmo Avenue in 1925.

His son, William, was a city councilman from 1958-66 and was mayor in 1960 and 1964. He is now city treasurer. Another son, Roy, of Lake County, founded Chateau Franchini restaurant at 4500 Redwood Highway, San Rafael.

He is also survived by three daughters, Mrs. Amelia Cuneo and Mrs. Erna Longfellow of San Anselmo and Mrs. Ethel Pugh of Fairfax; another son, Robert Franchini of San Mateo; 12 grandchildren, and 11 great-grandchildren.

Private family funeral will be Thursday at Chapel of the Hills. Burial will be in Italian Cemetery in Colma. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Chapel of the Hills.

DELIA HOBBS

Delia Hobbs, 76, a Petaluma resident since 1934, died yesterday at a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Portland, Maine, she was reared and educated there. She married the late Ralph Hobbs in 1917 and they moved to California in 1922, settling in Petaluma in 1934.

Mrs. Hobbs was a member of the Petaluma Rebekah Lodge No. 86, Penngrove Grange No. 740 and Sonoma County Pomona Grange.

She is survived by a daughter, Frances de Neuf of Petaluma; a brother, William Reddy of Kent, Ohio; three sisters, Alice Hartwell of Hartford, Conn., Linnie Cash of Lincoln Park, Mich. and Dorothy Todd of Portland, Maine; and two grandchildren.

Funeral will be held Thursday at 11 a.m. at the Sorensen Funeral Home, Petaluma, followed by private inurnment at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

MRS. DICKIE

Private family service for Myrtle Elaine Dickie, mother of Alice Kathleen Perry of Sausalito, was held yesterday in Berkeley. Mrs. Dickie, 83, died Sunday in Berkeley.

She was born in Ukiah and had lived for many years in Berkeley.

She is also survived by two grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

HAROLD HALL

Word has been received in Marin County of the death of Harold Handthorn Hall, brother of Mrs. Consuelo Wise of San Anselmo.

He died Feb. 28 at his home in San Pablo and was buried in Rolling Hills Memorial Park in Richmond.

Hall, 74, was a native of California and served in World War I. He was a retired executive of Union Oil Oleum Refinery at Rodeo, having worked there for 35 years.

He was a member of American Legion Post No. 10 of Richmond.

Besides his sister, he is survived by his wife, Mabel; a son, Richard Allen Hall; two grandchildren, all of San Pablo and seven nieces and nephews in Marin County.

VALLIER TOMPKINS

Word has been received in Southern Sonoma that Vallier W. Tompkins of Cotati, a merchant seaman, died last week in a Singapore hospital after an illness of three months.

Tompkins, 47, was a native of Cotati and had been a merchant seaman since the age of 17. During World War II and the Korean War, he sailed in war zones carrying supplies for the Armed Forces.

He is survived by his wife, Ruby; a son, Vallier W. Tompkins Jr.; three daughters, Marsha McLain, Rhonda Jones and Jody Tompkins; his mother, Mrs. Albert Martinez, and four grandchildren; all of Cotati.

Funeral service is expected to be held in Petaluma at a later date.

JAMES COLLINS

Funeral for James Richard Collins, 70, of Petaluma, a retired Teamster, will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow at Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma.

Collins died Sunday at a Santa Rosa hospital after a short illness. A native of San Francisco, he attended schools there and at St. Vincent's school, Novato.

He has been employed as a teamster for Purity Stores for 36 years and was a member of the Teamsters Union, San Francisco Local No. 85.

He is survived by a daughter, Dorothy J. Ward of Petaluma; a brother, Thomas Collins of San Francisco, and seven grandchildren.

Private inurnment will be at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

Plan For All-King Classes Proposed

By PAT ANGLE

The controversial question of which schools will be kept open in the Sausalito School District next year remained unanswered last night, as the district board asked the superintendent to study three possible alternate facilities plans. (Another Sausalito School District story, page 1).

The board, by a 3-1-1 vote, directed Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg to prepare reports on the economic and educational advantages and disadvantages of the various plans and specific cost estimates for each proposal, then report back at the board's first meeting in May.

The newest facilities plan, presented last night by Trustee Delta Christ, calls for locating all grades at Martin Luther King School next year by using existing classrooms at the school.

The board, which agreed two weeks ago that the district's ultimate goal should be one school, already is considering several alternates. One possibility suggested by the superintendent would place all grades at King School and add five portable classrooms to accomodate the students. Another would leave kindergarten at Manzanita School in Marin City or move it to Bayside School in Sausalito next year, and put the remaining grades at King, with all classes moved to King by 1972.

Mrs. Christ's plan calls for three kindergarten and three first grade classes, with 24 students in each class; two second grade classes, 26 students per class; three third grades, 22 students apiece; three fourth grades, each with 20 students.

She also proposes two fifth and two sixth grades, each with 26 students, two seventh grade classes, with 21-22 students in each class and two eighth grades, with 21-22 youngsters per class.

Under her proposal, the kindergarten and first graders and the school's library would be located in one wing of King. Another wing would house second, third and fourth graders and a third would accomodate fifth, sixth and seventh grades. Eighth graders would be placed in the building now used as a reading center.

Mrs. Christ said she thought one school located in existing classrooms at King would be "economically feasible" and still leave areas for "special uses," such as art, shop and home economics.

Board Chairman Nathaniel Johnson questioned the effect the system would have on education, noting district policy limits class size to 25 students. "What is the educational feasibility of a kindergarten class with 24 students?" he asked.

Trustee Robert A. Thompson said the effects on education would be dealt with in the studies the administration will make.

Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority and Redevelopment Agency, suggested a fourth alternate — that the district build a kindergarten through eighth grade school in Marin City.

Shepherd suggested the district sell its excess properties to finance construction. He said the district promised in 1960 to build an elementary school in Marin City "but that promise has not been kept." He went on to say the housing authority already has donated the land for such a school.

Thompson called Shepherd's plan "totally economically unfeasible," but Johnson said he would study the proposal carefully and report back to the board.

Barbara Hendrickson, a kindergarten teacher, said the board might be surprised by enrollment in September and end up with insufficent classroom space at King School. "Last year we anticipated less than 50 kindergarten children and there were 84," she said.

From the audience, John Alpert questioned the plan to have the school library in the same wing as the primary grades. "White parents who want to send their children here are afraid of older youngsters, particularly black seventh and eighth graders, coming in contact with their little children," he said sarcastically.

Bullet Into Windshield

A bullet, thought to be .22 caliber, hit the windshield of a car northbound on Highway 101 west of Highway 37, at 5:30 p.m. yesterday, San Rafael police reported.

Edward Jackson Vaughn, 49, of 209 Orange Blossom Lane, San Rafael, told police that the bullet hit the windshield as he was driving in the outside lane of the highway past California Park hill. It hit about three inches from the bottom and 12 inches from the right side of the windshield, police reported.

Vaughn said it sounded like an explosion when it hit the windshield and bounced off, according to police reports.

Bill Opposed By Business Dies In Panel

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill making it easier for the legislature to increase taxes on banks, insurance firms and corporations has been killed by an Assembly committee.

The measure by Assemblyman Leo T. McCarthy, D-San Francisco, came under heavy attack Monday by lobbyists from the business community.

The legislature, under the bill, would have been permitted to hike the levies by a simple majority vote. Currently a two-thirds vote is needed to raise bank and corporation taxes, although other taxes—such as sales and income—can be hiked by majority vote.

The Constitutional Amendments Committee—at a hearing jammed with lobbyists—gave McCarthy's bill a 4-4 vote. Five votes were needed for approval.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, moved to delay vote on the measure for two months to await a "complete tax package," but McCarthy asked for an immediate vote.

Lewis Keller, representing the Association of California Life Insurance Companies, said increased taxes would mean higher future insurance rates.

Richard E. Ratcliff, legislative advocate for the California Bankers Association, opposed the bill saying banks are already "paying more than our share of the tax load."

The California State Chamber of Commerce also opposed the bill.

Under present law, McCarthy noted, individual income taxes can be raised by majority votes. He added, "All taxpayers, large and small, corporate and individual, should be treated equally."

Fire Poster Judging Team

Frank Marshall, a Petaluma High School instructor, and Louis J. Bloom, Marin County fire chief, will be part of judging team which will select the best fire prevention posters submitted by high school students in the Redwood Empire.

Posters selected will be entered in the Western Forestry and Conservation International Poster Contest.

Sausalito Trustees Irked By Cut Vote

Over the strenuous objections of two trustees, the Sausalito School District board voted last night to authorize the district superintendent to notify an unknown number of employees that the district may not rehire them next year — for budget or other reasons.

With Trustees Nathaniel Johnson and Jerry L. Whitcomb dissenting, the board empowered Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg to send out notices by March 15 to all probationary and permanent certificated employees whose employment future with the district is in doubt. All employees not notified by that date are automatically rehired for the comingyear, the superintendent told the board.

The board acted without knowing which employees (or how many) the administration is recommending be elimnated for 1971-72 and before hearing recommendations on personnel reductions from the board's personnel committee. Following the meeting, trustees met in closed session for about an hour to hear the committee's report, but took no action on personnel.

Whitcomb objected to authorizing the letters, saying he did not want to vote on something he knew nothing about. "I feel I am being pushed into a corner," he said. "I don't see how we can decide on how many employees we have to get rid of until we have had a serious budget study session and find out where we are."

Lindberg said the board, in permitting him to give out the notices, was not deciding "whether or not to retain particular employees. The board does not have to make decisions on hiring for next year until May 15, he said, and cannot accept or reject the superintendent's recommendations.

Lindberg said any employee notified that his services will not be required next year has the right to ask for a hearing, provided he makes the request within seven days of receipt of the letter.

Trustee Robert A. Thompson, head of the personnel committee, said the district would not know its staff needs until "about October" when enrollment has been determined. "Either we give people notice now or we have hired them for the coming year," he said. "By not giving the superintendent authority to send those letters now, we are penalizing the public."

He added the board has no intention of revealing which staff members have received the notices. "It's up to the individual employee. If he wants to divulge that information, that's his business."

Johnson said he felt he had been "kept in the dark" about what the personnel committee is recommending in the way of personnel cuts. "I know nothing about it," he said. Whitcomb agreed. "I object to any committee which seeks to take action on its own," he said. "After all, this is a five-man board."

The Sausalito School District Board also:

LEAVE — Denied a request from teacher aide Gloriz Guice for an indefinite leave of absence to continue her education.

AIDES — Hired Paul Austin, Elizabeth Van Anda and Dolores Talley as Title 1 aides for 25 hours a week, at $2.73 per hour.

LITTLE LEAGUE — Denied a request from the Sausalito Little League to donate 10 gallons of paint to be used for the league's dugout and lunch bar at Bayside School.

TENNIS — Approved an agreement with the City of Sausalito to allow the city to store tennis equipment at Martin Luther King School.

GIFTS — Accepted a $100 gift from Sausalito artists and merchants and a $50 gift from Citizens for Excellence in integrated education for landscaping at Martin Luther King School or other projects which the district wishes to use the money for.

BUDGET — Heard a report from Robert E. Spain of the county schools office on how the area-wide school tax is computed and distributed.

School Looted

Books, a purse, stop watch and cash totaling $83 were reported stolen Sunday or yesterday from McDowell School, Petaluma, police said.

Child Beater Target Of Abuse Bill

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —A bill designed to tighten state child abuse laws was introduced Monday with a physician's warning that "we all have within us the potentiality to beat our kids to death."

Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, the measure's author, told a news conference child abuse was "the most pernicious and humiliating disease to afflict children."

Dr. Patricia Hallinan, of Ross, former director of crippled children's services for the Marin County Public Health Department, said battered children — when they become adults — often beat their own children.

"It keeps on and on unless you interrupt," she said.

The physician said parents who batter children are usually young with a "low threshold of tolerance." But, she noted, "We all have within us the potentiality to beat our kids to death."

Ryan's bill would make it a misdemeanor for medical or school officials to fail to report suspected cases. In addition, a special three-member county committee would be set up to investigate each case and report to the juvenile court. Abused children would be made wards of the court and their parents would be required to undergo counseling.

Ryan said current law requires such cases to be reported but "we don't like to admit the truth" that "we beat and strangle and burn and suffocate our own children."

Cycle Stolen

James Netter, 591 Wilson Street, Petaluma, told Petaluma police that his BSA motorcycle, license 994876, was stolen Saturday while it was parked in the 20 block of Petaluma Boulevard South.

DRUGS IN THE CLASSROOM: Can They Help?

By ARNOLD ARNOLD
(Second of six articles)

Minimal brain dysfunction and hyperkinesis describe child behavior about which even the experts disagree. The following are among the 38 forms of behavior diagnosed as hyperkinesis: "Fidgeting; restlessness; inattention; is difficult to manage; can't sit still; is easily distracted; can't take frustration; displays anxiety; has no self-control; breaks things impulsively; has a lot of accidents; is nervous, irritable, undisciplined and clumsy; is a poor sleeper; seems 'slow'; has a relatively high I.Q. but is an 'underachiever'; suffers perceptual disorders; is 'dyslexic'; is hostile, excessively aggressive; shows more than the usual amount of 'sibling rivalry'".

Virtually any one or any combination of some of these symptoms can be found in every child at one time or another. But in the opinion of certain educators, psychologists and physicians, they are all indications of "minimalbrain dysfunction" and "hyperkinesis."

William Cruikshank, who conducted research in this field in 1959 at Syracuse University, cautioned that a child who demonstrates these symptoms might under various circumstances be classified as brain damaged, or as emotionally disturbed, or as having home problems, or he might have a psychopathic personality, or a home that was too permissive, or one that is too authoritarian. "In some situations such a child might be classified as being a 'real boy' whose disciplinary problems are ones he will outgrow."

THE ARGUMENT about symptoms, diagnoses and treatment of such children rages back and forth in the medical literature. Still, parents are expected to accept without question the diagnosis and drug prescriptions of those who favor the "brain damage" theory.

MBD and hyperkinesis have become the favorite description of children in whom parents and teachers have failed to instill required controls, or who may be suffering the effects of TV addiction. The drugs prescribed for such children are dangerous. Swiss researchers found two children inadvertently poisoned and killed by two of the drugs dispensed, on very slight evidence, to U.S. schoolage children.

The Food and Drug Administration sent out warnings concerning some of these drugs during 1970. But three months later, queried physicians and school health authorities in areas where they are prescribed had neither heard of nor heeded this caution.

Some of the drugs described in the first of this series of articles offer hope for reaching a tiny fraction of children who, due to neurologically diagnosed causes, are unable to function. But they are threatening when they are used in a manner akin to thought control for conditioning unruly but normal children or to help them score high on standardized tests.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are indeed more "hyperactive" — restless, bored, and inattentive — than those of 20 or 30 years ago. They are over-stimulated, and at the same time they lead very restricted lives. They have few opportunities to work off physical energy. Urbanization, lack of play and exernise spaces, crowded conditions at home, in school and outside, and TV addiction create symptoms that are identical to those loosely ascribed to "hyperkinesis" and "minimal brain dysfunction."

The questions that urgently needs to be answered is whether it is more desirable to adapt children to a hostile social climate by feeding them drugs, or whether it might not be more in their interest to alter those aspects of their world that interfere with normal child development.

A study conducted at Lackland Air Force base in 1963 by Drs. Sanley Graven and Richard Narkewicz disclosed symptoms in 30 children that match the MBD and hyperkinesis diagnosis closely. They termed it the "tired child syndrome." After eliminating all other possible causes, they discovered that these children were avid TV watchers who sat glued to the screen for five or more hours daily. The symptoms disappeared in direct proportion to parental control exercised over their children's TV watching. Those who watched not at all or for less than one hour per day had a complete remission of all symptoms for as long as they were kept to this regimen.

Also generally ignored by those who advocate drug-assisted behavior control in the classroom is research like the 40-year study conducted at the Institute of Human Developmentat the University of California, Berkeley. Here the same subjects have been tested from birth to middle age. Among many other findings it discloses that the "explosive hyperactive, pre-adolescent boy tended . . - in adolescence . . . to be rated active and adventurous . . . To what extent and through the mediation of what mechanism these persistent personality traits are inherited, affected by the environment, and develop in the interaction between heredity and environment, is not clear."

PERCEPTUAL DEVIATION from the expected norm of how children see, hear, touch, taste and smell, is yet another basis for MBD diagnoses. But EEG research at the Burden Neurological Institute in Bristol, England, described by Dr. Grey Walter in his book, "The Living Brain," has identified three different kinds of perceptual dispositions in normal children. Two of them are at odds with what conventional schools and psychologists consider "normal." But these two identifiable groups of children represent about one-third of the child population.

Our school curricula make no allowances for teaching one-third of all children in a manner that is in tune with their dominant styles of perception. This is especially significant, since the figure 30 per cent recurs in the statements made by some who favor drug-assisted behavior control of MBD children, as the likely percentage of those suffering from this disability.

Dr. Gray Walter tells of a boy "brought in for an EEG examination because he was so backward that there was anxiety about his state of mind; at the age of nine he could not read . . The results of intelligence tests unequivocally classed him as 'defective' . . . (but) his brain record revealed nothing more ominous than large persistent alpha rhythms . . . That was all . . . These merely indicated that it was useless trying to teach him to read pictorially." Dr. Walter suggests that such a boy, properly taught, could well turn out to be a brilliant abstract thinker.

None of this is intended to suggest that children who are classified as genuinely brain damaged after a thorough examination by a qualified neurologist are not in fact just that. But few doctors are equipped to make such a judgment, nor are Ritalin or amphetamines cures. Finally, the number of children who are diagnosed as suffering minimal brain dysfunction is far greater than the likely incidence of this condition in the population.

Great Annexation Game May Be Back With Us

A decade ago, San Rafael set the game going with a move to annex Terra Linda. It turned out that not enough Terra Lindans wanted to be annexed.

In the intervening decade, the original Terra Linda has been virtually surrounded by annexations to San Rafael, but it continues its way with a community services district operating a mostly volunteer fire department and a separate recreation-parks district operating a recreation program.

A FEW YEARS later, Mill Valley started the annexation ball rolling again, with big plans to annex Alto, the Strawberry Shopping Center, and even keep going through Tennessee Valley all the way to the ocean.

That started the new city of Tiburon on the annexation trail. Although it had no police department, no planning department, no recreation department and little public works department, it felt ready to acquire more territory.

Prize plum sought by both Mill Valley and Tiburon was the Strawberry Shopping Center. Neither of them got it. Mill Valley annexed much of Alto. Tiburon got nothing. And after awhile, the contest just faded out.

PRINCIPAL REASON for a revival of the Great Annexation Game at this time is a change in rules by the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau, which puts out ratings that are used as the basis for fire insurance premium rates by most underwriters.

For a decade, residents just outside cities or fire districts — who really have no assured fire protection except the county department — got a preferred rating which kept their insurance premiums relatively low. But this year, the fire rating bureau abandoned that. The result is a sharp increase in the rates.

This puts the squeeze on the old pocketbook. The hate of City Hall appears a lot less rational when the saving in fire insurance premiums would more than pay the city taxes.

This will make no difference to Terra Linda, which has its own fire department. But it is likely to bring annexation of many other areas adjacent to cities. A recent Meadowsweet annexation in Corte Madera was spurred by this consideration.

Election Cost Curbs: Ideas, No Consensus

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Congress is getting more ideas than it can easily digest about how to rewrite obsolete federal laws governing the collection and use of money for election campaigns.

There is no more evidence than ever of a bipartisan or even a partisan consensus on new laws.

President Nixon has neither offered nor promised recommendations, although his party's leaders in the House and Senate have joined in sponsoring election reform proposals. But there is little similarity between the measure introduced by Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott and another co-sponsored by House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford.

IT HAS BEEN almost 10 years since President John F. Kennedy reminded that an earlier Republican President, Theodore Roosevelt, had suggested in 1907 that the national political parties should be financed by the federal treasury.

Kennedy liked the idea and appointed a commission to propose improvements in funding presidential campaigns. The commission refused to endorse treasury financing, at least until tax incentives for campaign contributions were tested.

Congress still has not approved tax incentives for contributions, although they are proposed in many of the election reform bills which have been introduced.

Another common provision in these bills calls for a much better system of reporting who contributes money and how it is spent than existing laws which tend to conceal or to deceive.

BECAUSE OF SOARING television costs, Congress passed a bill last year to limit what couleee spent for campaign broadcasting. President Nixon vetoed it with the explanation that it would plug only one hole in a sieve.

Mansfield's bill includes the provisions of the vetoed bill along with limits on other campaign advertising, tax incentives for small contributions and new disclosure requirements for campaign spending without the present spending limitations.

Democratic National Committee officials recommended that the Treasury finance campaigns for presidential and congressional candidates but said the Mansfield bill was their second choice.

Scott's bill would provide tax incentives for contributors, new requirements for reports on spending, preferential rates for campaign broadcasting and repeal of spending ceilings.

Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, chairman of the House Republican caucus, is author of another bill with Ford and more than 70 other House members as co-sponsors. It would provide tax incentives, new disclosure requirements and federal subsidies for campaign broadcast time for candidates for President and Congress.

Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, the only announced Democratic presidential candidate, has introduced a bill to provide federal money for presidential and vice presidential campaigns while allowing an equal amount to be raised from private sources.

Special Kind Of Trial For Angela To Assure She'll Get 'Black Justice?'

(Reprinted from Long Beach Press-Telegram)

The Long Beach chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has urged that the Angela Davis trial be conducted in a special way.

The chapter proposes that the trial be held in a "black community" before a black judge and a black jury reflecting Miss Davis' "life style and peer group."

One aspect of the demand is unclear. We are told that "black community" does not mean an area populated by blacks by an "atmosphere and life style." It is difficult to see how a trial can be conducted in any atmosphere and life style other than the atmosphere and life style of the courtroom. Leaving that problem aside, there remains the question of whether Miss Davis can have a fair trial if the judge and some of the jurors are white.

THE LAW, as set forth in many court decisions, would say that she can. Experience in other cases supports the conclusion that fair trials can result where potential jurors are a fair mix of the population of the community at large.

Miss Davis does not feel herself a part of the community at large. She sees herself as part of a minority community. Accepting her notion of what her community is, the Long Beach NAACP argues that the judge and jurors should be drawn exclusively from that community.

An alcoholic charged with drunken driving might contend that his community is that of drunks and that his trial should be conducted in the atmosphere and life style of the saloon, with judge and jurors drawn from its habitues.

MISS DAVIS might reasonably say that her community is not the black community at large but the much narrower community of black scholars who are also Communists. Since there probably aren't 12 such people in the country, she might then argue that a fair trial is impossible.

Such a preselection process in choosing jurors would weight the odds in an intolerable way.

What society wants is an unbiased jury. What both prosecution and defense. Desire is a biased jury. The best way for society to achieve its desire, while giving prosecution and defense a chance to achieve theirs, is to insist that the prospective jurors represent the population at large.

Then the prosecution and defense can exclude those prospective jurors who by statements in court, family background, organization membership or other clues suggest bias — or, to be more accurate, suggest the wrong kind of bias from the viewpoint of the lawyer who is excusing them from the jury.

Trial Is Certain To Be Quite Public

Attorney Allen Brotsky's assertion (March 3, "Angela's Attorney Asks Bigger Room") that denying admission to a "substantial representative number of those interested in attending the proceedings denies the defendant her right to a public trial" is laughable in view of his memo attached to his motion noting that 60 seats in the courtroom have been assigned to the press.

If that isn't a public trial, then what on earth is?

Thanks To Many Friends In Need

When you lose your house and everything you own by fire as we did last Sunday night (Feb. 27), you wonder, after the shock subsides, where and how you begin a new life. I decided I star (1) being grateful for being alive, (2) being grateful for all the help, love and friendship that was without hesitation offered to us.

To say thank you to everyone is perhaps impossible, but — thanks to Chief Frank Nelson, who not only fought the fire but who is also a very kind human being; to neighbors, Jean Bean, Judy Mangelman, who immediately took us in, did our thinking and took care of us; to Bob Simmons, city councilman, who immediately came and got us through all the practical business we were incapable of even knowing about, much less do; to Peter Friedman, the Kimmelmans, the Stewarts, the Cresses, the Motells and the many others who came, called and extended help in all ways. I don't even know some of the names. But thanks.

Material things are important and necessary, but the most important thing in life is people. And when they are so great you can only say thanks and hope they understand how much that word means.

SFO Helicopters Should Be Saved

It isn't enough that the political principals controlling the destiny of Marin County have not yet achieved a reasonable and acceptable surface transportation concept for getting to and from San Francisco, but now we also have an air travel dilemma in the making by subjecting SFO helicopter to economic pressures that may end up with terminated service to S.F. International Airport.

I fail to comprehend the thinking and unresponsive action by our county representatives. For the so-called most income-per-capita county in the state of California we sure are backward in responding to the needs of those filling the tax coffers.

If Marin County can afford to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to provide extraordinary security measures for alleged criminals, then we should also be economically capable of supporting essential mechanisms for the daily living of the County tax payer.

March 9, 1961

A'leen Runkle of the county planning staff recommended that Bolinas-Stinson School District plan to acquire sites for six elementary schools because of probable expansion in connection with Point Reyes National Seashore. A high school also would soon be needed in the area, she said.

Russians Paying Plenty For Foothold In Cuba

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The Russians are paying plenty for their Latin American foothold in Cuba.

In Moscow, at the end of February, the Russians and the Cubans signed their annual trade agreement in ceremonies at which Mikhail Kuzmin, a first deputy minister of Soviet Foreign trade, said that 1971 would see an increase of $110 million in the value of Russian goods sent to Cuba.

Soviet aid has been keeping the Cuban economy afloat for the last 10 years, and the Cubans now are estimated to owe the Russians more than $3 billion exclusive of military aid.

With the Cuban economy going deeper into the hole each year, the Russians can have but little hope of ever being repaid.

THE LOGICAL question is how long will the Russians continue a policy which seems to be one of ever-diminishing returns?

In a nuclear war between the United States and the Soviet Union, Cuba's value to the Russians would be dubious.

But, since Latin America is regarded by many as the next great area of cold war conflict between the United States and the Soviet Union, its peacetime value or its value in case of conventional warfare is enormous.

It gives the Russians a friendly port where no other exists.

It can provide the Soviet navy with food and facilities for shore leave and repairs.

It could interfere with shipping through the Panama Canal and threaten the canal itself. It also could pose a threat to shipping moving out of the mouth of the Mississippi River.

Further, it has the prestige value of providing the Russians a haven in waters heretofore exclusively American.

AS FOR THE Cuban people themselves, even Fidel Castro admits the immediate future is not bright.

Rationing which began in 1962 has become even tighter. Cigars and cigarets were put on the rationing list last year for the first time.

For Cuba's ills, Castro has the diagnosis but not the cure.

In speeches he has blamed the country's plight first of all on high absenteeism and low labor productivity.

At one point he took to task workers who took warnings on the health hazards of smoking as a reason to neglect the tobacco crop.

Sugar remains Cuba's chief money earner. Last year Castro pressed for a crop of 10 million tons but fell a million and a half tons short despite drawing off workers from industry and all other forms of Cuban enterprise. This year he has told Cuban workers the crop must come to seven million tons.

Tough Selling Job Ahead For Petaluma's City Council

The Petaluma City Council may be spending some late nights in the next few months studying the art of salesmanship, and it certainly will be necessary if the proposed $2 million sewer bond election is to be successful in June.

Even though the final vote on calling the election won't be taken until March 19, the council has been besieged by pessimism and confronted by persons already organized to defeat the measure.

Bond elections — whether for schools or municipal facilities— are hard to sell. Voters simply hate to see their taxes go up. Southern Sonomans made that very clear in heavily defeating the Feb. 20 school tax rate increase.

NOT ONLY WILL the Petaluma Council have to persuade those who are absolutely against anything that will raise taxes, but also those who might be willing to put out more money for progress.

The east side of Petaluma is generally made up of young families who would be inclined to support measures that would better their lives despite higher taxes. What the council will have to prove is that increasing the capacity of the sewer plant will achieve that aim.

All of the ills of the city, including crowded schools, undeveloped parks and traffic congestion, have been blamed on the council. "Poor planning," complain eastsiders.

COUNCILMEN AGREE that things could be better and cite the retention of a planning consultant firm as proof that they mean business in plotting a better community for the future.

The report will cost between $26,000 and $32,000 and is expected to cover such diverse subjects as zoning, land use, housing and a general update of the 1962 general plan.

For the price of $32,000 one wonders how many problems can be solved by the planners. Consultant fees are generally enormous and the fee to Williams and Mocine led some to wonder whether the council is wise in putting all its eggs in the consultant's basket.

If the planners merely spend several weeks at City Hall gathering information, go back to their offices and write professionally worded chapters accompanied by colorful maps and graphs, the council will have a difficult time passing off the report as new and vital.

ONE THING is certain, before the council can swing enough "yes" votes on the sewer expansion plan, it will have to prove that it can control the growth that sewer expansion will promote.

The theory of growth at any cost is dead in Petaluma. Residents would by far rather see a stop to uncontrolled growth and certainly will not pay higher taxes to prolong it.

Prayer Idea On Agenda

Whether to pray or not to pray at council meetings will be discussed by the Novato City Council at 8 p.m. today at the Novato Community House.

The council will also consider purchase of the San Marin Club recreation facilities.

Other matters to come before the council include a study of consolidation of police activities, a foot bridge over Novato Creek at the branch library, a capital improvement program proposed by the park and recreation department and improvements on Reichert Avenue.

Razor Blade Company Defends Its Newspaper Sample As Safe

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

The American Safety Razor Co. defended itself Monday against complaints that a newspaper advertisement insert containing a sample razor blade was possibly dangerous, especially to children.

The company, a division of Philip Morris Inc., said it recently had conducted a test with one of the nation's largest newspapers in which specially packaged (Personna) blades were delivered with the Sunday edition. (In Marin, blades were included in home deliveries of Sunday's San Francisco Chronicle-Examiner.)

"There were no reported accidents or complaints," the statement said. "Therefore it was decided to extend the same method of introducing a new product to other markets."

A number of complaints were reported around the country Monday from person worried about children hurting themselves on the blades, which were pasted to the newspaper advertisement insert in a white plastic package.

Inside the outer bag, the blade was wrapped in two more protective coverings — waxed paper and a sealed paper envelope.

On the outside the package were printed the words "contains razor blade" and "keep away from children". It also carried the instructions: "Do not tear. Cut with scissors along dotted line."

The ad was estimated by the company to have been carried in about 10 cities with a combined circulation of four million.

In California, the Orange County Health department issued a warning to parents about the ad. No injuries were reported, however.

The Los Angeles Times, which carried the ad Sunday, also reported that it, along with several radio and television stations and several police departments, had received complaints.

Some advertising directors of papers involved said they had tried "every way possible" to rip open the package containing the blade but were unable to do so.

War Museum Comes In Handy For Defense Chief's Briefings

WASHINGTON — I don't mind the Pentagon lying to me on a large scale such as when they flatly stated a few months ago that they were not keeping any files on civilians.

But it's their little lies that get me down. For example, the other day it was revealed that a rusty piece of oil pipe Sec. of Defense Melvin Laird showed to newspapermen and implied had been captured during the Laos offensive turned out to be over a year old and had nothing to do with the recent Laos incursion.

Secretary Laird was trying to use the pipe to prove the South Vietnamese were making great headway and had managed to cut the North Vietnamese oil supplies in Laos.

When the truth was discovered, the Pentagon naturally protested; they never said it was this year's pipe.

WELL, IT DOESN'T take much imagination to realize what some future Pentagon briefings are going to be like.

I can just see us all filing into the Pentagon briefing room where Mr. Laird, wearing his usual ebullient smile, welcomes us. Besides the usual maps, a display of weapons and supplies are on the stage.

Mr. Laird says, "Gentlemen, I am happy to report that the South Vietnamese have just captured a large cache of weapons in Laos." He holds up a rifle.

"Is that one of the rifles captured, Mr. Secretary?" a reporter asks.

Mr. Laird smiles and says, "Pardon me. I didn't understand the question."

"I said, is that rifle one of the weapons captured in Laos?"

"Well, yes and no," Mr. Laird replies. "This rifle actually was found after Custer's last stand at Little Big Hone. But our intelligence indicates the weapons discovered look just like it."

MR. LAIRD picks up a frozen chicken. "The ARVN found 12,000 chickens just like this one on Route 9."

"Is that a Laotian chicken?"

"Would you please speak louder?"

"Is that a chicken from Laos?"

Mr. Laird confers with a general and then smiles and says, "No, this chicken comes from Belleau Woods. It was captured at the end of World War I. But we wanted to give you some idea of the success of the ARVN mission. Are there any questions?"

"WHAT ARE THOSE ration cans over there, sir?"

"Oh, yes, we captured five tons of those two days ago in Cambodia."

"But there is German printing on the labels."

Laird confers with the generals. Then he smiles and says: "I erred. These cans come from the Battle of the Bulge in World War II. But we wanted to give you some idea how sneaky the enemy really can be.

"Mr. Secretary, where did the sandbags come from?"

"DID YOU FLY the sandbags all the way back to Washington?"

He confers with the general again.

"No, not exactly. These sandbags were captured at the Battle of Iwo Jima. We thought you might be interested to note how far behind the enemy was in sandbag design. Are there any questions?"

"Is that everything that was captured?"

Mr. Laird smiles. "Except for one small surprise." He presses a buzzer. The large doors of the briefing room open and a Chinese tank rumbles into the room.

"What do you think of that, gentlemen?"

"Where did you get it?"

Report Due On Progress Of Gym Work

A progress report on the repair of safety hazards at the Terra Linda High School gymnasium will be presented to the San Rafael Board of Education at 7:30 p.m. today at the district office at Third and E streets.

At its last meeting, the board ordered immediate action to eliminate possible shock hazards from electrical outlets near the pool, slippery tiles around the pool and possible hazards from the steel bleachers.

The board also is slated to adopt the school calendar for 1971-72 and to approve an architect's contract for additions and improvements at Santa Venetia Middle School. Cost of the work has been estimated at $160,000.

Mother, Infant Hurt In Crash

Judith A. Ritz, 27, of 14 Cader Court, Petaluma, and her son, Ronald, 1, were injured yesterday when they were struck by a car at 1:35 p.m. at the intersection of Keller and Washington streets, Petaluma.

Mrs. Ritz told police she would see her family physician for treatment of cuts. Police said they were struck in a crosswalk by a car driven by Vernon E. Acker, 56, of Hamilton Air Force Base.

SPILL ENDS HILLSIDE RUNAWAY

This garbage truck, loaded with debris from a Mill Valley construction site, overturned on Molino Avenue near Janes Street yesterday, injuring the driver and spilling rubbish onto the shoulder of the road. Driver Lloyd E. Robinson, 40, of San Francisco, was treated at Marin General Hospital for concussion following the 1:37 p.m. accident. Mill Valley police said he told them he was eastbound on Molino approaching its intersection with Montford Avenue when his brakes failed on the steep hillside road. After a 200-yard run, the truck hit a parked car and overturned. The truck is owned by Marin Sanitary Service, 122 Front Street, San Rafael.

Account Of Firm Used In Purchase

Two men who were familiar with purchasing procedures bought $746 worth of plumbing supplies on someone else's account yesterday at a San Rafael firm, police reported.

The purchase was reported by Collins-Marlow Supply Co. of 8 Lovell Avenue, which said the supplies were charged to Dill and Sederberg Co. of 290 Camino Alto, Mill Valley.

The men used a valid Dill and Sederberg purchase order and appeared familiar with that firm's purchasing method, police reported.

One of the men signed the name "Bob Lyons" to the order, but it was a fraudulent signature, according to police.

One man was described as about 32 years of age, six feet tall, weighing 200 pounds with short brown hair. He was wearing a tan ski cap and blue coveralls. The other was about 28 years of age, five feet nine inches tall, weighing 170 pounds. He had long brown hair, a dirty brown hat, a dirty jacket and blue coveralls.

Sewer District To Be Discussed

The formation of an improvement district to install a sewer system at Oceana Marin will be discussed at 8 p.m. today by the North Marin County Water District board at the office at 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato.

The commission will also discuss an agreement with Marin County on the development of a park at Stafford Lake.

Petaluma Valley Homeowners Oppose $2 Million Sewer Bond

The Petaluma Valley Homeowners Association voted last night to oppose the proposed $2 million sewer bond election until a master plan for development has been adopted.

By resolution, the association said that an intelligent decision on the proposed expansion of sewer facilities cannot be made in the absence of a master plan. The group said the city council must first spell out explicitly how new growth permitted by expanded sewer facilities will be controlled.

The group urged the council to move ahead with the master plan development and called the proposed June 8 election "premature."

The association also voted to supply labor to build a park on the Eastside. President R. Richard Courier said the group had been in contact with city hall and civic groups to see that land and playground equipment would be furnished.

Donald Campbell and Kenneth Raithel were named co-chairmen of the park development committee and said they would report back when the target park site has been selected.

The club also went on record as supporting the Old Adobe Fiesta Association efforts to save the grove of trees across the street from the state park. Courier said members had been assisting the association in getting petition signatures.

Association members feared the grove of trees will be sold for commercial development and plan to appeal to the city, county and state to buy the land for a small park.

Donald Carey, merchandise manager at the Corte Madera Montgomery Ward store, last night was elected president of the association.

Carey, 32, attended Yuba Junior College, Trinity College in Chicago, Ill. and Chico State College. He has been employed by Montgomery Ward for eight years and was personnel manager at the Serramonte store in Daly City before moving to the Marin store.

He and his wife, Marsha, and two children have lived in Petaluma since July.

Other officers elected include Murial Birkland, vice president; Richard Frees, treasurer, and Gail Carr, secretary. Elected as directors were R. Richard Courier, William Johnson, Sue Langhans, Dinah McGovern and Nicholas Topolos.

Park Work Due Study

The Novato City Council will consider a recommendation to undertake a $1,046,000 five-year park and recreation capital improvement program at 8 p.m. today at the community house.

The parks and recreation commission has recommended the program for development of existing parks and purchase of additional sites.

Antiques Will Go On Display

Antiques and collectors' items will be on display March 16 at the San Rafael Improvement Club's annual Antique Show and Tea at its clubhouse, Fifth Avenue and H. Streets.

Highlighting the event will be a talk by John A. McKenzie of Scotland, a former senior appraiser with one of the leading British antique houses on "Art at Auction." He will speak at 1:30 p.m.

The show is open to the public.

Students Win U.N. Honors

Nine Terra Linda High School students have returned from a Model United Nations conference in Washington, D.C. after being named one of the four best delegations at the session.

Alexandra Barnett, instructional aide at the high school, said the delegation was awarded a U.N. flag by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., for accurately portraying the mood of France's representatives to the world body.

The Marin group, led by teacher Albert Gautraud and his wife, first flew to New York City last week to visit a UN session and talk with a French diplomat.

In Washington, the students, led by Michael Gould, "attempted to put themselves completely into the role of France" during a General Assembly session, Mrs. Barnett said.

The Terra Linda group was judged one of the four best in knowledge of its country and the position it would take on affairs coming before the U.N., Mrs. Barnett said.

Committee Work

The Marin County Democratic Central Committee will consider appointment of alternate members to the committee at 8 p.m. today at the Blue Rock Inn, Larkspur.

Kentfield Board Fires Teacher, Sees Attrition Cutting Overage

The Kentfield School District will not dismiss teachers because of an expected drop in enrollment next year, but rather will rely on expected staff resignations.

The decision came last night after the district board returned from closed session and announced one district teacher was being dismissed "for cause." Her name and the reason for firing her were withheld as she had not yet been notified.

Supt. Anthony G. Bacich said today the board earlier in the evening approved his recommendation that three teachers be notified they were losing their jobs.

He based his recommendation on a prediction that average daily attendance will drop next year by 60 students.

However, following the closed session to hear charges against one teacher and the vote to dismiss her, the board rescinded its earlier "reduction in force" action.

With the firing of one teacher, Bacich said, the predicted teacher overage is now two, with staff resignations and leaves expected to reduce the overage.

The board also heard last night a report from Dan K. Campbell on the outdoor education program at Adaline E. Kent School.

Sponsored by the school's parent-teacher association, the program for sixth graders includes five one-hour orientation sessions on ecology and six field trips.

Campbell, 23, last year disclosed that the Marin Municipal Water District was dumping sludge into Phoenix Lake. At that time he was conducting a similar program with the Ross School District.

The board voiced its support of the proposed Kent School program and directed Bacich to investigate the possiblity of financial aid in the fiscal 1971-72 budget.

In other action, the board authorized its architect, Corlett and Spackman of San Francisco to proceed with preliminary drawings for the hearing handicapped building at Kent School, heard a favorable report from seven students on the outdoor education camp at Santa Cruz and continued its review of the fiscal 1971-72 budget.

Girl Scouts And Problem Of Drugs

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Girl Scouts and drug abuse sound mutually exclusive but they are not—the Scouts are alert to the drug problem and even the possibility of it reaching out to their girls.

The role they have chosen for themselves in combatting drug abuse is prevention through education, starting at the youngest age levels.

Interestingly enough, the impetus for the anti-drug programs conducted by Councils in areas throughout the country comes from the girls themselves, not from adults.

Take the words of the writer of a background report when a Senior Girl Scout troop in Knoxville, Tenn., wanted a $500 grant to help furnish the living room of an Awareness House in Oak Ridge, Tenn., a grant which they eventually received.

She was explaining how the troop became involved with Awareness House, a youth center with a commitment to preventing and eliminating drug abuse.

In relating the history, she wrote: "Finally in November, 1969, we held our first 'Speak-with'—an encounter session of sorts with a panel of adults from the school, clergy and parents with an equal number of Senior Scouts. Our 'thing' for the evening was to convince our parents to take us seriously . . . please recognize (the drug problem) and give us some help?"

What really has happened in the Scouts is that it is the girls themselves who keep it contemporary, albeit with adult guidance.

When you and I were young, Maggie, Girl Scouts earned badges in first aid or camping skills, very nice but hardly in tune with the '70s. Nowadays, according to a spokesman for the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A., girls may earn badges in anything they wish, if they can provide a good case for its need.

The girls are encouraged to initiate their own projects, for which they must receive approval — usually granted — from national headquarters.

Mrs. Douglas H. MacNeil, president of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. said in the February issue of the Girl Scout Leader that "Girl Scouting and similar organizations have the all-important preventive rather than rehabilitative role. They are in a strategic position to provide the wholesome alternative to drugs and to build key peer-group pressures against drug use, which are so urgently needed."

What the Scouts are doing includes establishing a working relationship with Washington-based national organizations which distribute drug abuse literature; disseminating the best information available through various Girl Scout publications; holding senior conferences across the country on the drug problem.

The Girl Scout Council in Washington is working with Blackman's Development Center, an inner-city black organization devoted to fighting drugs, and its offshoot, B.O.L.D. (Blot Out Lethal Drugs).

SMOOTH SAILING

To Deputy Attorney General

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Joyce Ferris Nedde is a surprisingly gentle and softspoken young woman -- not to mention her model-like appearance — to be a California deputy attorney general who practices criminal law.

Most of her work is in state and federal courts, but she is qualified to argue cases before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Tall and slender, the blue-eyed Titian blonde lives in Mill Valley with her husband, Dr. Norman Robert Nedde, chief resident in orthopedic surgery for the combined program of six hospitals in San Francisco. He is in his last year of residency at St. Mary's Hospital.

PRESENT FOR a few minutes — until he was called on an emergency — during an interview at the couple's apartment in the Shelter Bay area of Mill Valley, he confirmed his full approval of and interest in his wife's career.

This proved to be only one example of what has been amazingly smooth sailing — apart from very hard work — for Joyce since she first decided to become an attorney.

Confidence that a woman can handle both a career and marriage was never a problem, for her mother is a physician who has maintained a general practice in Cincinnati, Ohio, for the past 25 years while rearing a family of three boys and three girls. Joyce is the oldest child.

"I was originally a pre-med student," she says, "I guess because I admired my mother's work, but I decided science was not my field, and I switched over in the middle of college and was graduated from Northwestern University with a B.A. in psychology and sociology.

"Though I had known only one attorney in my life, I thought I would like law and applied for admission to Harvard. I had no trouble getting into the law school. I had had good grades but was not an outstanding scholar.

"AFTER A year at Harvard I transferred to the University of Louisville School of Law in Louisville, Ky." Joyce received her doctor of jurisprudence degree there in 1961.

She and her husband had met at Northwestern.

"Bob — that's what I call him rather than Norman — was head of the science department and taught chemistry in high school in Louisville, but we waited to get married until after I had received my law degree and had passed the Kentucky bar examination. He fully accepted my going on into a career, but he bought me a cookbook first," she laughed.

JOYCE FERRIS NEDDE is a California deputy attorney general who practices criminal law. In her apartment in the Shelter Bay area of Mill Valley she outlines some of the points she plans to cover in a brief she is preparing for a case she will handle.

My first job was as attorney for the U.S. Corps of Engineers in Louisville. The next year we moved to Lexington, where Bob entered the University of Kentucky School of Medicine, and I worked as attorney for the Kentucky Department of Highways."

Joyce's first big job was that of assistant attorney general of Kentucky, the first woman ever to be appointed to that position, where she was chief counsel of the departments of education and mental health.

"I HAD NO trouble getting the job," she recalls. "I didn't even know there was an opening and just walked in and applied. The job was very interesting. I worked on school desegration with school boards and had fewer problems than I had expected."

Joyce held this position two years, until her husband was graduated and he took an internship at San Francisco General Hospital in 1966.

Again she had no trouble getting a good job — just walked in the office of the California Attorney General in San Francisco and was hired the next day for her present job as a deputy attorney general.

Quite unusual is the fact that she practices criminal law, since not many women are in that field. It was not due to any special interest on her part, she explains, but simply the need of a deputy in that field at the time she applied.

She has handled all kinds of cases — including murders, assaults, rapes, kidnappings and drug convictions — and has argued cases in state and federal courts. But she says most of the time her work involves written presentations in connection with appeals following convictions.

"I have never argued cases before the U.S. Supreme Court," she says, "but have handled some not requiring a personal appearance in Washington."

A MEMBER of the state bars of California and Kentucky, the San Francisco Bar Association and the Barristers Club, the 33-year-old attorney is also a leader among women in her profession, for she was recently elected president of the Queen's Bench, a group of more than 250 women attorneys in Northern California. She has been listed in "Who's Who of American Women" for several years.

As for the women's liberation movement, she says, "the main thing women's lib is about is equal opportunities, and I think women should be free to choose any career they are qualified for.

"The legal battle for equal rights is progressing very well. Perhaps now it is a matter of re-educating people and women changing their own concepts of themselves. So many feel the only proper place for them is as wives and mothers and that they can't or shouldn't do anything else.

"Then they pass this feeling on to their daughters with the result that they limit their aspirations, and the daughters don't try to get the necessary education for other careers. Or they may feel guilty if they do try to prepare for careers."

Joyce Nedde's advice to girls who would like to become attorneys is simply to get the necessary education and degrees, stressing a good foundation in English. She says she has found her own background in psychology and sociology very useful, but that no particular interest or field of knowledge is necessary because there are so many different aspects of law.

"THERE IS a place for almost anyone interested in legal problems," she emphasizes.

The Neddes have no children.

Mrs. J. R. Fitzhenry Elected Guild Leader

A native of Marin who has been a member of the Kent Woodlands Guild of Sunny Hills for 15 years has been elected guild president this year.

She is Mrs. J. Robert Fitzhenry of Kentfield, who held the office of president six years ago and has served in various capacities and on the guild's governing council for three years. She has served a year and a half on the board of directors of Sunny Hills Home.

She said that the guild is planning a silent auction and brunch in April to raise funds for the development fund. The guild supports the Sunny Hills Home in San Anselmo.

MRS. ROBERT FITZHENRY

Mrs. Fitzhenry also is a member of Indian Valley Women's Golf Club and the Women's Association of Redwoods Presbyterian Church.

Barbara Fitzhenry was reared in Mill Valley and she attended the University of California, and later Hunter College in New York and Indiana University when she was a member of the Waves in World War II.

She and her husband, who is chairman of the physical education department and basketball coach at Sir Francis Drake High School, are parents of Jack, 21; Colleen, 19; Patrick, 14 and Michael, 12.

"Because my family is sports-oriented, a great deal of my time is spent as a sports spectator," Mrs. Fitzhenry says, but she herself plays golf for recreation.

Other guild officers this year are Mmes. William Ingersoll, vice president; Irving Lewis, treasurer; Lewis Kerlin, recording secretary; Dean Solinsky, corresponding secretary; Thomas Torrison, Grape Festival booth chairman; George McKenna, Bargain Box; Jack Greaves, publicity and Robert Berry, membership.

MR. AND MRS. James B. Phelps, who will have been married 50 years tomorrow, reminisce about the many changes that have taken place in Mill Valley since their marriage as they look at the bridal picture of Mrs. Phelps. She is the former Carolyne Weissich. The Phelpses are the parents of Carolyne Wickham, wife of Mill Valley Mayor George Wickham.

(I-J photo)

Longtime Marin Couple See 50 Years Of Married Life

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Phelps of Mill Valley, who were married 50 years ago tomorrow in a ceremony at the Mill Valley home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Weissich, are both members of families whose history goes back many years in Southern Marin.

Mrs. Phelps, the former Carolyne Weissich, and her twin sister Marie, now Mrs. F. S. Seitz of Greenbrae, came with their family from San Francisco to Mill Valley in 1912 and were graduated from the Old Summit Avenue elementary school and Tamalpais High School.

James was born in Sausalito in the Water Street (now Bridgeway) home of his grandfather, Edward H. Shoemaker, who was superintendent of the North Pacific coast line. James was living in San Quentin at the time of the 1906 earthquake. His father, Charles Phelps, drove a stagecoach out of San Quentin and went on to a career in railroading from steam to skunk trains and finally as conductor on the Northwestern Pacific commuter trains in Marin.

A food broker, James was president of the Johnson Locke Mercantile Company of San Francisco until he retired 10 years ago.

Wedding party members attending were Mrs. Seitz, who was her sister's maid of honor; Mrs. Katharine Burbeck Johnson of San Anselmo and Mrs. Gertrude Gerdau of San Francisco, bridesmaids; Mrs. Dorothea Wood Kiff of San Anselmo, flower girl; and Mrs. Otto Weissich of Mill Valley, who played the wedding march on the piano with the late Walter Johnson playing the violin during the 1921 ceremony.

Both Carolyne and James Phelps have been active in various organizations.

Mrs. Phelps and Mrs. Seitz played a leading role in the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley, Mrs. helps as a vice president and Mrs. Seitz as a president. Both are 50-year members. Mrs. Phelps has also devoted a great deal of her time to the Red Cross and crippled children and many other organizations.

For 12 years Mr. Phleps served on the Mill Valley school board. Formerly a member of the Olympic Club and Commercial Club in San Francisco, he is a 45-year member of Post 284 of the American Legion (he served in England and France in the U.S. Army during World War I). He is presently a member of Sons in Retirement and enjoys attending their luncheons in Terra Linda.

Both Carolyne and James Phelps have a keen sense of humor, and while they find the changes in Mill Valley over the years not entirely to their liking, they take them philosophically.

"If you don't have a sense of humor nowadays," Mrs. Phelps says, "you might as well be dead. Coming from such a close family, I am saddened to see what is going on in families now. But I think we hear mostly about the bad things."

Not surprising was Mrs. Phelps' naming a sense of humor and love of family as the main necessities for a happy marriage over 50 years.

Mr. Phelps said a willingness to compromise was a most important requirement. With a twinkle in his eye he said, "You should have a daily quarrel — it's so much fun to make up."

Treating Tooth Decay

Tooth decay may be the most common chronic disease in the world. Dental experts estimate that there are now about 800 million untreated cavities in America's 200 million mouths. Almost everyone in every civilized country has had one or more decayed teeth. Even with the high prevalence of decay, both the exact cause and the cure for it are unknown.

Researchers have almost unaimously concluded that people don't get dental caries unless three conditions are present in the mouth: 1) certain bacteria; 2) fermentable carbohydrates; and 3) susceptible tooth survaces.

TOOTH DECAY, according to the National Institute of Dental Health, is preventable. Like many public health problems, the cure will depend on the amount of money available for research and education.

How To Lose A False Reputation And Still Keep The Boyfriend

DEAR HELEN:

A friend who has trouble getting guys got a thing going on this fella, so she asked me to call him and try to fix her up. I did, but instead of him getting interested in her (he's seen her around and says she isn't his type), he said my voice really sent him. So he got my phone number and started calling.

I knew my girl friend would be furious so I wouldn't let him come to see me. Then he called her and told her the score. Sure enough, whe was wild; said I'd double-crossed her, and started bad rumors all over school.

Well, I figured if I was going to be blamed, I might as well enjoy it, so I made a date with my unknown admirer. It turned out Jim (we'll call him) is the greatest guy in the world — and he likes me too.

But my former friend is making it tough. To hear her, I am a sneaky man-stealer. And you know how kids love to believe gossip.

How do I lose this false reputation and still keep the fellow I love? — LAURA

DEAR LAURA:

It takes a while, but truth usually wins over false gossip. Tell a few key people (good talkers) the real facts, and let the word spread.

Meanwhile, don't let it get you down. After all, you won a great boy friend: You're still ahead of the game. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm 18, what older people would call the hippie type, but I've had it with that scene. I've tried dope, sex and the rest and I don't want any more.

I almost lost my mind thanks to a bad tab of LSD. Not counting all the times I almost drove my parents crazy because they knew I was on drugs. They are the kind who don't want others to know our problems so they wouldn't call for help Maybe if they had, I wouldn't be writing this letter.

Everywhere I go I hear kids talking about love but I wonder if they think their sexploits are love? Ha! I oughta know. I started when I was 15, and learned my first lesson in love the hard way: I fell. He laughed. Since then I've just drifted from one dude to another, not really caring — just a physical thing.

And then I found out a month ago that when you meet someone who really cares, you feel you can't love in return because you're cheap and dirty. So you just walk away from the best thing you'll ever find.

That's what free sex and drugs do for you. I'm writing this so maybe it will help other girls who are tempted: Please don't. It only leads to heartache and lots of regrets. — WAY-OUT, NOW ON HER WAY BACK

DEAR WAY:

Don't walk away from a boy who really cares. He knows where you've been. He'll help you come back. Punishing yourself for things past can put you down again.

Forget the last three years and with his trust and strength, you can reach the highroad. (Natural high I mean.) — H.

tropics. Genetics andnutritional or emotional disturbances have been found to contribute to tooth decay.

A summary of current dental caries research, issued by Sugar Information Inc., promises that new weapons against decay are being pursued.

The most successful widely used means for building tooth resistance has been found to be flouridation of public water supplies. It has reduced the caries rate, according to reports, by 50 to 60 per cent where it is used.

Scientists are testing methods such as special mouthwashes and enzymes, for breaking up the sticky, transparent film called plaque that forms on teeth and furnishes a breeding ground for mouth bacteria. The traditional attack on plaque has been regular use of the toothbrush.

Hot-Pants Are Short-Shorts Of The '40s

NEW YORK (UPI)—In the 1940s they were known as short shorts and worn for sports or on the beach. In the '70s they are called "hot pants" among other things, are designed for wear anywhere, and are the hottest selling women's fashion in the country.

Stores throughout the nation surveyed by UPI confirmed that nothing is coming off the shelves faster than the new shortie fashion. It goes by many names. A number of stores shy away from the "hot pants" tag and call them "short cuts," "city shorts," "minishorts" or even just "short shorts."

THE DIFFERENCE today is the shorts are sold for all occasions and in all fabrics from denim to wool knit and jersey to satin and velvet, and for wear in almost any setting from temmis court to office to dance floor.

The heaviest buying is among slim girls in the 18-25 years bracket, with high schoolers also definitely interested. But it isn't confined to that group —a spokesman for Lord and Taylor in New York said the first "hot pants" shipment the store received, in bleached-out-denim, was sold to "all ages, up to the 40s."

Where they will be worn is another matter. Hot pants may be cool gear among the discotheque set, but most of the women checked by UPI were interested in them for sport and at-home wear.

For city wear, the new shorts have been seen on the streets of Beverly Hills and at Hollywood parties. Offices around the country are expected to take a dim view and few women would admit to wanting to wear them at the typewriter or behind the desk.

THERE ARE always some daring girls, of course. One 24-year-old editor for Simon and Schuster, Diane Neustadter, tried wearing a pigskin pair to the office and found, "The men loved it; the women hated it." She found them more comfortable than a miniskirt.

Store personnel in the warmer climates—cities such as Miami, Los Angeles, Houston and Dallas—predicted the shorties were a natural for those areas.

The colder and more conservative cities also seem to be panting for the new shorts, however, with sometimes meager store supplies selling well in Boston, Chicago, Milwaukee, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and elsewhere. In Washington, some women even are resorting to seamstresses to cut down longer pants.

The styles vary, from within an inch of indecency to more demure Jamaica and even Bermuda lengths. Some are worn with overskirts, preferably slit to reveal leg.

REACTOPMS RAMGE from Mrs. Ken Smith, 22, a Houston bookkeeper, who said, "They are going to be a lot more fashionable and a lot more flattering than the midis," to Atlanta's Aurelia Sawyer, who said, "Ye , Gad. It's just one more step toward nudity."

Men have something to say in the matter, too, if a married 20-year-old Atlanta girl is any judge. Asked if she would wear "hot pants," she said, "No, I'm too fat."

Today is Tuesday, March 9, the 68th day of 1971.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Pisces.

On this day in history:

In 1947 one of the longest strikes in American history ended after 440 days when the United Auto Workers came to terms with the Case Manufacturing Co. in Racine, Wis.

In 1962 a coal mine explosion in West Germany killed 31 men.

In 1967 Russian Communist dictator Josef Stalin's daughter Svetlana defected to the United States.

Film Entered In Festival

Tony Grech, a 1970 graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School, has entered a film in the annual California High School Film Festival, the school has announced.

His film, "Cloud Dance," will be judged the last weekend in May at Mills High School in Millbrae along with films by high school students from throughout the state.

Another Look At A Deep Finesse From A Top Player

Yesterday I reported Edgar Kaplan's deep finesse with the four of trumps. Since we were swapping stories, I had to try to top him with a deep finesse of my own. My story describes a deep finesse that may be tied but will never be beaten.

DURING WAR

"The hand was played during one of my trips to Chungking in World War II," I told Kaplan. "Because of international complications I still can't identify the other players, but everybody who reads newspapers would recognize their names."

West, I related, led the eight of spades against a badly bid slam. I put up dummy's nine, and East covered with the jack, flashing his partner a look of the purest hate.

I took the king of spades, led a heart to dummy and returned the ten of spades. East muttered something vicious in Mandarin and covered with the queen of spades. I won with the ace, noting the fall of the seven.

OBVIOUS PLAY

The rest was obvious. I cashed the ace of hearts, ruffed the jack of hearts with dummy's last trump, cashed the ace of clubs and began to run the diamonds.

The trump situation was perfectly clear. East had the 4-2, and I still had the 5-3. Since there were no trumps in dummy, East hoped to get a trick with the four of trumps.

TRUMP FINESSE

As I ran dummy's diamonds, East discarded; and so did I. That brought us down to two cards each. When I led the king of clubs from dummy, East ruffed with deuce of trumps, and I overruffed with the three. In effect, this was a trump finesse; and nobody can ever top a winning trump finesse with the three of trumps.

"Can you swear to the truth of this story?" Kaplan demanded. "As soon as I can get permission from the State Department," I assured him. After all, I wouldn't want to start World War III over a lousy three of spades.

Two Injured In Car Crash

Two 18-year-old men received minor injuries in a one-car accident at 2:21 a.m. Saturday, on Wolfe Grade road one mile north of Meyer Road, San Rafael police reported today.

Michael Bruce Friend, the driver, of 25 Rocklyn Court, Corte Madera, was treated for a cut forehead and right knee, Marin General Hospital officials reported. His passenger, Richard Arthur Morse, of 25 Antilles Way, Tiburon, was treated for bruised right elbow and chest, according to Marin General Hospital officials.

Police had no details of the accident.

BETSY CHAPMAN

Folk Singer Tells Of Her Work, Life

By DEBBIE GHIRINGHELLI
Sir Francis Drake High School

When you first meet Betsy Chapman, Marin folk singer, something comes across even before she speaks.

Dressed in pink-and-white-striped bell bottoms, white pullover sweater, brown shoes, her shoulder-length hair tied back with pink yarn, Mrs. Chapman stood, smiling, before a Sir Francis Drake High School journalism class during an interview.

She spoke almost jokingly of her success. Her hopes are not colossal, she said, because she won't let her singing interfere with her family life. "I have no manager, I have no agent. My husband has suddenly become my manager, but I would like to have an agent sometime later."

"When I was a freshman," she said, "I had a guitar with two strings and we had a rally in the girls' gym, so I had the nerve to get up and play with only two strings. Can you imagine?"

Mrs. Chapman obtained the other four strings later and then went through a long process of learning to play the guitar — she still insists that she's not a musician.

Mrs. Chapman, who lives in San Anselmo, was reluctant to compare the Drake High of today with the school when she attended, but did make this observation about education:

"I'm sure you have much more going for you than we did. You're so much more sophisticated, inasmuch as your courses are more relevant. When I went to high school, it was more like an extension of grammar school."

She told of her experience in making commercials. With waving hands, exaggerated facial expressions, and convincing sound effects, she described the television commercial she did for Dolly Madison products to be shown during one of the "Peanuts" specials.

It hasn't been shown yet, and perhaps never will, but Mrs. Chapman still has hopes. Her most profitable commercial was made for Foremost Milk, in which she hummed the background music, played the guitar and boosted the product at the end.

"Everyone's style is something he develops himself," she said. "I think my best are ballads. I sing songs about love, unrequited love, songs of how people feel when they've lost someone they loved, ecology, anti-war, and some just plain fun songs."

"I started with religious songs, but I believe religion is just a way of living. Many people have turned off on it because they believe it's regimented — conforming."

Mrs. Chapman has written from 150 to 175 songs. "I always love every song I write when I write it, but after a few months I usually re-evaluate it," she said.

Her 11-year-old daughter, Terry, is a big fan of hard rock, especially of the big bands like Chicago, Credence Clearwater, and the like, but she still enjoys her mother's style, occasionally accompanying her.

Two years ago, when she cut her first and, up to now, only album, "A Gift of Love", Mrs. Chapman met several celebrities. One thing which stood out in her mind were the name-droppers, and listening to the talk of someone telling how he met " 'Bing the other day and he invited me to play golf.' "

Mrs. Chapman dislikes what she terms the phoniness of the business. She is happy with her success and would like the opportunity to do something big, but she is content now, being able to turn down jobs if she wishes. Her family comes first, she says.

There was something very refreshing in meeting a person like Betsy Chapman, someone with a bright personality, turned on to the people of today. Before the interview was finished, she sang two of her own songs; her talent and versatility were proven.

Addiction Hearing Is Next Week

I-J Special Report

UKIAH — A hearing has been set for next Tuesday in Mendocino County Superior Court to determine if John Rene Rodigou, 22, of San Rafael, is a narcotics addict or in danger of becoming one.

Rodigou has pleaded guilty to a charge of manufacturing LSD stemming from a $3 million LSD raid in Fort Bragg last June.

Meanwhile, three other Marinites are on trial before visiting Judge Kenneth M. Eymann of Sonoma County on charges of conspiring to make LSD, manufacturing it, possessing it and having it for sale.

They are Craig B. Champie, 21, of Fairfax; Michael B. Aylwin, 23, of San Rafael, and Wayne Butler, 23, of Forest Knolls.

The three, along with Rodigou and three other persons, were arrested after a dawn raid on a Fort Bragg house which police said contained an LSD laboratory and warehouse.

Judge Eymann was assigned to the case after two Mendocino judges and another visiting judge were disqualified.

The prosecution was expected to complete its part of the case today and the defense to begin tomorrow, according to a court clerk.

In addition to Rodigou, one other defendant, Ronald Gregory Wiggins, 23, of Santa Rosa and Los Angeles, has pleaded guilty. He is to be sentenced March 26 for conspiring to make LSD.

Broken Wrist In Fall Into River

Police said the youth was standing on the municipal dock at Water Street when he fell into the water, striking the side of the piers.

Volunteer Army Call By Clausen

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District, has called for passage of legislation to create an all-volunteer Army.

Clausen, who has coauthored bills in the past two sessions of Congress to create an all-volunteer Army, told the House Armed Services Committee that it would be "not only workable, but fair and just as well."

With proper incentives, he said, the services could attract and retain volunteers while eliminating the draft and permitting young persons to pursue their educations and careers without interruption.

"There just is no way to reform the draft or completely remove its many inequities," Clausen testified. "Military conscription, in the final analysis, is exactly what the name implies — inducing a young man to serve in the armed forces and, in many instances, against his will."

Clausen suggested that the base recruit salary, now about $2,750 a year with benefits, be "very close" to the $6,000 a year now paid the average unskilled blue collar worker.

Savings in reduced training costs and in the present high turnover would at least offset the higher cost of increased salaries, Clausen said.

Robbers Take Man's Wallet

A Mill Valley man was robbed of his wallet by two hitchhikers he picked up near Tamalpais High School last Tuesday, the Marin County sheriff's office reported yesterday.

According to deputies, James G. Weil, 27, of 65 Summit Street said the two men asked to be dropped off near Marin City.

Baar To Discuss Marin Welfare

"The Welfare Situation in Marin County" will be discussed by Louis H. Baar, chairman of Marin County Board of Supervisors, at noon March 17 before the Novato Republican Women Inc. at the Alvarado Inn in Ignacio.

A business meeting at 11 a.m. will precede the talk. Mrs. Harold Chapman is in charge of reservations.

Americans Freed By Turk Captors

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI)— Antigovernment Turkish guerrillas freed four kidnaped U.S. airmen Monday night, leaving them in an unguarded apartment 700 yards from the U.S. Embassy. The GIs walked to freedom through a door their captors left open.

The Americans said they had been well-treated and adequately fed on cheese, bread and olives in five days of captivity at the hands of guerrillas who called themselves the Turkish Liberation Army.

They threatened to kill the Americans unless the Turkish government paid $400,000 ransom.

Gholson said the guerrillas left the apartment about 11:30 p.m. Monday night without a word.

"We waited until we were sure we were alone," said Gholson. "Then we went out the door and down the stairs to the street and grabbed the first cab that came by."

"Every time we would lose our appetite because of some bad news or something, they (their kidnapers) would ask us if we wanted something to eat or drink. They kept emphasizing to us they would not hurt us," said Gholson. "They were great." But he said the Americans were nervous, "knowing our lives were on the line."

"They said they wanted to liberate Turkey," he said of their captors.

Radioman Testifies He Heard No 'Waste' Message

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—A radio operator who was with Capt. Ernest L. Medina's headquarters at My Lai testified today he never heard Medina message Lt. William L. Calley Jr. to "waste" Vietnamese civilains.

Roger D. Murray, 30, of Waukegan, Ill., was called by the government as it wound up its rebuttal case against Calley and prepared to rest in its attempt to convict him of the premeditated murder of 102 civilians during an American infantry sweep of the hamlet.

Calley, 27, who led a platoon in Medina's company on that March 16, 1968, sweep, has testified in his own defense that Medina twice ordered him in the field to shoot civilians who Calley said were impeding the desired fast advance of his platoon.

Medina is scheduled to testify here later.

Murray recalled that he carried the radio-telephone set that connected Medina, the company commander, to Task Force Barker headquarters. The task force was in command of the mission.

Murray said on cross-examination that his radio was not the one used to communicate with Calley at platoon headquarters and he would not have been directly involved in messages to Calley. But he said he stayed with Medina's command post all during the assault.

Murray said that he attended a briefing by Medina to his company the day before the operation and heard no instructions to kill women and children or to refrain from taking prisoners. Calley has testified that in answer to a question at the briefing, Medina said he meant women and children to be included in his "kill everything" orders.

Murray was the eighth rebuttal witness for the government to testify he heard no Medina order to kill women and children.

Murray's testimony followed that of Roger A. Alaux of Tempe, Ariz., who told the court that not long before the My Lai mission he went with Calley and the platoon Calley commanded on a mission to another village. He said one of two prisoners that Calley took and interrogated there was put in a well and shot.

Critics Hear ABAG Wins Top Award

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors — often critical of the Association of Bay Area Governments — heard yesterday that the association's regional plan had been judged as one of the top five in the nation.

Sonoma Supervisor Ignazio A. Vella, also ABAG president, sent word that the award had been made yesterday at the fifth annual conference of regional councils in New Orleans, La.

The ABAG 1970-1990 Regional Plan had been in competition with 600 other regional government plans. The award was based on substance, achievement of purpose, imagination, design and quality of writing.

The ABAG plan, which was adopted in July, provides a basis for continued federal funding for Bay counties in regard to open space, water, sewerage, mass transit and highway construction.

Vella's fellow supervisors have been critical of ABAG's operations and have called for a county-wide opinion poll on April 20 to determine if Sonoma County should withdraw from membership and form a new regional governmental with North Bay Counties.

No Changes Seen In Nation's Draft

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Selective Service said today the Supreme Court's decision prohibiting conscientious objector status solely because of the Vietnam War would cause very little change in the nation's draft.

A spokesman said the ruling confirms a guideline under which the Selective Service has been operating for some time. But had the Court ruled the other way, he said, "it might have opened up the floodgates."

The court ruled 8 to 1 Monday that Congress in passing the Selective Service Act intended to exempt persons "who oppose participation in all war —participation in war in any form."

The Selective Service spokesman, Ken Coffey, said most young men who opposed only the Vietnam War knew this and had not sought the objector classification.

The Selective Service said that between 90,000 and 100,000 young persons apply for objector status each year, but only about 36,000 receive such exemption.

The Selective Service has set up three guidelines for granting the status —the objection must be to all wars; it must be based on religious training or belief; and it must be of sufficient sincerity to have left a profound influence on one's life.

Local draft boards make the decision whether a young man qualifies.

The Court ruled in the case of Guy Porter Gillette, New York City, sentenced to two years in jail for refusing to report for induction, and against Louis A. Negre, of Bakersfield, Calif., who sought to get out of the service after he was drafted.

High Court Backs Utility Credit Rules

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Utilities may lawfully demand deposits from customers who can not establish credit, California's Supreme Court ruled on Monday.

The high court found the State Public Utilities Commission had acted correctly in approving the credit rules for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. and the Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

You're a guy who likes brandy. So there's something you should know.

A very important part of making brandy smooth is the oak barrel the brandy is aged in.

Little barrels bring the oak and the brandy closer together. And so they make an outstandingly smooth brandy.

Almadén Brandy is aged in just such little oak barrels. You'll taste the difference the moment you try it.

Try it soon.

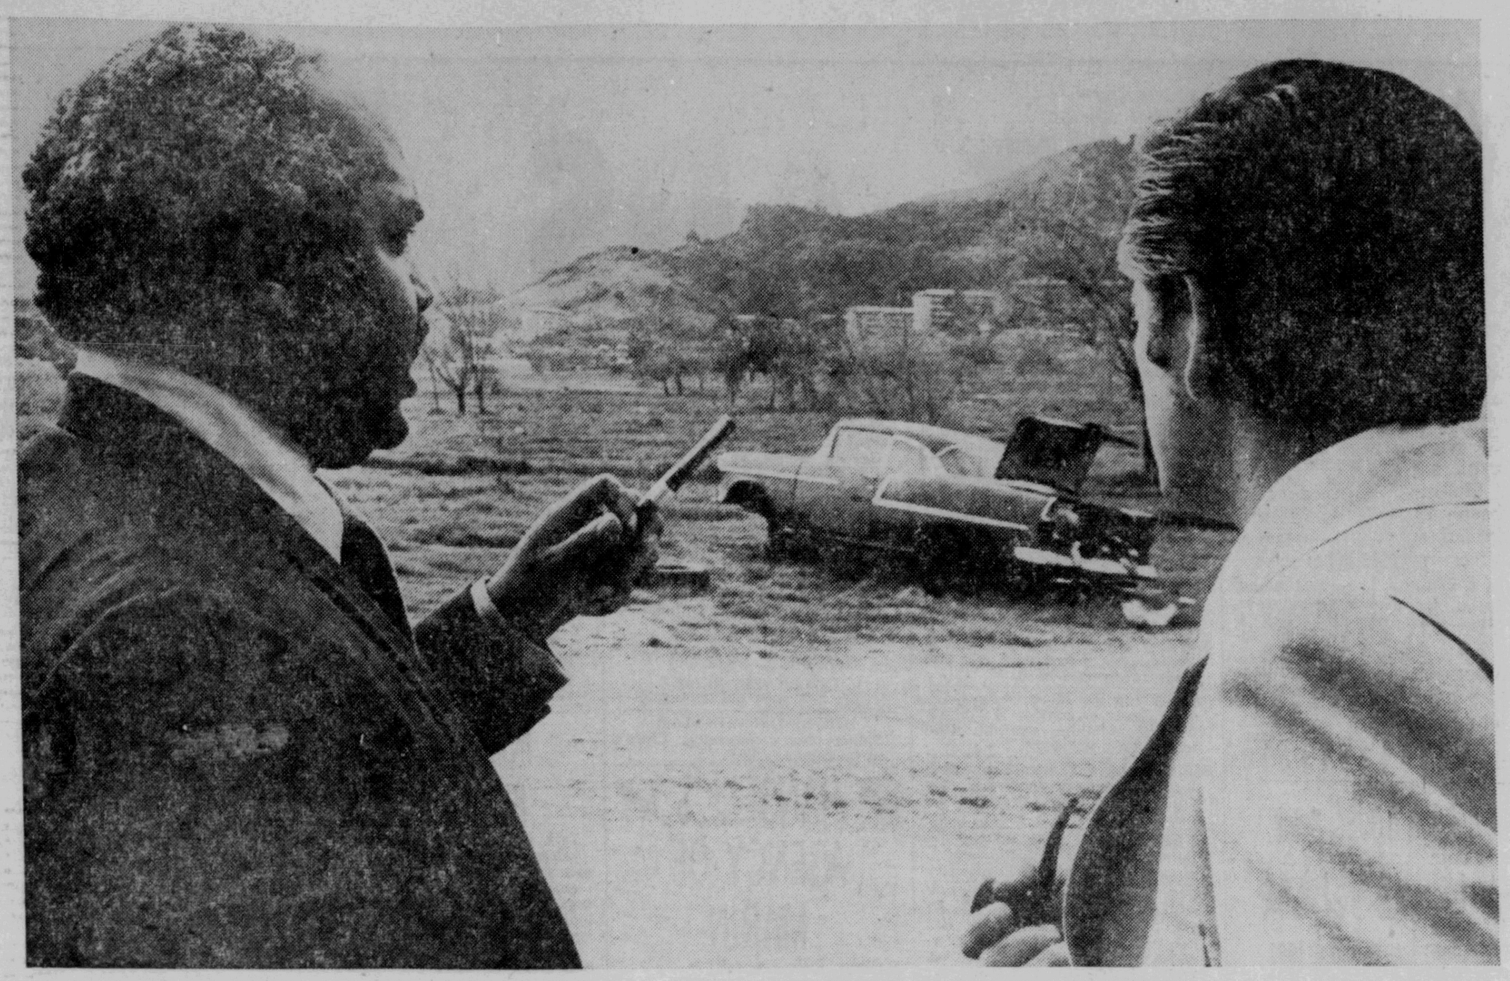
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, MARCH 9, 1971 15



VANISHING HOPE — Wallace K. Shepherd (left), executive director of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency, and his assistant, Keith Kelly, survey the junk-ridden land in the heart of Marin City. This was to have been the site of a Tamalpais High School District school building. Time is running out for development of Marin City under local control, Shepherd warns.

A Bleak Redevelopment Outlook

By PAT ANGLE

For the past 15 years the Marin County Redevelopment Agency has had the responsibility for developing Marin City into a complete suburban community.

But the shopping facilities, schools, businesses, recreational centers and private housing which the agency hoped to bring to the Southern Marin community have not materialized. For the past several years growth and development have bypassed Marin City.

Now, time may be running out for the redevelopment agency. According to its executive director, Wallace K. Shepherd, the agency currently has only $50,000 left in its coffers — enough to pay its administrative expenses for another 18 months.

And the situation is further complicated by the fact the agency has been operating illegally for two years, according to Shepherd, because his predecessor, Donald O. Stutsuran, did not seek anextension from the federal government when development of Marin City remained incomplete by a 1969 deadline.

"Even though it's a bleak picture, it's not a hopeless one," said Shepherd, who became head of the agency and the Marin County Housing Authority in December.

"What we have to do is make this agency — which hasn't moved in years — move forward to serve not only Marin City, but the entire county," he said.

Shepherd is aware that if the agency is to survive, a solid program of development must begin in Marin City. If the redevelopment group folds, Shepherd said the government will come in, take over the project and develop it as it wishes. "That would mean absolutely no local control on what kind of community we have here," he said.

The task facing Shepherd and the redevelopment agency is a formidable one. More than half the community's 300 acres of land — about $900,000 worth — has yet to be sold and developed.

A $1,556,297 loan from the federal government in 1958 to pay for streets, sidewalks, lighting and sewers needed to ready the land for development has not been paid off. And interest on the loan continues to pile up at the rate of $79,000 a year.

When the government granted the loan, four local agencies — the housing authority, the county of Marin, the Tamalpais High School District and the Sausalito School District — agreed to develop facilities in Marin City as the $778,000 local share required to obtain the federal money.

The county promised to build a police and fire station in Marin City as its contribution. The Tamalpais High School District agreed to build a high school and the Sausalito School District promised to build an elementary school in the community. To date, none of the facilities has been constructed, although a new fire station has been approved.

"Marin City's history is a history of broken promises," Shepherd said.

At the moment, the executive dirccor's most important task is to ask the government for a five-year extension on the loan and an additional $900,000 to allow the agency to operate and pay interest on the existing loan for that period.

Shepherd said obtaining federal funds will not be easy, particularly because of the agency's history of nonaccomplishment. "We will have to have a solid, financially feasible plan for development and a developer who can really come through," he said. "We will have to prove to the government that we can really complete development of Marin City in five years or we won't get the money," he said.

To get the funds, about $300,000 will be needed from local sources. And Shepherd is hopeful some of the local agencies which made promises in 1958 will fulfill them in 1971. The only alternative, he said, is to ask for the money from the county which is already heavily burdened with financial problems and high taxes. "I don't want to have to go to the county," Shepherd stressed.

"I have been told over and over that no private developer would be interested in coming into Marin City," Shepherd said. "But I am finding out this is not true."

Whatever group is chosen, it will have to work closely with the redevelopment agency in convincing the federal government that the additional $900,000 sought will be well spent and result in real development in Marin City. "We have to prove to them we can do it this time," Shepherd said. "This is our last chance."

Finding the right developer may be the key to the entire problem. The lack of a developer who could make real progress in developing Marin City has hampered agency efforts in the past. For seven years the California Development Co. was the community's official developer, but the firm — after obtaining six agency extensions — left Marin City much as it found it — undeveloped.

At present, the Marin Urban Development Association MUDA, a group of Marin City residents, is seeking to become the community's official developer. The association already has obtained tentative approval from the housing authority and redevelopment agency boards, but Shepherd said no contracts will be signed until the association is approved by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The Marin City-based group is asking the redevelopment agency for a one-year contract to give it time to prepare complete development plans and studies showing its proposals are practical and economically sound.

Although Shepherd said he was not opposed to having the association as the community's developer, he would like to see any prospective developer come up with precise plans and financial studies before a contract is granted.

"If at the end of a year, MUDA does not come through — for any reason — the agency will have spent another $108,000 (for administration and interest costs) and accomplished nothing," he explained. "We cannot afford that."

Recently, several private developers have expressed interest in coming into Marin City, according to the executive director. Three of them — O'Donoghue Investment Co. of Marin, the Housing Corporation of Hawaii and Kaiser Aetna — will present proposals to the redevelopment agency board at 8 p.m. today in the Manzanita Center.

Shepherd said the O'Donoghue group, which built the Tiburon Hills Housing Project in Tiburon and the San Marin development in Novato, is interested in purchasing all the remaining land in Marin City and completing community development. The Hawaiian firm would like to build low-cost plastic housing in Marin City and a factory to manufacture that housing. And Kaiser Aetna is proposing construction of 110 units of multi-family housing, to be built privately, without federal subsidy.

Commune Ordinance Vote Urged

The Mill Valley Youth Commission, one of two city bodies that opposed an anticommune ordinance adopted last week by the city council, will mount a campaign to put the controversial law to a vote of the people.

Commissioners voted 6-5 to circulate petitions calling for a referendum election on the ordinance, which defines a family as no more than five unrelated persons. Other sections of the Mill Valley zoning ordinance prohibit any but a single family from inhabiting a residence in a single family zone.

Both the youth and planning commissioners asked the council not to enact the measure, but councilmen did so March 1 by a 4-1 vote. It becomes effective March 30.

Youth commissioners set a special meeting for tomorrow at 7:45 p.m. at the public library to discuss the petitions and hear an opinion from City Atty. Leland H. Jordan on legal requirements for the referendum.

Jordan said the youth commission has 30 days from March 1 to file with the Marin County Elections Office a petition bearing the signatures of at least 592 registered voters, 10 per cent of Mill Valley's total.

If the signatures are valid, Jordan said, the council has two options: It may repeal the ordinance outright or call a referendum election, which must be held between 60 and 75 days later.

Assorted hand tools and scales valued at $1,320 were reported stolen last weekend from the Vaculift Co., 1025 Lakeville Highway, Petaluma, police reported.

Another Stabbing At Tense Quentin

One San Quentin inmate was stabbed in the back yesterday and two more suffered cut wounds today in the latest outbreaks of violence at the prison.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that the weapon apparently used to attack a death row inmate on Sunday was found in the cell of the man described as "San Quentin's most dangerous inmate," Leo Estrada Robles.

Injured yesterday was Wayne Dennis Early, 24, who was stabbed in the back three times at about 4 p.m. in the east cell block, according to James W. L. Park, associate warden.

Park said that Early was in good condition today and that prison officials had isolated a man suspected of being responsible for the stabbing. He did not identify the suspect.

Today about 7:40 a.m. two convicts who apparently got into a fight while returning from breakfast were treated for cuts, he said. Frank D. Tubach, 28, had a three-inch cut on his back and Douglas R. Spencer, 26, was treated for cuts on his shoulders.

No weapon was found, Park said. Both men had told officers they were injured.

Meanwhile, yesterday in Marin Superior Court, Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry R. Herman said that a seven-inch bed spring honed down to a sharp point and attached to a broom handle had been found in Robles' cell.

The weapon was believed to be the one used in an attack on death row inmate Million L. McShane, 29, who suffered a puncture wound in his chest but would not say who had assaulted him.

Robles, on trial for his life in superior court, also reportedly tried to stab a guard with a homemade weapon on Thursday.

Robles has been called the meanest man in San Quentin after being convicted of two murders and repeatedly having prison-made weapons taken from him.

He is currently being retried on the penalty phase of a murder case dating from 1967. The jury is expected to start deliberations tomorrow on whether he is to get life imprisonment or death for the murder of a fellow patient in the San Quentin psychiatric ward.

He had earlier been sentenced to death but the sentence was reversed by the California Supreme Court which ruled that the late Judge Harold J. Haley should not have allowed Robles to act as his own attorney.

During his current trial he has threatened to kill his attorney, Deputy Public Defender Edward Briggs, as well as numerous other people.

Arraignment In Pot Case

David Michael Dunbar, 18, and Matthew Martin Hanzlik, 18, both of Novato, were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of possessing marijuana and possession of alcohol by minors.

They are to plead to the charges Monday.

They were arrested Thursday when Novato police stopped their car for an equipment defect and found suspected pot and beer in the car, according to the police.

TV Set Stolen

Refusal For Rev. To Visit Angela Davis 'Misunderstanding'

It was just a "misunderstanding" that caused Rev. Cecil Williams of Glide Memorial Church to be kept from visiting Angela Y. Davis in Marin County Jail, County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney said today.

"It's all been worked out and Miss Davis has the same right as any other jail inmate to see a minister for two hours a week," Maloney said.

He explained that Williams, who has also "visited other jail inmates in the past," was excluded by mistake by jailers who didn't find his name on a special list of persons allowed to see Miss Davis at times other than regular jail visitng hours.

As to the minister's right to be a spiritual adviser to the avowed atheist, "That's out of my ken," Maloney said.

"Even if she's an atheist, maybe she gets some kind of consolation from Williams — or maybe he's trying to convert her — I don't know," Maloney said.

Meanwhile, Miss Davis, accused of conspiracy, murder and kidnapping stemming from the August shoot-out in which Judge Harold J. Haley was killed, was due in court today for her first appearance since she was arraigned on Jan. 5.

The court hearing today was at the request of her attorneys who ask that all future appearances be moved to a facility larger than the 104-seat courtroom in the Hall of Justice which has been used in the past.

The next court date for Miss Davis is next Tuesday at which arguments on several defense motions are scheduled.

Bicycle Rider Hurt In Crash

A 17-year-old Tiburon girl was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for multiple scrapes and bruises after her bicycle collided with an auto on Tiburon Boulevard, Tiburon sheriff's deputies reported.

Officers, who had no details of the accident, said Yvette Vloeberghs, of 5 Linda Vista Avenue, was hurt about 12:40 p.m. when her bike struck a car driven by Emily Aguilar of Tiburon.

Woman Hurt In 101 Crash

A 19-year-old San Rafael woman was injured yesterday at 9 p.m. when her car spun out on Highway 101 a half mile north of the Greenbrae Interchange, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Denise D. Watson, of 222 Coleman Drive, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a scalp wound.

Officers said she was northbound on the freeway when her car ran off the road. No further details of the accident were available.

Hurt In Wreck

Richard Donahue, 22, of 1145 Elm Street, Novato, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for head cuts suffered in an accident Sunday at 9:45 a.m. on Highway 101 at East Washington Street, Petaluma. The California Highway Patrol had no details on the accident.

"When I look at an investment I have several important criteria – one, I want a good return on my investment; two, I want to know my investment is a secure one; and three, I want my money to be accessible. The Savings Counselor at Bell Savings showed me how one of the Golden Passbook Accounts paying 5¾% or 6% interest met all my requirements. In my own case I found the 6% Account worked into my portfolio perfectly. A $5,000 minimum deposit for two years has a yearly return of 6.18% after daily compounding. Marinwood Fireman To Training School

Marinwood Fire Commission members last night approved sending Fireman Kenneth Fowler to a fire officers' training school in Fresno during May.

Fire Chief Gaylord E.Bonfield said the commission also approved purchase of new parts for work needed on the district's fire engines.

Ordinance Wanted On Larger Animals

There's something wrong with a city ordinance that restricts the number of cats, dogs and chickens in a residential area but says nothing of horses, cows and donkeys, the San Anselmo Planning Commission decided last night.

Grabbing the mouse by the ears, commissioners directed Charles R. Leitzell, city engineer and planning director, to draft an amendment controlling larger animals.

Leitzell said today the matter grew out of discussions last night as the commission reviewed the city's zoning ordinance.

"We have situations where the larger animals are almost a public nuisance," he said, adding flies drawn by animals have limited the summertime use of some residents' patios.

Explaining there are strict restrictions on the keeping of chickens, geese and other fowl, and limits to the number of cats and dogs in residential areas, Leitzell said the commission became disturbed by the lack of regulations for larger beasts — mainly horses.

"No more than six cats over the age of eight months may be kept without a permit," he quoted the ordinance as stating and "fowl must be kept in cages." But there is no regulation on the size or condition of lots for the large animals, he added.

The question of raising horses in residential areas is not new to San Anselmo.

"About a year or two ago I brought it up," he said. At that time overgrazing of an area caused silt washed down by rain to plug city storm drains." drains."

He said horse owners protested any restrictions and persuaded the city council to allow them to draft an ordinance controlling animals.

Army Provost Accuses CID Of Hushing PX File

WASHINGTON (UPI) —One of the Army's top policemen testified today that military brass in Washington hushed up reports of questionable activities of former Brig. Gen. Earl F. Cole, who has been accused of undercover dealings involving military service clubs and post exchanges (PXs) in Vietnam.

Brig. Gen. Harley L. Moore, the Army's provost marshal in Europe, told the Senate Investigations Subcommittee that the Criminal Investigations Division (CID) approved in February, 1970, an "abysmally negligent" report on Cole.

Communications from Washington, Moore said, "led us to the inescapable conclusion that we weren't going to get certain major matters from the CID."

The subcommittee has been conducting hearings into alleged corruption in the war zone for three weeks. Cole was in charge of clubs and PXs in Vietnam from 1966 to 1968.

Summoned unexpectedly from the audience, Col. Henry H. Tufts, the CID commander, acknowledged that his agency had a full report on Cole while he was in Vietnam before Cole was moved to Europe as head of the PX system in that area two years ago.

Tufts declined to discuss Cole's assignment to Europe because he said "it is a sensitive matter that gets into the judgment factor" of Gen. William C. Westmoreland, now Army chief of staff, who was U.S. commander in Vietnam at the time Cole was there.

Moore said Cole was busted last summer because he went AWOL (absent without official leave) during a weekend in October, 1969, while assigned to Heidelberg, Germany.

Moore testified that Cole said he had spent the weekend in Frankfurt with a former secretary and "he was in serious trouble as his name was being blackened by various persons" in connection with the Senate investigation.

"Cole stated ... that he met three men in the Frankfurt airport ... (and that) these men offered him $50,000 to take the 5th Amendment and keep his mouth shut'" Moore testified.

That was not fully explained.

Moore said Cole told Army investigators that "someone had taken a shot at him," but Cole refused to disclose even to his commanding officer details about either incident.

Subcommittee staff said it sent the Army a letter Friday contending this information had been withheld from the subcommittee and demanding to know "who made the decision to withhold the fact."

57,040 Trillion BTUs During '70

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Interior Department says the nation used a record 57,040 trillion BTUs of energy last year.

Petroleum accounted for about 43 per cent of the energy used, gas 33 per cent, bituminous coal 20 per cent, water power 4 per cent, anthracite coal 0.3 per cent and nuclear energy 0.3 per cent.

Ross Town Council To Eye Rate Hike

The Ross Town Council, meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. at city hall, will consider a request by Marin Sanitary Service for a garbage rate increase.

Also on the agenda is council discussion of a bill pending before the California Senate to outlaw hitchhiking except at certain "collection points." Councilmen have said they fear Ross's hitchhiking ordinance, similar to the proposed state law, will be declared unconstitutional unless the legislature reinforces it.

Work Sentence On Pot Charge

George Robert Schoenfield, 20, of San Rafael, has been ordered o work four days with a Marin County Public Works crew for his conviction on a misdemeanor charge of possessing marijuana.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court also placed Schoenfield on probation for two years and fined him $25 Friday.

He was arrested Jan. 3 in Sausalito.

Lagunitas Board To Oppose Vote

Supt. Joseph Amato said the board voted to back an assembly bill authored by William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, that would exempt Marin from the state requirement of a unification election.

The Laguinitas School District board also:

DRUG CONFERENCE — Selected Mrs. Glen Twitchell to attend a conference on drug abuse April 16-17 and 23-24 at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of June Moore, a first grade teacher, and Mrs. Lee DiVincenzo, a second grade teacher. Each quit for family reasons.

SENIORITY — Heard a report from Amato that the seven teachers who were hired in September have drawn lots to determine seniority. Those with the worst draw would be the first fired if the state cuts back funding, Amato said.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to closed session to discuss hiring and firing of employees Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at San Geronimo School.

Park School Principal Reassigned

The Mill Valley School District board last night reassigned the principal of Park School to a district administrative post and replaced her with the principal of Homestead School.

Betty Grimm, a principal in the district since 1944 and head of Park School for four years, was named to the newly created post of special assistant in the district.

She will be replaced by Dr. Logan Miles, now principal of Homestead School. He also will serve as supervising principal of Homestead and a vice principal will be hired for that school, the board decided.

Carol Taylor, secretary to Supt. James A. Collins, said principals commonly are reassigned within the district. Miss Grimm will coordinate the reading specialist and remedial reading programs and perform other administrative duties.

Mrs. Taylor said the board voted to fill the post of vice principal at Homestead from within the district.

The Mill Valley School District board also:

QUAKE — Heard that all district schools meet state requirements for earthquake safety.

PROPERTY — Agreed to add a 5,000-square-foot strip of land to the 1.68-acre Harvard Avenue site, which the district is attempting to sell.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted resignations from four teachers now on leave: Sally Rinkreit, Donnalee McIvaine, Mary Cornelius and Lyda Stokes. The board also accepted the resignation of Keith Wilson, teacher at Edna Maguire School, for personal reasons.

EMPLOYMENT — Approved contracts for the rest of the school year for two long-term substitutes at Tamalpais Valley School: Marilyn Carroll, who will receive $3,275 for the rest of the year, and Carmelita Crane, who will receive $3,620.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Dupuytren's Contracture Causes Hands To Close Up Like A Claw

Dupuytren's contracture is a common problem of the hands that affects approximately 5 per cent of the population. Men in their middle and late years of life are usually afflicted. The condition involves the tough sheath of tissue (palmar fascia) that reinforces and strengthens the heavy skin in the hollow of the hand. Fascial tissue extends over the entire palm and into the base of the fingers as far as the second joint.

FOR SOME REASON, the padding slowly degenerates and thickens. Dupuytren's usually begins with a lump (the size of a millet seed) that forms and continues to grow until it reaches the size of a pea. The swelling adheres firmly to the underside of the skin which eventually becomes hardened and puckered. In time, the thickened area extends, forming bands or cords that spread into all parts of the palm like the roots of a tree.

Ultimately the scar tissue extends over the metacarpal bones and into the base of the fingers. Contractures soon pull on the small and fourth fingers which curl inwards until the tips almost rest on the palm. At this stage, the condition becomes disabling and unsightly. The involved area often is tender to the touch and occasionally the hands ache.

THE CAUSE OF Dupuytren's contracture is not known, although heredity may play a role. A sufficient number of the victims are heavy drinkers and diabetics suggesting that the contracture is a manifestation of a chronic nerve disorder (neuropathy). But the majority of sufferers are otherwise healthy.

Injury is frequently blamed because the initial manifestations are mistaken for thickened, callouslike nodules. The objection to this theory is that many sufferers are professional people, not manual laborers. Using the hands may aggravate the tenderness.

Surgery is the only cure. Many surgeons recommend early removal of the thickened palmar tissue because the results are better. Others suggest waiting until pain or contractures of the fingers are causing severe disability.

HER JOINTS CRACK

D. R. writes: When my 14-year-old daughter crosses her legs, her joints crack. Her teacher says she lacks fluid. Could these fluids be replaced?

REPLY

No. The noise stems from the fibrous capsule of the joint cartilage or the membrane linking of the joints. The knees should be X-rayed and if there are no visible defects, the physician may strap the joints to minimize bending until all signs of irritation disappear.

10 HOURS SLEEP

Y.T. writes: My 23-year-old daughter sleeps 10 hours every night. On days off, she sleeps all day. Is this a sign of a starved thyroid?

REPLY

Some people require more physical sleep than others. If a physical disorder is suspected, this girl should consult a physician. An insufficient amount of thyroid secretion could be the answer.

ENLARGED LYMPH GLANDS

E.G. writes: Why do various glands in the body enlarge when an infection develops?

REPLY

Because the glands filter out the poisons that result from an infection. For example, glands in the armpit enlarge when infection occurs in a finger.

Today's Health Hint — There is nothing wrong with a fat person that losing weight will not help.

Signatures Short On Initiative

Only 489 signatures were filed in Marin by yesterday's first deadline to qualify a tough air pollution control initiative for a statewide vote this year, the elections office reported.

A similar measure failed to qualify for the 1970 ballot, but got 4,699 signatures in Marin by the first deadline. More than one-third of the signatures that time were disqualified for failure to match voter records.

To get on the ballot this yaar, 317,000 valid signatures of registered voters will be needed. The campaign by the People's Lobby, a Los Angeles-based organization, now will have a 60-day extension to gather the needed signatures.

The new initiative would phase out leaded gasoline by 1976, set standards on other gasoline contaminants, shut down polluters until they install standby control equipment, sharply limit variances, ban new coastal drilling, ban persistent chlorinated hydrocarbons and increase fines.

Sainthood Urged For Father Serra

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —The State Senate Monday urged Pope Paul VI to confer sainthood on Father Junipero Serra, who founded California's first Spanish missions in the late 18th Century.

The Senate sent the resolution to the Assembly, where a similar measure was killed last year on grounds it violated the separation of church and state.

Innocent Pleas To Kickbacks

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Sgt. Maj. William D. Wooldridge, formerly the Army's top ranked enlisted man, and four other men pleaded innocent Monday to conspiring to defraud noncommissioned officers' clubs in Vietnam.

U. S. District Court Judge Warren J. Ferguson did not set a trial date but he did give the defense and the government until July 13 to present and answer pretrial motions.

The others entering innocent pleas were M. Sgt. William Higdon, Sgt. 1. C. William Bagby, and two retired Army noncommissioned officers, Narvaez Hatcher and Theodore Bass.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Donald Fareed said another retired sergeant, Seymour Lazar, was a fugitive in Stuttgart, West Germany. He also said two civilian defendants, Clifford Terhune and his wife, Irene, were fugitives in England and have refused to return here.

All were charged with conspiring from 1965 to 1969 to defraud the government through bribes and kickbacks and falsification of records.

They also were accused of overpayment of supplies bought from Marmed Inc., of Fullerton, Calif. That firm was indicted but was not represented in court because of the fugitive status of its president, Lazar.

Wooldridge, now stationed at White Sands Missile Range, N. M., appeared before the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee in 1969. He invoked the Fifth Amendment 105 times in refusing to answer questions about Army clubs.

The Army did not prosecute him on grounds it lacked sufficient evidence to sustain convictions but he and the others were indicted by a federal grand jury here.

Alioto Brings Look Into His Fee Case

SEATTLE (UPI) —San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto seems to be combining his battles against Look Magazine and against charges of fee-splitting irregularities in Washington State.

Hours before he was to testify here before the grand jury probe into his fee-splitting arrangement with former Washington Attorney General John O'Connell, his lawyers submitted a series of questions to Look's publishers bringing that issue into his $12.5 million libel suit against Look Magazine.

The federal grand jury probe reopened today. The jury is investigating how and why O'Connell and his aide, George Faler, shared $530,000 of Alioto's $2.3 million fee paid for Alioto's representing the state and 15 public utilities in anti-trust price-fixing suit.

Both men appeared last month before the jury while Faler was in Switzerland. He has since returned.

O'Connell had hired Alioto, then a practicing attorney, and Faler to work on the pricing cases against electrical equipment manufacturers. The state won a $16 million settlement and Alioto was given a $2.3 million fee.

The state has sued to recover the entire legal fee on grounds it was never informed of either the raising of Alioto's fee from an announced $1 million nor the sharing with O'Connell and Faler. Democrats Alioto and O'Connell charge that high Republican officials are behind the probe.

The libel suit sprang from a September, 1969, article in Look which said Alioto was "enmeshed in a web of alliances" with leaders of the Mafia.

A first trial of the suit ended in a hung jury, divided 8-4 in favor of Look, over the question of whether malice was involved. A second trial is scheduled for next December.

The questions put forth by Alioto in federal court asked whether, prior to Sept. 9, 1969—about the time of the Look article—there had been a visit to Look headquarters by Henry Petersen, chief of the organized crime and racketeering unit of the Justice Department.

Reed Candidate To Attend Fund-Raiser

A fund-raising dinner for Margaret Jones, candidate for one of two seats on the Reed Union School District board, will be held at 6:30 p.m. Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Welsh, of 270 Round Hill Road, Tiburon.

Mrs. Jones is one of five candidates running for two positions on the Reed Board in addition to one recall seat. The dinner will be sponsored by the Committee to Elect Margaret Jones. Reservations may be made by calling the Welsh home.

Next Hot Spell: The Year 2000

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Anyone hoping for a warming in the general climate might just have to be patient until the year 2000.

According to Michigan State University geology professor Maynard A. Miller, the world is experiencing a cold spell that should last for some 30 years.

Miller, head of MSU's Glasciological and Arctic Environment Institute, says a historical study of the world's climate shows 90-year cycles of cold-hot weather followed by warm-dry weather.

The world is back into a 45-year cycle where the general climate is becoming colder and wetter, Miller says. A progressively warmer, drier period peaked around 1958.

Council Due Library's New Plan

The San Rafael Library Board last night reviewed a $711,000 expansion plan for the city library which will be presented next week to the city council.

The plan, by the Consulting Organization of San Francisco, would expand the library from its present 10,800 square feet to 23,770 square feet. It would include demolition of the original Carnegie Library structure — the portion fronting Fifth Avenue — to make possible better use of space by replacing its high-ceilinged room with one extending nearer to the avenue, designed so another story could be added sometime after 1985.

The city council will review the plan with the library board at a special meeting March 17 at 7:45 p.m. in the children's room of the library.

Donald R. Hegstrom, managing director of the Consulting Organization, recommended in his report that funds for the addition be acquired by a temporary addition to the city library tax, which is now 12 cents per $100 assessed valuation. However, this would delay expansion for some years. Raising the tax to 22½ cents — the rate now charged in the county library district — would produce $143,850 per year, based on last year's assessed valuation figures.

Another possible means of financing the proposed expansion would be a bond issue.

Leak Admitted From Alioto's Spy Charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Justice Department said today an FBI agent was a source of government information for a Look Magazine article linking San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto with the Mafia. The agent was "disciplined" and he retired.

William H. Rehnquist, assistant attorney general in the Office of Legal Counsel, reported to the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights the results of an investigation ordered by Attorney General John N. Mitchell after Alioto charged in testimony March 3 before the subcommittee that eight federal, state and local law enforcemen agencies have provided confidential information about him to the co-authors of the article.

The mayor has filed a $12.5 million libel suit against Look.

"Because of the seriousness of (Alioto's) charges," Rehnquist said, Mitchell had immediately queried FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, Director John E. Ingersoll, of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, and Commissioner Raymond F. Farrell of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

He also said Henry Petersen, deputy asistant attorney general for the Criminal Division and former chief of the Organized Crime Section, contacted Rehnquist about a meeting he had with the magazine's editorial board just before publication of the Alioto article.

Petersen told Rehnquist the purpose of the meeting was "in connection of Look Magazine reporting about organized crime, and had nothing to do with Look's article about Mayor Alioto. The FBI reported that after Alioto filed his libel suit, "it received information that one of its San Francisco agents had been a source of data for the controversial article," he said.

"The agent acknowledged that he had been in contact with one of the co-authors of the article and had on various occasions given and confirmed information that appears in the article," he said.

"At no time were official files of the FBI furnished to Look, and the agent's disclosures and confirmations of information were not made with FBI or other Department of Justice authorization."

Records of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, according to Rehnquist, "do show that one of the co-authors of the Look article and an investigator for the magazine attempted to obtain information from its San Francisco office. No information was given."

The Bureau of Narcotics reported that four exhibits introduced in the first trial on Alioto's libel charges had originated with its predecessor bureau, the Federal Bureau of Narcotics.

"There is no indication of how these reports were released," Rehnquist said.

Rehnquist noted that it has been established practice for the Bureau of Narcotics to make its reports available to state and local law enforcement agencies "who have a legitimate interest in their contents."

All Frazier Wants Is Apology After Thundering Win

Unanimous Decision Over Ali

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) —Victory and vindication —now there's only one more thing that Smokin' Joe Frazier wants from Muhammad Ali, the man he conquered.

"I want him to come to me and apologize for all those things he said about me before the fight."

One thing Ali said over and over again was that Smokin' Joe wasn't the "real champion," but that's exactly what the left-hooking Philadelphian is today as the result of his 15-round unanimous decision over Ali in as savage a no-quarter bout as the ring has seen in recent years.

Frazier now is the real champion —and as the undefeated winner over a champ who had been undefeated, flooring him once in the 15th round, he ranks up there with the greats of heavyweight boxing history — with Dempsey, Louis, Marciano, Tunney.

And there were two places for Frazier to go today —into retirement, or into a return bout with Ali, possibly in Los Angeles. As of right now, the 26-year-old Frazier hasn't decided. His handlers want him to quit.

"I want him to retire," said manager Yancey "Yank" Durham. "He's won enough, and he's taken enough punishment."

"I'll have to talk about it with Yank," said Frazier. "But I do have to live a little. I've been working for 10 years now, and it's time for a little rest."

But then, asked about a rematch, Frazier said through swollen lips:

"I'd give him a rematch anytime, but I don't think he wants one."

As for Ali, he wasn't saying much of anything. He was taken hurriedly from Madison Square Garden at the end of the bout to Flower-Fifth Ave. Hospital for X-Rays of his right jaw, which ballooned when he was floored by a Frazier left hook for the only knockdown of the fight in the 15th round.

The X-ray findings were not announced immediately, but he left the hospital after 40 minutes and indications were he had suffered a blood clot and not a fracture.

Some of Ali's handlers were bitterly convinced Muhammad could whip Frazier in a return bout. One of them, Chris Dundee, hinted Ali refused to follow the ring tactics his handlers had urged on him.

"We didn't want him to fight that kind of a fight," said Dundee, "but that's the way he wanted it. All I can say is he showed a lot of heart."

The "battle of champions", which was watched by 20,455 in the Garden and perhaps 300,000,000 around the world by television, was a fight that turned several times.

It began with Ali, resplendent in red trunks and white boxing shoes with red tassels, outboxing Frazier at long range, whacking him with head punches, taunting him, and mugging to the crowd that he wasn't hurt whenever Frazier did manage to get inside for a punch.

Frazier did work inside for the third and fourth rounds, even though Clay continued to wave contemptuously after his best shots. From the fifth through the 10th it was Ali in charge again, using his four-inch greater height and six-inch longer reach to land three, four, five times as many punches as he took. He strutted, he yakked at Frazier, he played games with that longer reach.

But then the legend of Ali began to fade in the 11th with a

Frazier Aides Want Retirement

Joe Wants To Think About It

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joe Frazier may have had a few songs in his heart, but he wasn't singing any for his own victory party after demolishing Cassius Clay.

Everyone, including Joe's wife, Jo Netta, and his manager Yank Durham, agreed that Joe's victory over Clay should be his last fight.

"I'll just go back to Philadelphia, wait a few months, think things over and then decide what to do next," Frazier said. "I'm not tired now but it's just all the pressure is relieved and it makes me feel weak."

He slumped on a chair in the kitchen in the Statler Hilton Hotel, trying to escape the crowd that had pressed around him. He sipped on a glass of water through his swollen jaw and peered from behind dark glasses that helped hide the swelling around his eyes.

In the other room, Duke Ellington's band blared out another tune and Joe's friends danced. However, Mrs. Frazier sat at a table signing autographs and hoped her husband would quit.

She has never liked him fighting, and she likes it even less when he is on the road with his band "because it takes him away so long. I'd rather have him fight because at least he's home when he's not training."

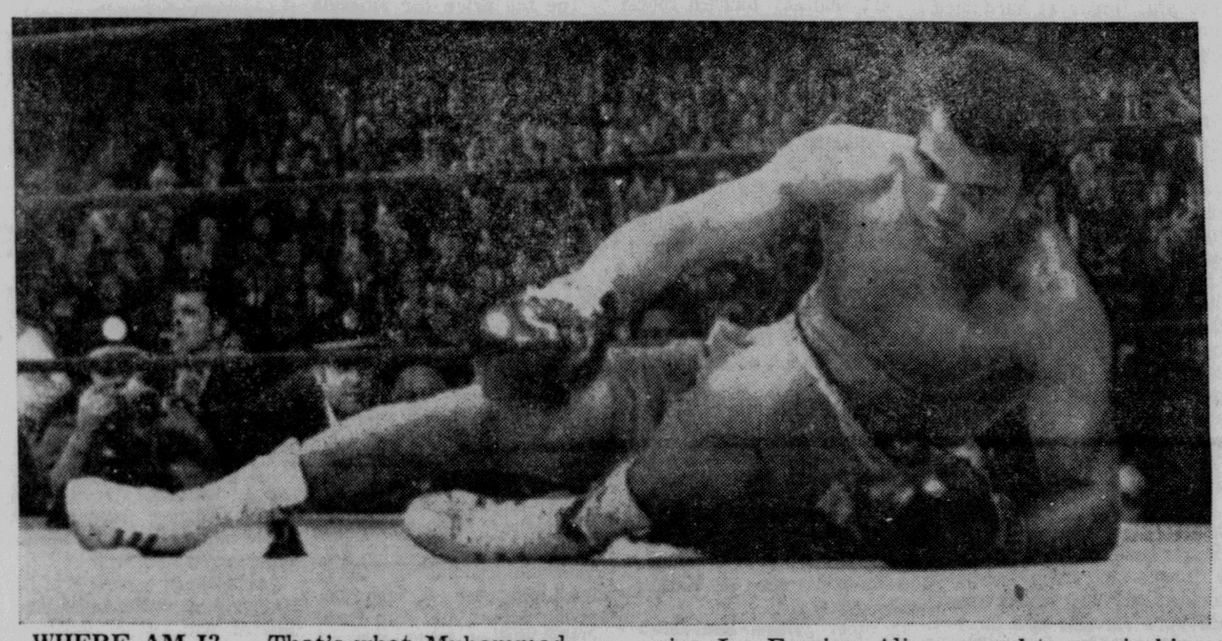
Durham also said he would like to see Frazier quit.

"He's done enough," Durham said. "He's been monkeying around this game for 12 years and that's enough for any man. But if he doesn't want to quit, I'll be with him the next time he fights."

Even Joe's sparring partners, Billy Williams Ken Norton, and some of his close friends also said they wanted to see him retire.

"He took more punches out there than Clay did," said Williams, who has been Frazier's sparring partner for four years. "I really think that should be his last fight."

However, Frazier said he will take his time in making a decision and didn't even like discussing the topic of retirement. After a few minutes at the party, he returned to his motel.



WHERE AM I? — That's what Muhammad Ali appears to be saying after being knocked down with a crushing left hook in 15th round of his heavyweight fight with world champion Joe Frazier. Ali managed to regain his feet and finish the fight, but was declared the unanimous loser by decision.

(UPI Telephoto)

Not Going To Cry, Says Subdued Ali

NEW YORK (UPI)—A very subdued Muhammad Ali lay on his bed at the Hotel New Yorker this morning and said, "I'm not going to cry."

"I made a lot of people unhappy when I beat them...so it's my time now. I'm not going to cry. A lot of great fighters get whipped."

However, the uncommonly subdued Ali was angered but not at Frazier. He was angry he said because "I make 2 1-2 million dollars on this fight but of that $1,500,000 goes on taxes, $348,000 goes to the city of New York, and then there's another $255,000 for training expenses. How much does that leave me?"

Ali, who admitted that the man he was going to whip was "a good man" still thought "I won most of the rounds on points."

But he said he wasn't going to argue with the decision.

"This is not an excuse but I've been off three and a half years. I wasn't supposed to handle him that easy."

Ali conceded that Frazier could hit and he said the one that caught him in the 15th round was a hard punch.

"No one can hit as hard as Frazier. I saw that hook coming in the 15th round and I'd figure I'd ride with it. But it was hard. I don't remember falling. Boom, just that quick. But one, two I was up quick as well."

When asked if he wanted a rematch with Frazier, Ali said at first, "It's up to the public. It's up to him (Frazier.)"

But when pressed later on by his brother Rahman he said, "Ya," he would like a rematch.

TURNAWAY CROWDS IN BAY AREA

Fans Leave Broken Windows Behind

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Turnaway crowds to the Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier closed circuit telecast tried to storm closed gates and broke windows in their frustration Monday night.

More than 35,000 fans packed into four auditoriums in San Francisco, Oakland and Richmond to watch the heavyweight championship bout. The Cow Palace in San Francisco drew the largest crowd at 10,927. Some 10,500 turned out at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena.

Fans unable to buy tickets to the sold-out telecasts tried to rush past ticket takers but were mainly repulsed by security guards at the Cow Palace and Richmond Auditorium.

"The kids broke a few windows and we took a couple in custody," said a security spokesman at the Cow Palace.

Approximately 18 persons were arrested for disturbing the peace and vandalism.

"A few people tried to shove their way through...some windows were broken, but nothing serious," said a spokesman for the Richmond police. He added "less than half a dozen" persons were arrested.

Between 6,000 and 7,000 persons viewed the telecast at the Richmond Auditorium while an estimated 6,500 watched the 15-rounder at Winterland in San Francisco.

Millions See Fight Throughout World

By United Press International

Behold, the sports fan.

He got up before the sun in Europe and he stood in lines blocks long to get an unreserved ticket at Radio City. He rampaged in Chicago and he gawked at celebrities in New York. He was a conqueror of space and he once ran for president.

He braved freezing cold to watch or to picket. He paid outrageous scalper's prices and, if he was lucky and lived in Texas' Rio Grande Valley, he watched for free.

The object of his attention was the heavyweight championship fight between Joe Frazier and Muhammad Ali at Madison Square Garden in New York, which Frazier won in 15 rounds.

A total of 20,455 saw the fight live, but millions more saw it via closed circuit television across the country and the world. It was televised through the use of 26 earth stations and our satellites to Europe, Asia and South Africa.

Some who thought they would see it, didn't.

A Faulty projector at Chicago Coliseum canceled the scheduled closed circuit telecast. The manager apologized and told the 7,000 fans to check their newspaper for news on refunds, but the crowd did not like it.

"We want it now, we want it now," they chanted. Windows and chairs were broken and the front door of the coliseum and box office was smashed. Three persons were arrested on

Many Hits But A's Still Lose

MESA, Ariz. (UPI)—The Oakland A's take a 2-2 record into today's Cactus League action with the Chicago Cubs.

The A's banged out 10 hits Monday, but still fell in a wild 8-6 affair to San Diego, which has won three in a row.

Dick Green banged an Oakland homer and added a single and Don Mincher and outfielder Angel Mangual had two hits apiece and Steve Hovley banged a two-run pinch single.

Bobby Locker was the only one of four A's pitchers who seemed able to get anybody out, but the A's still might have won it had not Reggie Jackson and Mangual let a routine looking fly ball fall between them for a key double.

Contract Renewed

Novato Baseballers Win; Drake Loses

Jeff DeRecat and Randy Jackson, who learned the fundamentals of baseball in the Novato Little League, combined talents yesterday to lead Novato High School to a 4-3 victory over Berkeley High in a non-league game at Novato.

In the only other game played by a Marin County Athletic League school yesterday, Drake bowed to St. Ignatius of San Francisco, 5-2, at San Anselmo.

As if that no-no mound performance weren't enough, DeRecat also drove in two runs with a triple and a double.

Jackson, meanwhile, drove in what proved to be the winning runs with a two-run single in the fifth inning. Then his defensive talents saved the day for Novato in the top of the seventh when, with the potential Berkeley tying run at third base with only one out, he leaped to grab a line drive and touched third to complete a double play that ended the game.

It was Novato's second victory without defeat.

Over in San Anselmo, Coach Dick Creighton of Drake continued his liberal substitution policy in the loss to S.I. "We're going to use everybody in these preseason games," said Creighton, "and by the time league play starts we'll be a strong contender."

Highlight for Drake was a sensational defensive play by second baseman Dave Ortez who made a diving, somersault catch of a short fly ball into rightfield that ended a bases-loaded rally by S.I. That in itself earned Ortez an audition with the Barnum & Bailey Circus.

Drake now has a 1-1 won-lost record.

A Good Day For Lanier And Fuentes

PHOENIX (UPI)—That old San Francisco Giants keystone combination of Hal Lanier and Tito Fuentes may be around for a while after all.

The Giants have a crop of hot rookies trying to win the second base and shortstop jobs but Lanier and Fuentes played smooth defense and led the hitting attack Monday in a 7-5 win over the Lotte Orions of Tokyo.

The win squared the Giants' Cactus League record at 2-2 while the Orions have lost four in a row by two runs apiece. Last year in Japan, the Orions won three out of five.

The Japanese visitors hit Juan Marichal and Skip Pitlock well and went into the sixth leading 5-3.

But then some big hitting by Lanier, Fuentes and Ken Henderson got the Giants out in front and Jim Barr, a youngster from USC, worked three innings, gave up but two singles, and got the win.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

Things are sure tough! The striped bass have been hard to come by, sturgeon have been pretty scarce too; and over the weekend the salmon were only half heartedly cooperative.

AND A friend of mine is having his woes, too. This friend (a bashful type) recently oiled and cleaned his guns for the season, put them away in his gun locker, and then the "worst" hit! His darned cat, named Pasquale, got into the gun locker, decided the guns didn't smell outdoorsey enough, so proceeded to give them a treatment of his own!

Then to top this off, my friend suddenly noticed that his skull boat oar was missing. This was and still is a catastrophe! The last place he used the oar was out on Tomales Bay during the week of the close of the Black Sea Brant season Feb. 21. In loading the gear and boat at Nick's Cove, he put the oar up on the rock wall next to the launching ramp, then drove away, forgetting it!

So if you happen to find or know something about this "lost piece of art," please contact me and I'll be glad to pick up the oar. It's an old beat up skull boat oar, but to my friend, it is worth its weight in gold! I'm sure we can make a good deal, and you can really raise the spirits of this fellow who has a strong sentimental feeling for the old oar.

THE STRIPERS? Where are they? It looks like the lack of rain has caused the fish to make their spawning migration just a little earlier than usual. Unless it's just that the water is so cold from the snow runoffs that they are not hitting.

Saturday, I checked three bass out by Corrigidor in San Pablo Bay for about 20 boats. Some of the fellows had from five to ten big flounders, and a few had a redtailed perch or so in their catches. But things would have to be considered slow.It was reported better out by the S. P. Buoy which is between the Pumphouse and Pt. Richmond. One boat reported having eight bass.

BOB WILSON of Woodacre gave it a go on Sunday. He caught one sturgeon — maybe a 40 pounder, three flounders, an 18-inch bass, and one perch, fishing below the Richmond Bridge. He said things were slow. The good weather along with excellent outgoing tides should have produced a top fishing weekend.

SUNDAY, ABOUT 200 boats were out for salmon, fishing generally in the lightship area. I'd say all of the boats took fish, though there were lots of shakers noted. The weather was great, and lots of small boats were out there in company with the party boats. Fred DeVita of Fairfax reported taking five salmon with a friend, but nothing big. That's the way it seemed to go.

I NEGLECTED to mention last week that though the steelhead season closed Feb. 28 in the Papermill Creek tidewaters at Pt. Reyes Station, the fish did hit during that last week. The fish had been staying in the bay off Inverness because the dry spell has made the spawning areas of Papermill Creek almost inaccessible to the fish because of lack of water flows. The small rains started the fish up, and about 30 fresh-run fish were taken. It saved what was considered to be a tough year.

Incidentally if you catch a steelhead in Tomales Bay or San Francisco Bay, you can still legally keep it. The carp are open the year around.

Defenseman Redmond Joins Seals

OAKLAND (UPI)—Young defenseman Dick Redmond will be in the uniform of the Calipornia Golden Seals when they host Boston Wednesday night.

They also sold stubby defenseman Wayne Muloin to the North Stars for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Coach Fred Glover called Redmond, 21, an offensive-minded defenseman who "can move the puck out of his own end, has a good shot, maneuverability and lots of assets."

Redmond, younger brother of Detroit's Mickey, was Minnesota's first draft two seasons ago.

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER

I know, some of the best bowlers on television appear to be off-balance after they've let the ball go. But a smooth, sure finish still is preferred. Some of the stars became good in spite of their hopping at the foul line, but they might have been even better if they smoothed out their approach. Work on your delivery until you can deliver the ball and hold your position without fear of toppling.

UCLA Advantage If There's A Tie

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA Monday won a coin flip and will be the host team to the University of Southern California if a playoff game is necessary to decide the Pacific-8 basketball title.

The Bruins face USC Saturday and a Trojan victory would make a Monday playoff necessary, since both teams would be tied for the Pac-8 crown. Only the conference winner is allowed to participate in post-season tourney play.

Spellman Leading In Singles

Spellman rolled a 636 scratch series in singles, and with his 52-pin handicap came out with 688. The Horvath-Robertson doubles team rolled 1182 scratch, had 136 pins of handicap and a 1318.

The Roto-Rooter team took a commanding lead in the team competition, a 3251 scratch score, 64-pin handicap, and 3315 total. All Events leader is John Busse, 1924 (66) and 1990.

The tournament winds up next weekend, singles and doubles being rolled at Nave Lanes near Ignacio, and team event at Greenbrae Lanes.

thunderous left hook, the Frazier trade mark, that staggered Ali and left him to box his way to safety for the rest of the round. After that there were no more taunts, no more mugging, even though Ali came back strong in the 14th.

And in the opening minute of the 15th came the crusher — another booming left hook that dumped Ali on his back in a neutral corner. Ali rolled up quickly and was off the floor at "four" to take the rest of the eight-count standing. Suddenly the right side of his face ballooned, and he had nothing left. He finished, but at the end he was sobbing with helplessness and pain on the ring ropes.

Frazier had the last laugh. As the final bell tolled, Frazier threw both fists in the air shouted, "Ha-Ha," and went to his corner.

Frazier was battered, so much so that he couldn't sing at his victory party in a hotel later. He had bled from the nose and mouth, and his right eye and right jaw were swollen.

Frazier was willing to pay tribute to Ali for his courage.

"He took some punch," said Frazier. "The shot I hit him with in the 15th, I had to go all the way home for."

But he thinks Ali should pay some kind of tribute to him, too.

"I didn't make him crawl across the ring to me on his knees," said Frazier, referring to what Ali said he'd do if he lost. "But I do want him to apologize.

"Before the fight he said to me, 'I'm going to kill you, nigger.' He underestimated me. He thought I was flatfooted and slow, but I showed him."

Ali had outweighed Frazier, 215 to 205 1-2. But he trailed in the important figures — the votes of the two judges and the referee. Referee Arthur Mercante scored it 8-6-1 for Frazier, judge Artie Aidala had it 9-6, and judge Bill Recht saw it more lopsided, 11-4.

It was the 27th victory in 27 fights for Frazier, and the first loss in 32 fights for Ali. His defeat left Floyd Patterson still the only former heavyweight champion who came back to win the title —and Patterson did not have a 3 1-2-year absence from the ring in between.

Warriors Host The Celtics

OAKLAND (UPI)—If the San Francisco Warriors and Boston have a close battle tonight at the Oakland Coliseum, it will be the exception rather than the rule.

The two teams figure about dead even and are 2-2 against each other this season. But all four games have been lop-sided ones.

Nor does the home court seem to matter. The Warriors won by 38 at Boston and the Celts waltzed 129-99 in their last meeting here.

San Francisco is coming off a win over tough Baltimore and has forward Bob Portman back in the starting lineup. He broke a bone in his hand last month, but played well against the Bullets.

One good thing that happened to the Warriors Tuesday night was Milwaukee's 104-99 win over Seattle. That shoved both Seattle and San Diego 3 1-2 games back of the Warriors in the struggle for a playoff berth.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Tough Luck Singer Hopes To Rebound

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Bill Singer hopes to point a scornful finger at hard luck today —the same finger he broke last August.

The hard-throwing, 26-year-old righthander of the Los Angeles Dodgers suffered through injury and illness in 1970. He became a casualty last spring when stricken with hepatitis and subsequently missed 52 games of the regular season.

He came back long enough to pitch a no-hitter against the Philadelphia Phillies on July 20 and compile an 8-5 record before a pitch in August broke the index finger of his throwing hand and finished him for the year.

The resident of Diamond Bar, Calif. managed to stay healthy in 1969, when he won 20 and lost 12.

Singer hopes to take the first step back to his 20-game-winning form when he faces the New York Yankees in a three-inning stint at Vero Beach, Fla. Singer reported the finger felt fine after pitching batting practice last week.

Don Pavletich got back at his old ball club Monday when he lofted a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the eighth inning to give the Boston Red Sox a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. It was the third straight Grapefruit League loss for the National League champions.

Art Shamsky touched rookie left-hander Phil Meyer for a two-run home run in the eighth inning to lift the New York Mets to a 3-1 win over the Phillies. Jim McAndrew, Charlie Williams and Tug McGraw worked for the Mets and held Philadelphia to eight hits.

Fine fielding by centerfielder Bobby Murcer and third baseman John Ellis helped the Yankees preserve a 2-1 triumph over the Atlanta Braves. Murcer robbed Hank Aaron of an extra-base hit with a runner on second base in the first inning and Ellis made a backhanded stab of a shot by Felix Millan with the bases loaded and two out in the second.

Joe Hague hammered home four runs with a homer and single as the St. Louis Cardinats swamped the Kansas City Royals, 11-7.

In other games, San Diego edged Oakland, 8-6, San Francisco beat Lotte Orions of Japan, 7-5, Milwaukee tipped California 4-3, the Chicago Cubs whipped Cleveland, 6-3, Houston nipped Montreal, 2-1, Pittsburgh trounced Detroit, 9-3, Washington squeaked by Baltimore 4-3, and the Chicago White Sox clubbed Minnesota, 6-2.

Dolphins Sign Theismann; West Out Of Hospital

MIAMI (UPI)—The Miami Dolphins signed Notre Dame quarterback Joe Theismann to a contract Monday, but didn't announce the terms.

"We reached an agreement with Theissman on his contract. The negotiations were brief and to the point and the terms are satisfactory to both sides," said Dolphin managing partner Joe Robbie.

Coach Don Shula said he felt Theismann would "fit in well with what we want to accomplish with the Dolphins."

Basketball

NEW YORK (UPI)—Lew Alcindor, a vital cog in the Milwaukee Bucks' record-setting machine, continues as the National Basketball Association's leading scorer, according to figures released Monday by the league office.

Alcindor, who leads the league both in total points — with 2,344 —and in per-game scoring average —31.3 —helped the Bucks establish an NBA consecutive game winning streak of 19 last week. The Bucks downed Detroit, 108-95, on March 5 to break the record of 18 straight set by the New York Knicks in 1969-70.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) —Jerry West of the Los Angeles Lakers was released from Centinela Valley Hospital Monday six days after undergoing surgery for a torn ligament in his right knee.

The injury suffered at Buffalo last Tuesday night will cause West to miss the National Basketball Association playoffs. His leg will be in a cast for six weeks.

Auto Racing

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Richard Petty won the Richmond 500 stock car race Sunday, but Bobby Isaac's second-place finish kept him slightly ahead of Petty in the NASCAR Grand National point standings.

In standings released Monday, Isaac has 543 points to 534 for Petty, 512 for James Hylton, 467 for Elmo Langley and 460 for Benny Parsons. Petty is top in winnings with $64,765, to $21,165 for Isaac.

A projector in Duluth, Minn., blew up four minutes before the fight was to begin. The capacity crowd of 2,300 heard the fight but could not see it. They will get their money back.

The top price for ringside seats was $150 but there were reports of scalpers selling tickets for $500 or more. More than 600 persons paid $150 each to attend a Democratic fund-raising dinner in New York and watch a closed circuit telecast.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., the son of former heavyweight champion Gene Tunney, attended as did former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg, Ethel Kennedy, the widow of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and entertainers Frank Sinatra, Andy Williams, Robert Goulet and Deborah Kerr.

The Apollo 14 astronauts were at ringside as guests of Mayor John V. Lindsay. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., former vice president and Democratic presidential candidate, walked almost unnoticed through the Garden crowd, but the fans quickly noticed fried chicken King Col. Harland Sanders.

Singer Bing Crosby decided to watch the telecast at Radio City rather than go to ringside, because he said it "would be a better way to see it."

Celebrity watching and fashion shows were almost as important as the fight. Diana Ross, former lead singer of the Supremes, caused a minor disturbance by showing up in black velvet hot pants and Walt Frazier's the New York Knicks' basketball star, was attired in mod clothes topped off with a wide-brimmed "Clyde" hat.

About 200 youths stormed barricades after a false report that Ali had knocked out Joe Frazier. Other youths tried to get inside and at one point almost overturned an automobile. Police on horseback and on foot regained order after making arrests.

Inside, an unidentified man died of an apparent heart attack.

Prices for the closed circuit telecast varied from city to city with the top being $30 at the Washington Hilton where a capacity crowd of 2,500 watched. Several persons in Washington bought the same ticket—a phoney made from a photostat copy of ticket number 00943.

Most promoters around the country reported sell-out crowds.

"Dollarwise, this is the biggest fight I have ever promoted in 25 years in the business," said Mike London, an Albuquerque, N.M., fight promoter.

Promoters in New England expected to gross $1 million on the venture. Dozens turned away in Honolulu tried to crash the gates and punched a guard, but were kept out.

Persons living near the Mexican border in Texas were able to watch the fight for free from a television station in Monterrey in Northern Mexico. The station had gotten the telecast from Independencia Mexicana Network in Mexico City which bought the rights.

JUST PRIDE

Clay's Jaw Not Broken

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cassius Clay's battered, swollen face wasn't "pretty" today but at least he had one consolation after losing his world heavyweight championship.

His jaw, which was badly bruised when Joe Frazier decked him in the 15th round, apparently isn't broken.

Ali was rushed to a hospital immediately after the fight for a 40-minute examination and the flamboyant showman skipped the mass press conference that was set up after the fight.

Although Ali, who's always had the first and last word throughout his career, was making no statements, a spokesman in his camp said that X rays taken of the jaw proved negative.

"He'll be up and ready to go again tomorrow," the spokesman said. "He went back to his hotel room from the hospital and went to sleep after having some orange juice and ice cream."

Clay, who's always bragged that his face has been unmarked and "pretty" throughout his career, was obviously marked this time and he seemed subdued after suffering his first loss in the ring.

A security man at the hospital said that Ali, "didn't say a word, not a sound." And a nurse at the hospital said, "for a man of his size, he was very badly shaken."

But Ali, who had predicted himself a winner in the sixth round on the closed circuit TV before the fight, still hadn't completely lost his showmanship. He winked and smiled to the crowd as he got into the car en route to the hospital.

And when Drew "Bundini" Brown, the handler who wept in Clay's corner even before the decision was announced, asked Clay about a rematch, Brown claimed Clay replied, "get your guns, we're going to set traps."

Ali said, "I'm glad I wasn't knocked out. I'm satisfied with the fight even though I lost. I know I lost to a great champion but maybe at another time when both of us had been fighting regularly, the result would have been different. I don't know, but maybe."

Brown, who substituted for Clay at the post-fight press conference, was convinced that better days are still ahead for Ali.

"We ain't through yet," he said, "the car's been in the garage for three years and the next time it won't be." He was referring to Clay's 3 1-2-year layoff from the ring.

The layoff has obviously rusted Ali's great skills and he's lost some of the speed and flair that were his trademark before his exile from the ring.

But it's questionable whether at age 29, he can ever regain those skills that were eroded during his absence from the ring.

Of course, there's also one more thing that has to be considered before Ali's future in the ring is clear—his draft evasion conviction.

The case is now up before the Supreme Court and if the high court upholds the conviction, he'll go to prison.

But for the time being, the silence from Ali was deafening. In another day, though, his vocal cords should be back in shape.

Milwaukee Express Keeps Rolling Along

By United Press International

The Milwaukee victory express keeps rolling along.

The Bucks extended their National Basketball Association record winning streak to 20 games Monday night with a 104-99 victory over the Seattle Supersonics.

Lew Alcindor scored 10 of his game high 32 points in the third quarter and Oscar Robertson added 10 more to break open a close game. Seattle held a 53-48 halftime lead before Alcindor and Robertson rallied the Bucks.

Lenny Wilkens, the Seattle player-coach, had 11 assists in the game to become only the fourth player in NBA history to record 5,000 assists. The others are Robertson, Bob Cousy and Guy Rodgers.

Spencer Haywood scored 30 points for the Sonics and Don Smith had 28. Robertson finished with 24 for the Bucks.

In the only other NBA game Monday night, Don May scored 31 points to boost the Buffalo Braves to a 114-98 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers. Cornell Warner also had 15 points to help the Buffalo attack while rookie Geoff Petrie led Portland with 20 points.

Snead Fifth On Money List

Young Snead, who scored his second victory of the year and pocketed $30,000 in last week's Doral-Eastern Open, moved into fifth place in the PGA money race with $57,886, according to figures announced Monday.

Miller Barber, who had been trailing Tom Shaw in the earnings derby for the last four weeks, took the lead when he collected $10,650 for his third-place finish in the Doral to boost his earnings to $79,860.

Old Securities Can Be Valued

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. In going through my father's old papers I found these certificates (duplicates enclosed) dated 1924. I can't find this company listed on any exchange. Can you tell me if they have any value? If not, could you direct me to the proper source for this information? J. F.

A. Unfortunately I was unable to find any information on the current status of your shares in our research library. However, the brokerage firm of R. M. Smythe & Co., 170 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10038 specializes in the appraisal (for a modest fee) of obsolete securities and should be able to enlighten you.

Q. We are 64, retired and need advice on investing the $40,000 we will realize from the sale of property. Our primary concerns are safety and income. Would a bond such as American Telephone 8.70s 2002 be suitable? L. R.

A. Entirely; this Telephone debenture is currently selling at a premium to yield 7.9 per cent and carries a triple A rating. I would, however, suggest investing your capital in three or four different issues. This plan has the advantage of spreading income payments, reducing risk and varying maturity dates.

You might consider AA-rated Duquesne Lighting 2¾s of 1980 selling well below par to yield 6.7 per cent to maturity. Also qualifying are: AAA-rated International Bank 6½s of 1976 and Public Service Electric & Gas 4⅜s of 1986. The yields to maturity on these two bonds are 6.2 per cent and 7.1 per cent respectively.

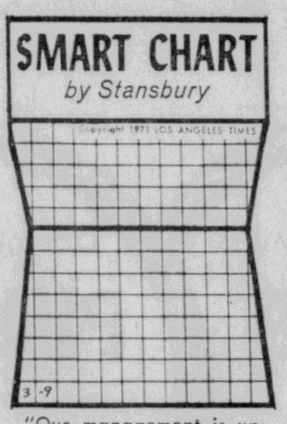
We hold shares of Scudder, Stevens & Clark Balanced Fund. Most of these were acquired at prices higher than the present. Do you think their value will continue to increase as they have lately or should we sell? H. W.

A. Because of the conservative nature of Scudder's portfolio, growth is below average. For example, from December 31, 1964 through December 31, 1970, your fund's net asset value appreciated only 7 per cent. There are various other funds which offer more aggressive growth, with minimal risk, which you may wish to consider. They include: deVegh Mutual, Johnston Mutual and Windsor Fund.

Pilot Support For SST Prototypes

WASHINGTON — (BW) — The Airline Pilots Assn. (ALPA) has announced its support of the government sponsored American-built supersonic transport (SST).

John J. O'Donnell, president of the Professional Pilots Organization, said it is in the best interests of this country that the U.S. SST prototype production and test project be completed.



"Our management is uptight."

Prices Gain In Heavy Trading Day

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market moved forward in heavy turnover near noon Tuesday.

Some analysts attributed the gain to favorable economic news and talk of further cuts in key interest rates. However, one analyst said "the market is not rejoicing about anything." He noted that internal forces are governing the market's move, but that these forces appear to be getting a little bit sluggish.

Of the 1,534 issues crossing the tape, 717 pointed higher, while 473 retreated.

Prices also gained in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange. Advances led declines, 472 to 296.

On the Big Board, Corning Glass (ex-dividend) and Texas Instruments gained more than 3 each. Memorex rose 2 5-8, while issues up a point or so included Kerr-McGee, Louisville & Nash-ville Railroad, KLM Royal Dutch Airlines, Polaroid, and Itek Corp.

Steels showed a steady tone, chemicals were firm, motors and aircrafts were fractionally mixed.

More Cadillacs Than Ever Roll Out Of Detroit

DETROIT — (BW) — More Cadillacs were built during the month of February than in any other month of the division's 69-year history, according to H.B. Brawner, Cadillac general manufacturing manager.

Weekly and daily production records were also broken during the month.

A total of 27,783 cars were produced in February surpassing the old record of 27,559 set in October 1969.

The new weekly record was established during the week of Feb. 22 when 7,507 cars were produced. The old record of 7,263 had been set the week of Jan. 18.

Season Ski And Sports Shop Ready To Open In San Anselmo

A new business which should be ready to open in San Anselmo by next week is The Season Ski and Sports, at 40 Greenfield Avenue.

Owners Steven Sibley of San Rafael and Michael De Luca of South San Francisco have leased the former Building Supply Center yard and store of A. Von Rotz, who moved his hardware business out to Point Reyes Station last year. The lease transaction was handled by John Hourihan of Grubb and Ellis Co.

During the summer season, Sibley and De Luca will carry major lines of camping and back packing gear, both for sale and rental, and will probably use the yard to display small fishing boats as well as for parking. During the winter, ski and snow equipment sales and rentals will be offered.

Sibley was formerly a salesman for Berkeley Farms. De Luca has been in the sporting goods business in San Francisco for three years.

MULTIPLE LISTING real estate sales in Marin for February zoomed up to $9,574,635, making this some kind of February record.

At least executive manager Daniel F. Deedy of the Marin Board of Realtors finds an all-time record in the history of the board for combined January and February sales totaling $15,650,059. This is far and away ahead of last year's first two months total of $9,977,789. Februry's figure alone was $5,158,431 in 1970.

Total completed sales for January and February this year reached $8,354,750. That, too, is comfortably ahead of last year's $7,774,119.

JOHN A. EDWARDS of Petaluma has been named assistant vice president at the San Francisco office of Alexander and Alexander, Inc., international insurance brokers. Before joining the company in 1966 he was state manager in Florida for Phoenix of London. Before that he was with the General Accident Group in Florida and with Johnson and Higgins in California.

ROGER E. DELL'ERA of Novato has been appointed an installment loan officer at Crocker-Citizens National Bank's Northgate-Terra Linda office. He joined the First National Bank in San Rafael, one of Crocker-Citizens' predecessors, in 1960 and has worked in various capacities in offices in San Rafael and Novato as well as Northgate.

Dell'Era

Mrs. DeMartini

THE SAN RAFAEL OFFICE of Hansell Associates has given promotions to three of its employees: Mrs. Kathy DeMartini of Larkspur has been made placement agency manager;

Mrs. Limont

Mrs. Hodgdon

Mrs. Kay Limont of Mill Valley has been appointed development and training coordinator; and Mrs. Jane Hodgdon, also of Mill Valley, is now administrator of the secretarial school and industry training programs.

All are accredited business school teachers with considerable agency and employment background. Mrs. DeMartini joined the firm in San Francisco in 1953 before her marriage. Mrs. Limont and Mrs. Hodgdon have been with Hansell's since 1968.

TWO NORTH BAY MEN, Richard Miller of Marin Roofing Co., San Rafael and Horace Henris of Henris Supply Co., Petaluma, have been elected directors of the Associated Roofing Contractors of the Bay Area Counties, Inc.

Penney Reports Profit Decline

NEW YORK (BW) — Despite a strong fourth quarter performance, J. C. Penney Co. Inc. reported a narrow earnings decline for the 1970 fiscal year on the basis of preliminary and unaudited figures.

In its strongest quarterly showing of the year Penney's had net income of $48.5 million for the 13 weeks ended Jan. 30, an increase of 10.5 per cent over the $43.9 million recorded during the comparable 14-week quarter of 1969 ended Jan. 31, 1970.

Sales for the fourth quarter advanced 5.4 per cent to a record $1,397.5 million from $1,325.6 million. For the full 52 weeks of fiscal 1970 the department store chain's earnings declined .2 per cent to $114.1 million, or $2.14 per share.

Over-The-Pole Jet Sets New Record

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — A new commercial jet speed record over the Polar route from London to Los Angeles was racked up by a Pan American World Airways 747 Superjet which covered the 5,552 mile distance in 9 hours and 38 minutes.

The aircraft, piloted by Capt. William Kirkpatrick, flew at an average ground speed of 500 miles per hour to eclipse the old record of 9 hours and 50 minutes.

1971 CALIFORNIA REALTY FUND

Attend an open meeting to discuss Tax Shelter & Investment Advantages PLUS receive the offering circular.

BACKGROUND
In 1970, the California Realty Fund acquired six apartment complexes totaling 1,379 units with a total value in excess of $20 million. A total of $3,320,000 of equity capital was utilized to purchase these properties.

POTENTIAL SAFETY
In the opinion of the General Partner of the Fund, the acquisitions made to date provide the Fund with geographical diversification, an opportunity for appreciation, and financial stability, in that the properties are all leased back to the sellers.

OBJECTIVES
In 1971, it is the intention of the General Partner to acquire additional apartment complexes, as well as other types of income-producing property, such as shopping centers, office buildings, industrial complexes, and mobile home parks. This will provide the Fund with a diversified real estate investment portfolio.

ADVANTAGES
We fully intend to structure the acquisition of these properties so that the following benefits will be derived by the Limited Partner Investors:

1971 Tax Deductibility ..... 50 to 60% of investment
Future Annual Tax Deductibility ..... 15 to 20% of investment
Annual Cash Flow (Tax Sheltered) ..... 5 to 7% of investment

MOTHERS, TODDLERS AND ANTIDRAFT SIGNS

Fifty members and supporters of the Marin chapter of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom march along Fourth Street in San Rafael, to urge abolition of the draft. Carol Shattuck (on right side of foremost sign) was co-chairman for today's demonstration; she and Marsha Amada guided the parade from the old courthouse to the federal building on D Street. There the marchers picketed briefly and formed a four-foot peace symbol with the flowers they carried, on the sidewalk in front of the military recruiting posters. Marchers included one set of grandparents, dozens of mothers and preschool youngsters, and a few draft-age youth plus a clergyman.

New ABMs Needed, Says Laird Report

Growing Soviet, Chinese Missile Threats Cited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird today unveiled evidence Red China may have already fired its first ICBM and said an apparent pause last year in Russian missile development could have heralded the birth of a new Soviet ICBM system.

In his annual report to Congress on the world military situation, Laird also predicted that between 1973 and 1975 China could develop an initial force of operation intercontinental ballistic missiles.

"The Soviet and Chinese threats to the U.S. call for moving ahead toward the full Safeguard (anti-ballistic missile) deployment," he said. The complete Safeguard system would include 12 ABM sites in the United States. At present only three sites have been approved.

Laird announced plans to start surveys for a fourth site in the Safeguard system. He also outlined military threats to the free world and potential hot spots, detailed plans for a top-level Pentagon reorganization and traced a long-range program to hand over more defense responsibility to U.S. allies by substituting increased military aid for the presence of American soldiers.

"The better equipped our friends and allies are to provide for their own security, the more firm will be our own security," Laird said. "This is so because the probability of war and of U.S. involvement in war will be lowered."

Laird also revealed that during the first half of 1971, despite an increase by 110 in the total number of Russian missiles while the U.S. total holds steady, the number of Soviet warheads will increase by only 11 per cent while the U.S. warhead total goes up 15 per cent.

Pentagon officials said this is because of multiple-warhead Minuteman 3 and Poseidon submarine missile installations in progress by the United States.

He said this world-wide strategy of "realistic deterrence" was a direct outgrowth of the more local Vietnamization policy of President Nixon and was made possible by that policy's success.

In the unclassified version of his book-length report, presented to the House Armed Services Committee, Laird made only passing mention of the new Russian ICBM system. He was only a little more specific about the Chinese ICBM status.

Pentagon officials said, however, both subjects were discussed in more detail in the secret classified version of the report.

"There has been an unexplained slowdown in deployment of current Soviet ICBM models," Laird said. But he said tests of modifications to the huge SS9 and smaller SS11 and SS13 missiles have continued.

"The implications of these trends are still not clear," he said. Two possible explanations he offered were that planned installations had been completed or that new installations had been slowed down to permit installation of improved missiles or multiple warheads in existing silos.

"Alternatively, the explanation may be that the Soviets are preparing to deploy new ICBM missile systems," Laird said.

Pentagon officials said this seems closer to the truth. They said U.S. intelligence sources have spotted new silos and equipment unlike anything that has been seen before and that the size of the missiles to fit them would rival that of the SS9, the world's biggest ICBM.

It was these intelligence reports, they said, which led Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., to report this weekend Russia was developing a big and qualitatively better new ICBM.

Of the Chinese ICBM program, Laird said: "The start of testing has not yet been confirmed, but a reduced range test of an ICBM may have occurred in late 1970."

Pentagon officials said the flight took place entirely within China, without any warhead on the missile, and covered about 2,000 miles. They said a great many defense experts are positive it was an ICBM test, with the range cut down to keep the missile in China.

Average flight distance of an ICBM would be 5,000 miles or more.

Laird also said within the past year China "may have" deployed its first medium range, nuclear tipped missiles which would put all the great cities of Asia within their

Chain Reactions To Sepone Bombs

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. saturation bombing of the Ho Chi Minh Trail junction near Sepone has touched off a massive series of secondary explosions caused by the blowing up of Communist supplies, military spokesmen said today.

Air Force forward air controllers said more than 1,600 secondary explosions were touched off Monday by 3 1-2 hours of heavy air strikes one mile northeast of Sepone, captured Saturday by South Vietnamese forces. On Sunday, spokesmen said, B52 bombing missions brought about 500 secondard explosions in the same area.

A secondary blast —an explosion following the blowing up of a bomb —indicates direct hits on ammunition or fuel dumps.

The 2,100 secondary explosions recorded in the two days were more than recorded in the entire previous month, spokesmen said.

In other action, the South Vietnamese reported killing 343 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese in a series of battles in Laos Monday, while Laotian troops said they killed at least 250 Communists.

A third accidental American air strike against South Vietnamese troops in three days was reported today. Lt. Col. Hoang Tich Thong, commander of a Marine battalion at artillery base Delta, 12 miles southwest of Lao Bao in Laos, said a U.S. jet bombed a South Vietnamese bunker Monday, killing one Marine, wounded 11 others and killing a number of communist troops as well.

The South Vietnamese earlier reported two U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom jets and army helicopter gunships dropped napalm and cluster bombs and fired guns on government infantrymen, killing eight and wounding 54 on Saturday.

The action by Laotian troops took place when North Vietnamese attacked their position on the northeast rim of the Bolovens Plateau 300 miles south of the capital of Vientiane, a government spokesman said. The Laotian troops beat off the attacks on "Hill PS22" with the help of AC47 gunships, he said, but did not say what nationality the gunships were.

He said 250 Communists were killed, while the Laotian forces lost three dead and 36 wounded.

South Vietnamese spokesmen said 250 North Vietnamese were killed in general fighting in scattered parts of Laos earlier Monday. The latest clashes at two points near the town of Lao Bao Monday afternoon killed another 93 Communists.

Frazier Is Champ In 15 Rounds

It's all over now, but boxing fans are already asking about a rematch.

Joe Frazier, who defended his world heavyweight boxing title last night with a 15-round decision over Muhammad Ali-Cassius Clay, says he just wants some time to think things over.

Ali, who suffered his first loss in 32 professional bouts, was subdued today and said, "I'm not going to cry. A lot of great fighters get whipped." About a rematch, Ali said, "It's up to the public. It's up to him (Frazier)." But when pressed later on he said he would like a rematch.

While the fighters were slugging it out in the ring at New York's Madison Square Garden, Bay Area fight fans were storming gates and breaking windows at closed circuit television locations after finding out there were no seats left.

Riverside Bombing

RIVERSIDE (UPI)—A bomb exploded in a third floor hallway of a men's dormitory at the University of California at Riverside early Tuesday causing $300 damage. According to a university spokesman, a student confessed to the bombing as a prank.

There were no reports of injuries.

Marin's Invitation To The Animals

Animal hunters in Golden Gate Park may find only one raccoon a year, but if they do, Marin would be glade to provide refuge.

This is the gist of a letter that will be sent by the Marin County Board of Supervisors to the San Francisco Board of Supervisors.

Rather than have unwanted animals in Golden Gate Park shot by hunters, Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. last week suggested that the animals be trapped and released in the Marin hills.

Trouble was, San Francisco parks and recreation officials said, foxes and raccoons are almost nonexistent, and hunters now concentrate on gophers and rats.

Arrigoni said he had read about the shooting of foxes and raccoons in the February issue of San Francisco Magazine, "and someone is not telling the truth somewhere along the line."

Pierre W. Joske, Marin County Parks and Recreation director, continued that San Francisco's hunting is largely confined to gophers and rats, although one raccoon was spotted about a year ago.

Arrigoni and Michael Wornum declared that whether there is one unwanted raccoon or a thousand in San Francisco, they are still welcome in Marin.

On a motion by Arrigoni, supervisors authorized a letter to San Francisco, offering a haven for raccoons or other wild animals, but not for gophers or rats.

Venereal Disease Hike Brings Plea For Support

Venereal disease has risen so sharply in Marin that the county is "totally understaffed, underspaced, and is turning people away," the county health officer announced today.

Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht made the statement before the Marin County Board of Supervisors in support of Frederick S. Mayer, who made an impassioned plea for more funds and more space to treat gonorrhea and syphillis.

The number of gonorrhea cases in Marin jumped from 1,202 in 1969 to 1,480 in 1970, a rise of 23 per cent, said Mayer. Syphilis cases rose by 51 per cent in the same period, from 37 to 56.

"If there were such an epidemic in Marin, I'm amazed that the public health officer did not appear before this time," said Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.

Dr. Albrecht conceded she probably should have warned the supervisors before today, but explained she had planned to bring it up during her budget request for the next fiscal year.

Mayer wanted direct action immediately. He said volunteer union carpenters are ready to offer free services to remodel the county health department clinic space in the Civic Center for treating VD patients.

County Administrator Alan Bruce recommended against immediate remodeling, explaining that space problems need a careful study before the clinic space is expanded.

Supervisors asked Bruce to bring in statistics on the venereal disease epidemic and recommendations on how the treatment can be expanded.

Another Pitch For The Marigold

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., has introduced a proposed joint congressional resolution to make the marigold the national flower.

The marigold was championed as a national floral emblem for many years by Baker's late father-in-law, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill. Baker said the United States is the only free world nation which does not have a national flower

Fairfax Will Not Slap Board

By C. P. McCARTHY

The Fairfax City Council backed away last night from taking retaliatory action against the Marin County Board of Supervisors for defeating proposed police services district — in unincorporated areas of the county. (Other Fairfax City Council stories, page 3.)

A motion directing Fairfax's police and fire departments not to respond first to calls from outside the city limits was withdrawn before it was voted upon.

The supervisors last month voted against formation of a police services district which Marin County cities insist would equalize the burden of police costs between incorporated and unincorporated areas of Marin.

Cities contend they are paying twice for police services — once in city tax to finance their police departments and again in a county tax for the sheriff's patrols.

The Fairfax council's discussion was sparked by a letter from Priscilla Gray of 126 Ridge Road, who urged the council to forbid Fairfax police to answer calls from the sheriff's office.

"I do not care to see the Fairfax police, which is not paid for by our neighbors, going to their assistance, since they are well able to look after themselves," Mrs. Gray wrote.

Councilman Robert R. Souza agreed with Mrs. Gray and moved that the city's police and fire departments be instructed not to respond to calls from outside the city. Under the present procedure, city police and fire units respond first to emergencies in the unincorporated area as a matter of courtesy to county units.

Both Fairfax Fire Chief Charles F. Thornton and Police Chief James R. Orr had reservations about Souza's motion.

'Charge Disrupters,' Trustee Suggests

A Sausalito School District trustee recommended last night that the district board consider lodging misdemeanor charges against persons who repeatedly disrupt board meetings. (Other Sausalito School District stories, page 7.)

Although trustee Robert A. Thompson said he did not like to contemplate the board leveling such charges against a member of the public, he said the time "has come to do something" about the district's often heated sessions.

"We have a dedicated group of young women who do everything but set off the bombs to disrupt our meeting," Thompson, an attorney, said. "They interrupt. They make whatever noise they want to and seem to have their own rules.

"He added: "Their behavior is intolerable and embarrassing and I think it is time to recognize their disruptive influence." He noted there is a state statute which provides that persons who create havoc at public meetings can be charged with a crime.

Thompson said that at some Sausalito School Board meetings, the board members have begun "to feel like they are bulls in a bull-baiting contest, You have to have an iron constitution and the skin of a wart hog to accomplish any business here sometimes," the trustee charged. "This wouldn't be tolerated at any other function, except a prison riot."

Board Chairman Nathaniel

ROBERT A. THOMPSON
Irked trustee

Johnson admitted disruptions of board meetings are serious — "A situation we have to look at carefully." He said he felt charging individuals with misdemeanors, however, would "only be adding fat to the fire."

Mishandling of the situation would be more detrimental than interruptions and noise, Johnson said. "Sometimes I feel there is no control on either side — the board or the public," he said.

Johnson suggested the matter be brought up at a future board meeting.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

'Latin' Used

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Susan Atkins told her former lawyer that Charles Manson ordered the Tate-Labianca murders, but she repudiated that statement and her confession after a "Pig Latin" conversation with the cult leader.

"They talked in a sort of Pig Latin which I couldn't understand," Miss Atkins former attorney Richard Caballero, told the penalty phase of the trial Monday.

"But they could understand each other—much to their satisfaction and much to my dismay. Two days later she fired me."

Caballero, the attorney who persuaded Miss Atkins to go before a grand jury and admit the 1969 slayings, appeared as one of the last defense witnesses at the trial, now nearing the end of its ninth month.

His testimony about his former client's story directly contradicted Miss Atkins' recent confession on the stand when she implicated herself but tried to clear Manson.

Denies Any Gap

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A White House spokesman says President Nixon has no intention of misleading the American people about U.S. policies in Indochina.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler came to the defense of the administration's credibility on the war Monday in response to a national poll showing 69 per cent of Americans feel Nixon is not telling them all they should know about the fighting in Southeast Asia.

"We have not and will not pursue a communications policy where we in any way attempt to mislead the American people about what we are doing," Ziegler said.

The poll also showed an 18 per cent drop since August in public confidence in Nixon's handling of the war. It showed 46 per cent of those questioned disapproved of Nixon's policies, 41 per cent approved, while 13 per cent expressed no opinion.

Flee Pakistan

DACCA, East Pakistan (UPI) —Hundreds of foreign residents today evacuated East Pakistan, where more than 300 persons have been reported killed in political rioting.

Ninety Britons from the estimated 1,000 in the British community in East Pakistan flew to London. Monday, 113 of the 300 West German nationals in the eastern part of the country left for Bangkok, the West German consulate said today.

In Tokyo, the foreign ministry announced 166 persons, most of them employes of Japanese firms and their families, would be flown out from Dacca this week.

A spokesman for the U.S. consul general said no decision has been taken yet whether to evacuate American citizens. The consulate is "still watching the situation," a spokesman said.

Troop Policy

SEOUL (UPI) —President Park Chung-Hee of South Korea says his government is studying a timetable for eventual withdrawal of the 50,000 South Korean troops in Vietnam but that no immediate withdrawal is planned. The United States will be fully informed of any decision, he said.

He also said in an interview with UPI Monday that South Korea plans to increase its defense forces at home to offset the withdrawal of 20,000 American troops from Korea before the end of June. That would leave 43,000 U.S. servicemen in South Korea.

"Under no circumstances would we withdraw without full consultation with our allies," Park said. "The United States consulted us on its own withdrawal plans."

Approval Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) —William J. Casey is expected to win the Senate Banking Committee's approval to head the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) despite a charge that he hid damaging information about his business background from the Senate.

The allegation came from Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and it was serious enough to convince the committee to reopen its hearing into the nomination and call Casey back. The new hearing was set for 2 p.m. EST today.

But privately a number of committee members said they felt Casey's explanation was satisfactory to assure him of the committee's approval and the Senate's confirmation.

Proxmire was unlikely to carry his fight against the nomination to the Senate floor if none or only one or two members of the 15-member committee join him in raising objections.

'Human Error'

PARIS (UPI)—A spokesman for a group of American pacifists said today it was "human error" that caused some of them to report the United States and North Vietnam had broken the Paris peace talks deadlock and were holding secret negotiations.

Stan Dale, a Quaker spokesman and newsman for radio station WDAI in the Chicago area, and Paul Jamieson, a Massachusetts attorney, announced at a news conference Monday that the chief Hanoi negotiator told them during a meeting with the 170 American pacifists he had resumed private negotiations with chief U.S. negotiator David K.E. Bruce.

Another spokesman for the group telephoned news media nine hours later to say, "Its a regrettable error and were very embarrassed that we made this mistake."

"I make no apologies, it was a human error," Dale said today. "I've been in the news business 25 years and I guess I'm human, it's one of those thing."

Robot Awakens

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet moon robot Lunokhod 1 has awakened and begun a fifth lunar day of exploration in the Sea of Rains, Tass said today.

Sketch Goes Under

HEANOR, England (UPI)—Two 17-year-old youths handcuffed together were foiled in their escape attempt outside a court Monday when they tried to run on each side of a lamp post.

Harold Lloyd, 77, A Giant Among Film Comics, Succumbs

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI)—Harold Lloyd, one of the world's great comics who epitomized the meek loser but who always escaped from terrifying predicaments, died Monday. He was 77.

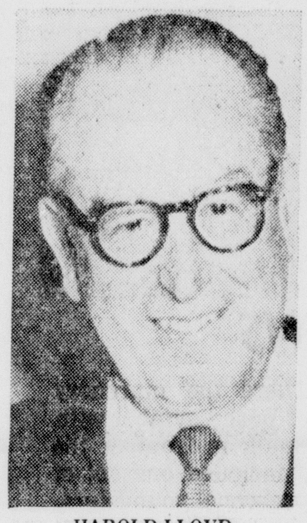
A pair of lenseless celluloid spectacles that cost 10 cents and a boater straw hat were Lloyd's trademarks as he rose to stardom in silent pictures and appeared in nearly 500 films.

His bumbling antics in silent and later in talkies won Lloyd millions of fans and a vast fortune. He became one of the wealthiest men in movie history.

He is best remembered for terrifying feats while dangling from the side of tall buildings and for uproarious chases. One famed scene found him clutching the hand of a giant clock high above the ground. Each minute brought him closer to disaster as the minute hand edged toward the bottom of the dial.

Lloyd had been ill for 18 months and recently had undergone a kidney operation. His death was attributed to cancer.

Lloyd created the character of "Lonesome Luke," a country bumpkin who wore big shoes, tight fitting coats and a small mustache. He discarded that character in 1915, donning his glassless spectacles which he later insured with Lloyds of London for $25,000.



HAROLD LLOYD
From a 1962 shot

In his later films, he wore the spectacles as a good-luck charm in the first scene of each picture, then used substitutes.

His silent hits included "Safety Last," "The Freshman," "Speedy" and "Grandma's Boy." His first talkie was "Movie Crazy."

Lloyd had his own film production company and owned most of the pictures in which he appeared. Although he hadn't made a film since 1950 when he starred in "Mad Wednesday," he did compile some of his famous scenes and released them as "Harold Lloyd's World of Comedy" in 1962. For that film he was honored in 1962 at the Cannes film festival with a plaque that read "To the Grand Prince of Cinema."

"There are many good comedians today," he said recently. "But in the old days we had a different technique.

"Ours was more visual. Now it's just question-and-answer gags. We worked on the main character. He was built up so people felt sorry for him and wanted him to win out."

During his early days in the movies, Lloyd costarred with a young actress named Mildred Davis. He later married her and they had three children, Gloria, Peggy and Harold Jr.

He lived in the grand manner of old time movie stars. The Lloyd family mansion here, where he died, was a showplace. Besides a swimming pool, the grounds once had a private nine-hole golf course.

His wife died in 1969.

Funeral services will be Thursday at the Scottish Rite Temple with entombment at Forest Lawn Memorial Park Mausoleum.

In addition to his son and two daughters, Lloyd is survived by three grandchildren.

Medina To Be Tried For Deaths

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (UPI) —Capt. Ernest L. Medina, under investigation for one year in the My Lai incident, has been ordered to stand court-martial for the murder of 102 Vietnamese civilians.

Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, commanding general of the Third Army, ordered the court-martial Monday. He said Medina is charged with five specifications, three alleging the murder of the civilians and two of assault by shooting at a Viet Cong suspect during interrogation.

Connor said two other specifications of murder and one of maiming were dismissed for lack of evidence.

Medina, 34, is a career soldier from Montrose, Colo. One of his subordinates, Lt. William L. Calley Jr., is being tried at Ft. Benning, Ga., and 20 other witnesses at the Calley court-martial have testified it was Medina who ordered the extermination of the Vietnamese village March 16, 1968.

"I am innocent of the charges against me and the Army itself has a special reason to know that this is true," Medina said in a statement issued in Washington. "I am surprised and dismayed that the Army has taken this action."

Oil Firms Band To Fight Spills

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A petroleum company executive said this weekend oil firms on the West Coast are pooling resources in an effort to protect the environment against the effects of oil spills.

George F. L. Bishop of Phillips Petroleum Co. said five regional nonprofit organizations are stockpiling cleanup materials and charting contingency plans to protect major ports and coastal areas.

Clean Seas, Inc., in Santa Barbara, is the first functioning organization with 14 member oil firms. Similar groups are being established in San Diego, Long Beach-Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle.

Justice Data Bank Safeguards Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., said today government computers are "bringing the ammunition for persecution, harassment and idle gossip within the reach of every prosecutor and part-time deputy sheriff in the land."

Mathias said Attorney General John N. Mitchell secretly had given the FBI control over an elaborate national criminal justice data bank without regard to standards that had been developed to protect the individual against unjust accusations.

In testimony prepared for the Senate constitutional rights subcommittee, Mathias urged development of legislation to insure that such computerized operations contain built-in safeguards against police state tactics.

Mathias said a pioneer 10-state system called Project SEARCH (System for Electronic Analysis and Retrieval of Criminal Histories) had been developed as the forerunner of a national criminal justice data bank.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration was put in charge of the system and made a $1.5 million grant for its operational development Dec. 9.

"On Dec. 10, in an internal directive which was not publicly released, the attorney general transferred the prime responsibility for future development of a nationwide system for exchanging criminal histories from LEAA to the FBI," Mathias said. He said he understood Mitchell's letter mentioned nothing about a "code of ethics" that had been developed by Project SEARCH to protect individual privacy.

The code barred the use of "irrelevant data" and "unverified intelligence tips"; recommended continuous purging of the system to eliminate records of accused first offenders who were found innocent, and prescribed procedures to permit individuals to correct inaccuracies or prejudicial omissions in their arrest records.

Mathias said the individual should have some assurance that a youthful indiscretion will not follow him forever. A suspended sentence at age 18 for marijuana possession should not "pop up for years to jeopardize his applications for jobs, for credit cards and for home loans," Mathias said.

Among the 64,000 computerized files maintained by the Bureau of Narcotics, he noted, were dossiers on "three boys under three years old. Will that item be buried in statistical reports, surfacing only as curiosity? Or will three boys be pursued for life by the tragic fact that they were exposed to narcotics almost before they could talk?"

Some Controls Still Studied

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson today renewed the Nixon administration's pledge not to clamp wage-price controls on the entire economy in an effort to curb inflation, but kept the door open for selective controls in specific industries.

Hodgson, without mentioning the word "controls," promised "a policy of measured and carying response ... will be concentrated on those who choose to lead the way in inflationary acts."

He did not spell out what types of action would be taken, but said "The range of response can be fairly wide. The specific reaction would depend on the individual case."

The secretary, in remarks prepared for a businessmen's meeting, said President Nixon already had acted against steel and oil companies and construction unions to hold down inflation.

$50,000 FIRE IN PEACOCK GAP

Firemen battle to control flames in the two-story home of the John J. Zimmer family, 374 Riviera Drive, San Rafael. The flames broke out at 4:14 a.m. today while the family was on a trip to Los Angeles. Fire Chief Vance Trivett said the cause of the blaze was unknown; he estimated structural damage to the home at $35,000 and damage to its contents at $15,000.

'Guarded' Approval To Billing Plan

The Petaluma City Council last night gave what it called "guarded approval" to installing a newly developed computer system in the water billing department the next fiscal year.

In giving its tentative approval, the council set side $12,000 from the general fund and $7,000 from the water fund to finance the first-year operation of the International Business Machines system.

City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer said details on how the system would work will be brought before the council next month.

Meyer said the water billing would be the first task given the computer and that later it could be used by the police payroll and finance departments. He estimated the first year cost at $19,720.

Vice Mayor John W. Cavanagh Jr. complained that installation of the system had not been justified and felt high city officials were the only persons pushing the computer idea. He said that some staff members and employees who have spoken against the system have been "called on the carpet" by the city manager.

Cavanagh said he felt the new system would be an "utterly ridiculous and useless spending of tax dollars" and said Petaluma shouldn't be the first city to try it out.

Councilmen Robert A. Brunner and Robert E. Daly supported the project, but had reservations. Councilman Fred V. Mattei said he wanted more information on possible joint use of county data processing facilities.

Councilman Albert L. Battaglia Jr. said he felt costs would be higher than Meyer had estimated and felt the system would not reach the "break even" stage until after the third year of operation.

The Petaluma City Council also:

SEWER STUDY — Approved an agreement with sanitation districts in Northern Marin and Southern Sonoma for a subregional sewer study.

CONSULTANTS — Approved employment of Stone and Youngburg of San Francisco as financial consultants for the proposed $2 million sewer and bond election on June 8.

REVENUE — Approved a resolution supporting federal revenue sharing for cities.

Arts Information Center Rejected

While extending an offer of help, the Fairfax City Council refused permission last night to a nonprofit group to operate a performing arts information center on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

The council upheld planning commission denial of a conditional zoning permit to the Marin Performing Arts Guild, formerly called Marin Music Switchboard.

The organization acts as a clearing house for performers in Marin and provides information on activities in the performing arts in the county.

It had hoped to move into a building at 1750 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, its lease at 1001 D Street in San Rafael having expired.

Although David Hutchinson, a guild director, told the council 95 per cent of the group's business is done by telephone, councilmen said guild use of the Sir Francis Drake site would cause major traffic problems.

Following a 4-1 vote, in which Mayor Frank J. Egger dissented, Councilman Cornelis van Vliet asked, "Is there no one around to help find the boys a place?"

With that, van Vliet was appointed to talk to Max Friedman, owner of Fair-Anselm Shopping Center, about finding a place for the non-profit organization to operate.

The Fairfax City Council Also:

LIGHTS — Approved installation of lights on the southwest side of Fairfax Pavilion. Egger and Souza voted against the move, with Egger saying lights would attract people to the park after dark.

COASTLINE — Went on record, with Egger dissenting, in opposition to a proposal for the Association of Bay Area Governments to prepare an ocean coastline plan for the San Francisco Bay Area. Councilman Francis J. O'Connell said such a plan should be of concern to coast counties, but not to ABAG and such counties as Alameda and Contra Costa.

BUSES — Endorsed in principle the concept of the GoldenGate Bridge District operating buses on exclusive rights-of-way.

DISASTER — Recommended formation of a City-County Civil Defense Disaster Committee to review and update disaster procedures in the county.

BIDS — Called for bids to build a retaining wall on Arroyo Road. Bids will be opened at the council's next meeting April 12. Two bids on the project were rejected last October when they both exceeded the estimated cost of the job — $6,638.

ANNEXATION — Decided to ask the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission for a three-month extension past the May deadline for final action on the proposed annexation of two parcels of property west of the city.

CONTAINERS — With O'Connell and Souza opposed, passed a resolution, recommended by the city of Palo Alto, which urges the League of California Cities and County Supervisors' Association of California to seek legislative action to alleviate problems caused by sale of beverages in disposable, nonreturnable containers.

Peaceful Rally, Then Big Rioting

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—A crowd of blacks, swollen by hundreds of truant students, broke windows, damaged plumbing in a state office building and later vandalized several downtown stores after a peaceful protest demonstration Monday over alleged racism in the public schools.

The destruction was the outcropping of a confrontation between about 500 blacks and city school Superintendent Harold Eibling at city school offices. As many as 1,000 gathered later.

After Eibling released a five-point program that answered the group's demands, a contingent left there for the Ohio Departments Building five blocks away.

Youthful crowds roamed the halls, vandalizing a snack bar run by blind workers and smashing the glass door of state school Superintendent Martin Essex's office. The building was closed by a group of state patrolmen after a bomb threat was received.

Gov. John J. Gilligan, ordered the building closed.

Later, across from the capital building, in the heart of the business district, gangs roamed from store to store, breaking windows, harassing customers and taking some merchandise.

Three hundred riot-equipped officers patrolled the area to deter further damage. They took 68 juveniles into custody for "safekeeping" and later returned them to their parents without filing charges.

Eight others were arrested, mostly on disorderly conduct charges.

Rockefeller Takes Look At '72 Race

He promised to support Nixon if he runs.

Rockefeller has made himself available for the Republican presidential nomination three previous times. He pulled out of the 1960 race early, lost a convention battle with Barry Goldwater in 1964 and challenged Nixon and lost in 1968.

Each time, Rockefeller waited before actually making a decision.

"I'm supporting President Nixon in running again," Rockefeller told a news conference. "I think the president is going to get us out of Vietnam, and that he's going to get the economy turned around."

He was asked what would happen if the President decided to serve only four years and not try for reelection in 1972.

"That's a whole new ball game," he said.

"Does this mean you will consider a presidential run under those circumstances?" he was asked.

"I wouldn't rule out anything," Rockefeller said.

Lot Of Talk, But No Action On Fairfax Pavilion Dances

With visions of a 1969 melee dancing in their heads, Fairfax city councilmen last night had a few unkind words for a dance held in Fairfax Pavilion last month. (Another Fairfax City Council story, page 1.)

David R. Seyler, chairman of the Fairfax Park and Recreation Commission, said he wanted the dance discussed because his group, which co-sponsored the event, had been accused by some of holding a "fiasco."

Mayor Frank J. Egger replied that no councilman had made the charge, but he didn't have long to wait to hear his colleagues speak out against the dance.

According to city department reports, 829 tickets were sold to the dance in the 700-capacity Pavilion on Feb. 19, $53 damage was done to doors and a step, and one extra policeman and three extra reserve officers had to be called in because of the size of the crowd.

"As far as I'm concerned, dances are through," said Councilman Francis J. O'Connell, adding that "they get out of hand" everytime.

"If this stuff continues, we're going to end up with a policeman injured or some youth injured," warned Councilman Lee Nelder.

Nelder said he thought that only about 10 per cent of those attending the dance were from Fairfax and that the average age of those attending appeared to be about 30.

Councilman Robert R. Souza said he thought more persons attended last month's dance than the ill-fated Memorial Day dance at the Pavilion in 1969 — "something we don't want to reoccur," according to Souza.

At the Memorial Day event, two policemen and a 17-year-old youth were injured when youths threw rocks, cans and bottles as officers attempted to halt the dance because it was allegedly overcrowded.

The Fairfax Youth Commission and Wild Bill Productions, dance promoters, sponsored last month's event with the park and recreation commission.

William Cummings, 20, a partner in Wild Bill Productions, defended the dance and his organization. He said the crowd, whose average age he estimated to be less than 20, was "calm and orderly."

His group has paid the $53 damages, he said, adding that most of the damage was to the exterior of the building.

The size of the crowd was unexpected, he said, because two previous dances sponsored by Wild Bill had attracted only about 300 persons each.

A teen-aged member of the parks and recreation commission, Edwin H. McGee, also defended the dance, saying he thought it was "done very well."

He accused Souza of contradicting himself when Souza said on the one hand that he did not enter the Pavilion but was outside, and on the other hand said most of the persons were not from Fairfax.

The council referred further discussion of the dance to the park and recreation commission for a future report to the council.

Alcatraz Appeal For More Indians

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Indian occupants of Alcatraz, their ranks reduced by bad weather and a diet of rice and beans, are seeking reinforcements.

"The winter has been pretty rough," said Herb Simmons, a member of the island's ruling council. "It has been cold during the last few weeks, and we are having beans and rice a lot, but the people are happy."

Simmons, 22, an ex-Marine, said the former federal penitentiary in the middle of San Francisco Bay is without electricity because its generator broke down.

Buildings are being torn down "to provide firewood" and water is carried out daily in five-gallon cans aboard a boat whose maintenance has bankrupted the Indians, who seized the island 16 months ago.

"But what we need more than anything is more Indians," said Simmons.

City Strike Call Despite Pay Hike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two unions that represent a majority of employes in city schools have scheduled strike votes.

The Teachers Union and Local 400 of the City and County Employees Union, which represents the school district's clerks, cafeteria workers, secretaries and miscellaneous personnel, both planned votes for Thursday.

Teachers Union President Jim Ballard said the executive committee will recommend a strike and predicted the teachers would walk out.

The negotiating committee of the county employees union also was expected to recommend a strike.

Ballard said the issues involve no cutbacks in teaching positions, giving teachers $100 for books and supplies they need, and pay scale increases. He said the issues were presented to Superintendent Thomas A. Shaheen last month.

First Steps Taken On Rail Bike Path

The Tiburon City Council took the first step last night to turn the recently acquired Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way into a useable bicycle and pedestrian pathway.

Acting City Mgr. Robert L. Kleinert said the council told City Engineer Ray W. Foreaker to prepare plans and specifications for paving an eight-foot strip down the corridor from Lagoon Road near San Rafael Avenue to Blackie's pasture.

The paving and related work, including replacement of a storm drain and six culverts, will cost about $50,900, Foreaker said.

Kleinert said bids for the work could be called for at the council's March 22 meeting and a contract awarded shortly thereafter. He said several members of the audience, who urged the council to take action on the path, were pleased with the decision to proceed.

The council deleted an additional $8,000 worth of improvements, including construction of a rest stop along the pathway and rough grading from Lagoon Road to Tiburon Boulevard. These items will be considered again later, Kleinert said.

Several sources of funding are being explored, he said, including contributions by Belvedere and the Reed School District, a citizens committee to raise money and a grant from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. These will be examined by the council's business and administration committee.

In other business the council declared it would prohibit motor vehicles on Lower Racoon Lane, a narrow, steep dirt road from Mar West Street to Centro West Street.

But Kleinert said the council agreed to provide auto access from Centro West to a two-unit apartment owned by Albert Rundberg, who has complained that closing the lane would deprive him of such access.

A resolution ordering the closure will be considered at the council's March 22 meeting, along with another resolution that the city is willing to accept and maintain upper raccoon Lane if adjacent property owners pave it to city standards.

Tension Mounts In Mideast

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israel reported clashes on its borders with Jordan and Lebanon today in surge of Arab guerrilla activity. The Suez Canal front with Egypt remained quiet despite tension described as so thick it could be cut "with a knife."

In Cairo, a government spokesman denied Israel's charge that the Soviet Union was determining Egyptian policy. The spokesman said Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban, who made the charge, "has lost his balance."

"Eban knows very well, as well as the whole world knows, that the policy of Egypt is made in Cairo alone," the spokesman said. Eban said Sunday that Egypt refused at the direction of the Soviets to renew the Middle East cease-fire which expired Sunday.

There was no shooting along the Suez Canal but the Israeli newspaper Ma-Ariv said "One can cut the tension with a knife."

An Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv announced an Arab guerrilla bazooka round wounded an Israeli soldier in the occupied Golan Heights of Syria today and a guerrilla infiltrator was killed by an Israeli patrol on the Lebanese front near Jebel Ras.

The incidents were the second and third clashes reported along Arab-Israeli frontiers since the expiration of the cease-fire. A long-range rocket from Jordan landed in Israel's Beisan Valley Monday, causing no casualties but drawing a barrage from Israeli gunners.

Egyptian officials said today in Cairo that President Nixon and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat exchanged messages shortly before the expiration of the cease-fire. The contents of the messages were not given, but it was understood Nixon urged Sadat to accept an official trace extension in return for promises of further American efforts towards a Middle East peace settlement.

When he refused to extend the truce Sunday, Sadat said he still expected the United States to fulfill pledges to put pressure on Israel to withdraw from occupied Arab territory.

Nixon met with Israeli President Zalman Shazar in Washington Monday but details of their discussion were not disclosed. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the meeting was unofficial and private.

Egypt and Israel have announced they intend to continue to hold their fire, but there is fear on both countries that an accidental incident could touch off another fullscale war.

Egyptians sounded air raid sirens Monday when three Israeli warplanes flew over their Suez Canal positions but the planes withdrew without any shots being fired by either side.

Hearing Set On Rail Strike Call

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A federal judge has scheduled a hearing Wednesday on a petition seeking to head off a strike by at least some of the 150,000 members of the United Transportation Union against part of the nation's railway system.

Spokesmen for the UTU said Monday there would be a strike at 2 p.m. EST Thursday unless the action is blocked by a court order. The Union called off plans to strike two railroads Monday to give U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt a chance to consider the issue at a hearing at 2 p.m. EST Wednesday.

Ernest Gus Sonnenberg Found Dead

Ernest Gus Sonnenberg, 52, of San Rafael, was found dead in his parked car on Redrock Way near San Rafael about 10:30 p.m. yesterday, apparently the victim of self-inflicted carbon monoxide poisoning, according to Deputy Coroner Jack D. Darblay.

Darblay said that the car was locked with a hose attached to the exhaust and running to the interior of the vehicle.

Police and sheriff's deputies unsuccessfully attempted resuscitation, Darblay said, and Sonnenberg was taken to Marin General Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Sonnenberg, who lived at 19 Merrydale Road, had been despondent over financial problems, according to the manager of his apartment house, Darblay said.

Sonnenberg was native of Canada and was a freelance salesman.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

LAIRD

reach. Recently, he said, the thrust seems to have switched to intermediate range missiles which could hit the industrial centers of the Soviet Union.

But for the present, he said, the Chinese are still relying primarily on the Badger bomber, a medium range aircraft of Russian design.

Laird said results of the Straegic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) soon to resume between the United States and Russia might limit the full Safeguard deployment to counter the Soviet and Chinese nuclear threat.

He said President Nixon requested that surveys for the fourth safeguard site take place at both Warren Air Force Base, Wyo., and Washington, D.C. The decision about where to install the ABM missile site will be made based on the SALT outcome, he said.

Aside from these developments, Laird said the Russians are actively developing a long range submarine-launched missile and a new anti-ballistic missile system. There already are four ABM complexes set up around Moscow, he said.

By mid-1971, the defense secretary said, the Soviet Union will have 1,500 ICBMs. This is an increase of 60 during 1971 alone, while the United States will hold at 1,054. But he said U.S. submarine missiles will still outnumber Russia's 656 to 400 by mid-1971 despite a six-month Soviet increase of 50 missiles.

Laird said even if this rate of increase remains steady and no new missiles are introduced, however, by the mid-1970s the Russians could have 1,900 ICBM re-entry vehicles.

"This force alone would be more than enough to destroy all U.S. cities of any substantial size," he said. "Practically all of the U.S. population lies within range of the growing Soviet SLBM (submarine missile) force."

Laird emphasized that "we do not intend to be the policeman of the world," but said American strategic forces "will remain the cornerstone of the free world's deterrence against nuclear attack and must always be sufficient for this role."

To this end, while the size of the U.S. armed forces is shrinking, he urged a stepped-up program of research and development to keep the United States from getting another Sputnik-type surprise. He said conventional force quality had been degraded by the heavy demands of money to support the Vietnam War.

12 South Vietnamese wounded. Another clash seven miles southwest of the town killed 15 communists.

South Vietnamese headquarters said in a statement from Saigon that 6,052 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong had been killed in the Laotian operation that began Feb. 8 in an effort to cut the Ho Chi Minh Trail, the main Communist supply route into South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Military sources said North Vietnam has shifted its Laotian supply lines farther west, out of the way of the South Vietnamese drive.

American headquarters said 58 U.S. helicopters had been lost in support of the Laotian offensive and American casualties were 50 killed, 50 wounded and 16 missing. The U.S. Command counts as lost only those helicopters destroyed, not those shot down but later recovered.

A communique from Phnom Penh quoted a Cambodian military spokesman as speculating the Communists are under orders to conserve ammunition.

Quake Is Felt In Wide Area Of California

MONTEREY, Calif. (UPI)— An earthquake early today shook a wide section of the California coast and was felt from the Monterey area to San Francisco.

Residents in Carmel, Monterey and other communities reported a strong shake, but no serious damage was reported immediately.

The earthquake was also felt by residents 100 miles north in San Francisco, where police said they had calls from a number of people who reported their houses trembled in the quake.

The University of California seismograph laboratory at Berkeley said the quake seemed to be centered in the ocean off Monterey.

A quake was recorded in the same area Monday afternoon, with a magnitude of 3.5 on the Richter scale.

SGT. GEORGE M. NEWMAN

OBITUARIES

George Newman, 41, Dies

Sgt. George M. Newman of the Larkspur Police Department died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital after a short illness. He was 41.

Newman had been on the Larkspur force for 11 years and was the city's first "police officer of the year" in 1967.

Prior to becoming a policeman, he was a janitor for the Larkspur School District.

Newman was born in Great Falls, Mont., but moved to Corte Madera in 1942. He moved to Larkspur in 1950.

He was a member of the Redwood Investigators Association.

Surviving are his wife, Eunice M. Newman, three sons, George Jr., Jeffery and Gary Newman, and two daughters, Laura and Kathryn Newman, all of the family home, 163 Elm Avenue, Larkspur; four sisters, Margaret Newman of Corte Madera, Mary Hall of Los Angeles, Lucille Tompkins of Redwood City and Georgina Effrunti of Sunnyvale; and three brothers, Arthur Newman of San Rafael, Charles Newman of Corte Madera and Lester Newman of Great Falls.

Funeral will be Thursday at 2 p.m. at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael followed by burial at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery in San Rafael.

The family requested that memorial contributions be made to the cancer research division of the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco.

ment would not respond to a fire call it knew was outside the city limits, unless a life were in danger.

Orr voiced a similar reaction. "We are not in anyway legally obligated to go into Oak Manor (the unincorporated area adjacent to Fairfax," he said, but added that his department could not "just sit back" if someone was being assaulted.

Councilman Lee Nelder spoke against Souza's proposal, arguing that catching a burglary suspect in Oak Manor reduces the threat to Fairfax as well.

Councilman Francis J. O'Connel said he agreed with Mrs. Gray that people in "Oak Manor and Sleepy Hollow (close to San Anselmo) are freeloading," but he said he thought council action now would be premature.

Souza eventually withdrew his motion and the council voted to table further discussion of the subject for 90 days. The group said it would keep its eye on further action by the board of supervisors; a proposal to annex the Oak Manor area, and a proposal, which the council endorsed, for a county criminal justice coordinator to study police consolidation in Marin.

Senate Refuses To Alter Rules On Filibusters

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield announced that he would now abandon—at least for the time being—the biennial fight to change the 54-year-old filibuster rule.

The vote today was 55 to 39 in favor of softening the cloture rule. That was eight short of the necessary two-thirds majority.

Three times previously this year the Senate rejected a move to cut off debate on a bill to reduce from two-thirds to three-fifths the number of senators required to stop a filibuster and bring an issue to a vote.

Date Endorsed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly Rules Committee today unanimously endorsed and cleared for floor action a Senate-adopted measure proposing that the legislature adjourn its current session on July 30.

Driver Plunges Off Bay Bridge

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A man stopped an automobile on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge on Monday and plunged over a span railing into the water.

The car was registered to Ronald Hendrix of Sacramento.

DOUGLAS RICHWAGEN

Private service was held yesterday for Douglas Oliver Richwagen of San Anselmo, an executive of the Bay Area Surgical Co.

Richwagen died Sunday in a local hospital, after a brief illness. He was 58.

A native of San Anselmo, he had lived in Marin County all his life except for six years service in the Army medical corps during World War Two.

He is survived by his wife, Norma, of the family home at 100 Chipman Place; a sister, Mrs. Coulter Stewart of San Anselmo, and a brother, Paul Reichwagen of Hayward.

The funeral was followed by inurnment at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. The family prefers contributions to the Animal Lovers of Marin, 28 Laverne Avenue, Mill Valley.

EMMA GRIES

Emma M. Gries, a longtime Greenbrae resident, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 84.

A resident of Greenbrae for about 25 years, Miss Gries last lived at a San Rafael convalescent home.

She was a native of San Francisco and spent her entire life in the state. She was employed as a bookkeeper.

Funeral will be 10 a.m. Thursday at Martin and Brown Mortuary, San Francisco, with burial to follow at Woodlawn Memorial Park, San Francisco.

GABRIEL F. FRANCHINI

Gabriel F. Franchini of San Anselmo, founder of the Home Market and father of former San Anselmo Mayor William F. Franchini, died today at a local convalescent hospital after a long illness. He was 95.

Born in Lucca, Italy, he emmigrated to San Francisco in 1890, then moved to San Anselmo in 1916. He lived at 209 Ross Avenue.

His son, William, was a city councilman from 1958-66 and was mayor in 1960 and 1964. He is now city treasurer. Another son, Roy, of Lake County, founded Chateau Franchini restaurant at 4500 Redwood Highway, San Rafael.

He is also survived by three daughters, Mrs. Amelia Cuneo and Mrs. Erna Longfellow of San Anselmo and Mrs. Ethel Pugh of Fairfax; another son, Robert Franchini of San Mateo; 12 grandchildren, and 11 great-grandchildren.

Private family funeral will be Thursday at Chapel of the Hills. Burial will be in Italian Cemetery in Colma. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Chapel of the Hills.

DELIA HOBBS

Delia Hobbs, 76, a Petaluma resident since 1934, died yesterday at a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Portland, Maine, she was reared and educated there. She married the late Ralph Hobbs in 1917 and they moved to California in 1922, settling in Petaluma in 1934.

Mrs. Hobbs was a member of the Petaluma Rebekah Lodge No. 86, Penngrove Grange No. 740 and Sonoma County Pomona Grange.

She is survived by a daughter, Frances de Neuf of Petaluma; a brother, William Reddy of Kent, Ohio; three sisters, Alice Hartwell of Hartford, Conn., Linnie Cash of Lincoln Park, Mich. and Dorothy Todd of Portland, Maine; and two grandchildren.

Funeral will be held Thursday at 11 a.m. at the Sorensen Funeral Home, Petaluma, followed by private inurnment at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

MRS. DICKIE

Private family service for Myrtle Elaine Dickie, mother of Alice Kathleen Perry of Sausalito, was held yesterday in Berkeley. Mrs. Dickie, 83, died Sunday in Berkeley.

She was born in Ukiah and had lived for many years in Berkeley.

She is also survived by two grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

HAROLD HALL

Word has been received in Marin County of the death of Harold Handthorn Hall, brother of Mrs. Consuelo Wise of San Anselmo.

He died Feb. 28 at his home in San Pablo and was buried in Rolling Hills Memorial Park in Richmond.

Hall, 74, was a native of California and served in World War I. He was a retired executive of Union Oil Oleum Refinery at Rodeo, having worked there for 35 years.

He was a member of American Legion Post No. 10 of Richmond.

Besides his sister, he is survived by his wife, Mabel; a son, Richard Allen Hall; two grandchildren, all of San Pablo and seven nieces and nephews in Marin County.

VALLIER TOMPKINS

Word has been received in Southern Sonoma that Vallier W. Tompkins of Cotati, a merchant seaman, died last week in a Singapore hospital after an illness of three months.

Tompkins, 47, was a native of Cotati and had been a merchant seaman since the age of 17. During World War II and the Korean War, he sailed in war zones carrying supplies for the Armed Forces.

He is survived by his wife, Ruby; a son, Vallier W. Tompkins Jr.; three daughters, Marsha McLain, Rhonda Jones and Jody Tompkins; his mother, Mrs. Albert Martinez, and four grandchildren; all of Cotati.

Funeral service is expected to be held in Petaluma at a later date.

JAMES COLLINS

Funeral for James Richard Collins, 70, of Petaluma, a retired Teamster, will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow at Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma.

Collins died Sunday at a Santa Rosa hospital after a short illness. A native of San Francisco, he attended schools there and at St. Vincent's school, Novato.

He has been employed as a teamster for Purity Stores for 36 years and was a member of the Teamsters Union, San Francisco Local No. 85.

He is survived by a daughter, Dorothy J. Ward of Petaluma; a brother, Thomas Collins of San Francisco, and seven grandchildren.

Private inurnment will be at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

By PAT ANGLE

The controversial question of which schools will be kept open in the Sausalito School District next year remained unanswered last night, as the district board asked the superintendent to study three possible alternate facilities plans. (Another Sausalito School District story, page 1).

The board, by a 3-1-1 vote, directed Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg to prepare reports on the economic and educational advantages and disadvantages of the various plans and specific cost estimates for each proposal, then report back at the board's first meeting in May.

The newest facilities plan, presented last night by Trustee Delta Christ, calls for locating all grades at Martin Luther King School next year by using existing classrooms at the school.

The board, which agreed two weeks ago that the district's ultimate goal should be one school, already is considering several alternates. One possibility suggested by the superintendent would place all grades at King School and add five portable classrooms to accomodate the students. Another would leave kindergarten at Manzanita School in Marin City or move it to Bayside School in Sausalito next year, and put the remaining grades at King, with all classes moved to King by 1972.

Mrs. Christ's plan calls for three kindergarten and three first grade classes, with 24 students in each class; two second grade classes, 26 students per class; three third grades, 22 students apiece; three fourth grades, each with 20 students.

She also proposes two fifth and two sixth grades, each with 26 students, two seventh grade classes, with 21-22 students in each class and two eighth grades, with 21-22 youngsters per class.

Under her proposal, the kindergarten and first graders and the school's library would be located in one wing of King. Another wing would house second, third and fourth graders and a third would accomodate fifth, sixth and seventh grades. Eighth graders would be placed in the building now used as a reading center.

Mrs. Christ said she thought one school located in existing classrooms at King would be "economically feasible" and still leave areas for "special uses," such as art, shop and home economics.

Board Chairman Nathaniel Johnson questioned the effect the system would have on education, noting district policy limits class size to 25 students. "What is the educational feasibility of a kindergarten class with 24 students?" he asked.

Trustee Robert A. Thompson said the effects on education would be dealt with in the studies the administration will make.

Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority and Redevelopment Agency, suggested a fourth alternate — that the district build a kindergarten through eighth grade school in Marin City.

Shepherd suggested the district sell its excess properties to finance construction. He said the district promised in 1960 to build an elementary school in Marin City "but that promise has not been kept." He went on to say the housing authority already has donated the land for such a school.

Thompson called Shepherd's plan "totally economically unfeasible," but Johnson said he would study the proposal carefully and report back to the board.

Barbara Hendrickson, a kindergarten teacher, said the board might be surprised by enrollment in September and end up with insufficent classroom space at King School. "Last year we anticipated less than 50 kindergarten children and there were 84," she said.

From the audience, John Alpert questioned the plan to have the school library in the same wing as the primary grades. "White parents who want to send their children here are afraid of older youngsters, particularly black seventh and eighth graders, coming in contact with their little children," he said sarcastically.

Bullet Into Windshield

A bullet, thought to be .22 caliber, hit the windshield of a car northbound on Highway 101 west of Highway 37, at 5:30 p.m. yesterday, San Rafael police reported.

Edward Jackson Vaughn, 49, of 209 Orange Blossom Lane, San Rafael, told police that the bullet hit the windshield as he was driving in the outside lane of the highway past California Park hill. It hit about three inches from the bottom and 12 inches from the right side of the windshield, police reported.

Vaughn said it sounded like an explosion when it hit the windshield and bounced off, according to police reports.

Bill Opposed By Business Dies In Panel

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill making it easier for the legislature to increase taxes on banks, insurance firms and corporations has been killed by an Assembly committee.

The measure by Assemblyman Leo T. McCarthy, D-San Francisco, came under heavy attack Monday by lobbyists from the business community.

The legislature, under the bill, would have been permitted to hike the levies by a simple majority vote. Currently a two-thirds vote is needed to raise bank and corporation taxes, although other taxes—such as sales and income—can be hiked by majority vote.

The Constitutional Amendments Committee—at a hearing jammed with lobbyists—gave McCarthy's bill a 4-4 vote. Five votes were needed for approval.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, moved to delay vote on the measure for two months to await a "complete tax package," but McCarthy asked for an immediate vote.

Lewis Keller, representing the Association of California Life Insurance Companies, said increased taxes would mean higher future insurance rates.

Richard E. Ratcliff, legislative advocate for the California Bankers Association, opposed the bill saying banks are already "paying more than our share of the tax load."

The California State Chamber of Commerce also opposed the bill.

Under present law, McCarthy noted, individual income taxes can be raised by majority votes. He added, "All taxpayers, large and small, corporate and individual, should be treated equally."

Fire Poster Judging Team

Frank Marshall, a Petaluma High School instructor, and Louis J. Bloom, Marin County fire chief, will be part of judging team which will select the best fire prevention posters submitted by high school students in the Redwood Empire.

Posters selected will be entered in the Western Forestry and Conservation International Poster Contest.

Sausalito Trustees Irked By Cut Vote

Over the strenuous objections of two trustees, the Sausalito School District board voted last night to authorize the district superintendent to notify an unknown number of employees that the district may not rehire them next year — for budget or other reasons.

With Trustees Nathaniel Johnson and Jerry L. Whitcomb dissenting, the board empowered Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg to send out notices by March 15 to all probationary and permanent certificated employees whose employment future with the district is in doubt. All employees not notified by that date are automatically rehired for the comingyear, the superintendent told the board.

The board acted without knowing which employees (or how many) the administration is recommending be elimnated for 1971-72 and before hearing recommendations on personnel reductions from the board's personnel committee. Following the meeting, trustees met in closed session for about an hour to hear the committee's report, but took no action on personnel.

Whitcomb objected to authorizing the letters, saying he did not want to vote on something he knew nothing about. "I feel I am being pushed into a corner," he said. "I don't see how we can decide on how many employees we have to get rid of until we have had a serious budget study session and find out where we are."

Lindberg said the board, in permitting him to give out the notices, was not deciding "whether or not to retain particular employees. The board does not have to make decisions on hiring for next year until May 15, he said, and cannot accept or reject the superintendent's recommendations.

Lindberg said any employee notified that his services will not be required next year has the right to ask for a hearing, provided he makes the request within seven days of receipt of the letter.

Trustee Robert A. Thompson, head of the personnel committee, said the district would not know its staff needs until "about October" when enrollment has been determined. "Either we give people notice now or we have hired them for the coming year," he said. "By not giving the superintendent authority to send those letters now, we are penalizing the public."

He added the board has no intention of revealing which staff members have received the notices. "It's up to the individual employee. If he wants to divulge that information, that's his business."

Johnson said he felt he had been "kept in the dark" about what the personnel committee is recommending in the way of personnel cuts. "I know nothing about it," he said. Whitcomb agreed. "I object to any committee which seeks to take action on its own," he said. "After all, this is a five-man board."

The Sausalito School District Board also:

LEAVE — Denied a request from teacher aide Gloriz Guice for an indefinite leave of absence to continue her education.

AIDES — Hired Paul Austin, Elizabeth Van Anda and Dolores Talley as Title 1 aides for 25 hours a week, at $2.73 per hour.

LITTLE LEAGUE — Denied a request from the Sausalito Little League to donate 10 gallons of paint to be used for the league's dugout and lunch bar at Bayside School.

TENNIS — Approved an agreement with the City of Sausalito to allow the city to store tennis equipment at Martin Luther King School.

GIFTS — Accepted a $100 gift from Sausalito artists and merchants and a $50 gift from Citizens for Excellence in integrated education for landscaping at Martin Luther King School or other projects which the district wishes to use the money for.

BUDGET — Heard a report from Robert E. Spain of the county schools office on how the area-wide school tax is computed and distributed.

School Looted

Books, a purse, stop watch and cash totaling $83 were reported stolen Sunday or yesterday from McDowell School, Petaluma, police said.

Child Beater Target Of Abuse Bill

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —A bill designed to tighten state child abuse laws was introduced Monday with a physician's warning that "we all have within us the potentiality to beat our kids to death."

Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, the measure's author, told a news conference child abuse was "the most pernicious and humiliating disease to afflict children."

Dr. Patricia Hallinan, of Ross, former director of crippled children's services for the Marin County Public Health Department, said battered children — when they become adults — often beat their own children.

"It keeps on and on unless you interrupt," she said.

The physician said parents who batter children are usually young with a "low threshold of tolerance." But, she noted, "We all have within us the potentiality to beat our kids to death."

Ryan's bill would make it a misdemeanor for medical or school officials to fail to report suspected cases. In addition, a special three-member county committee would be set up to investigate each case and report to the juvenile court. Abused children would be made wards of the court and their parents would be required to undergo counseling.

Ryan said current law requires such cases to be reported but "we don't like to admit the truth" that "we beat and strangle and burn and suffocate our own children."

Cycle Stolen

James Netter, 591 Wilson Street, Petaluma, told Petaluma police that his BSA motorcycle, license 994876, was stolen Saturday while it was parked in the 20 block of Petaluma Boulevard South.

DRUGS IN THE CLASSROOM: Can They Help?

By ARNOLD ARNOLD
(Second of six articles)

Minimal brain dysfunction and hyperkinesis describe child behavior about which even the experts disagree. The following are among the 38 forms of behavior diagnosed as hyperkinesis: "Fidgeting; restlessness; inattention; is difficult to manage; can't sit still; is easily distracted; can't take frustration; displays anxiety; has no self-control; breaks things impulsively; has a lot of accidents; is nervous, irritable, undisciplined and clumsy; is a poor sleeper; seems 'slow'; has a relatively high I.Q. but is an 'underachiever'; suffers perceptual disorders; is 'dyslexic'; is hostile, excessively aggressive; shows more than the usual amount of 'sibling rivalry' ".

Virtually any one or any combination of some of these symptoms can be found in every child at one time or another. But in the opinion of certain educators, psychologists and physicians, they are all indications of "minimalbrain dysfunction" and "hyperkinesis."

William Cruikshank, who conducted research in this field in 1959 at Syracuse University, cautioned that a child who demonstrates these symptoms might under various circumstances be classified as brain damaged, or as emotionally disturbed, or as having home problems, or he might have a psychopathic personality, or a home that was too permissive, or one that is too authoritarian. "In some situations such a child might be classified as being a 'real boy' whose disciplinary problems are ones he will outgrow."

THE ARGUMENT about symptoms, diagnoses and treatment of such children rages back and forth in the medical literature. Still, parents are expected to accept without question the diagnosis and drug prescriptions of those who favor the "brain damage" theory.

MBD and hyperkinesis have become the favorite description of children in whom parents and teachers have failed to instill required controls, or who may be suffering the effects of TV addiction. The drugs prescribed for such children are dangerous. Swiss researchers found two children inadvertently poisoned and killed by two of the drugs dispensed, on very slight evidence, to U.S. school-age children.

The Food and Drug Administration sent out warnings concerning some of these drugs during 1970. But three months later, queried physicians and school health authorities in areas where they are prescribed had neither heard of nor heeded this caution.

Some of the drugs described in the first of this series of articles offer hope for reaching a tiny fraction of children who, due to neurologically diagnosed causes, are unable to function. But they are threatening when they are used in a manner akin to thought control for conditioning unruly but normal children or to help them score high on standardized tests.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are indeed more "hyperactive" — restless, bored, and inattentive — than those of 20 or 30 years ago. They are over-stimulated, and at the same time they lead very restricted lives. They have few opportunities to work off physical energy. Urbanization, lack of play and exernise spaces, crowded conditions at home, in school and outside, and TV addiction create symptoms that are identical to those loosely ascribed to "hyperkinesis" and "minimal brain dysfunction."

The questions that urgently needs to be answered is whether it is more desirable to adapt children to a hostile social climate by feeding them drugs, or whether it might not be more in their interest to alter those aspects of their world that interfere with normal child development.

A study conducted at Lackland Air Force base in 1963 by Drs. Sanley Graven and Richard Narkewicz disclosed symptoms in 30 children that match the MBD and hyperkinesis diagnosis closely. They termed it the "tired child syndrome." After eliminating all other possible causes, they discovered that these children were avid TV watchers who sat glued to the screen for five or more hours daily. The symptoms disappeared in direct proportion to parental control exercised over their children's TV watching. Those who watched not at all or for less than one hour per day had a complete remission of all symptoms for as long as they were kept to this regimen.

Also generally ignored by those who advocate drug-assisted behavior control in the classroom is research like the 40-year study conducted at the Institute of Human Developmentat the University of California, Berkeley. Here the same subjects have been tested from birth to middle age. Among many other findings it discloses that the "explosive hyperactive, pre-adolescent boy tended . . - in adolescence . . . to be rated active and adventurous . . . To what extent and through the mediation of what mechanism these persistent personality traits are inherited, affected by the environment, and develop in the interaction between heredity and environment, is not clear."

PERCEPTUAL DEVIATION from the expected norm of how children see, hear, touch, taste and smell, is yet another basis for MBD diagnoses. But EEG research at the Burden Neurological Institute in Bristol, England, described by Dr. Grey Walter in his book, "The Living Brain," has identified three different kinds of perceptual dispositions in normal children. Two of them are at odds with what conventional schools and psychologists consider "normal." But these two identifiable groups of children represent about one-third of the child population.

Our school curricula make no allowances for teaching one-third of all children in a manner that is in tune with their dominant styles of perception. This is especially significant, since the figure 30 per cent recurs in the statements made by some who favor drug-assisted behavior control of MBD children, as the likely percentage of those suffering from this disability.

Dr. Gray Walter tells of a boy "brought in for an EEG examination because he was so backward that there was anxiety about his state of mind; at the age of nine he could not read . .

The results of intelligence tests unequivocally classed him as 'defective' . . . (but) his brain record revealed nothing more ominous than large persistent alpha rhythms . . . That was all . . . These merely indicated that it was useless trying to teach him to read pictorially." Dr. Walter suggests that such a boy, properly taught, could well turn out to be a brilliant abstract thinker.

None of this is intended to suggest that children who are classified as genuinely brain damaged after a thorough examination by a qualified neurologist are not in fact just that. But few doctors are equipped to make such a judgment, nor are Ritalin or amphetamines cures. Finally, the number of children who are diagnosed as suffering minimal brain dysfunction is far greater than the likely incidence of this condition in the population.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Great Annexation Game May Be Back With Us

A decade ago, San Rafael set the game going with a move to annex Terra Linda. It turned out that not enough Terra Lindans wanted to be annexed.

In the intervening decade, the original Terra Linda has been virtually surrounded by annexations to San Rafael, but it continues its way with a community services district operating a mostly volunteer fire department and a separate recreation-parks district operating a recreation program.

A FEW YEARS later, Mill Valley started the annexation ball rolling again, with big plans to annex Alto, the Strawberry Shopping Center, and even keep going through Tennessee Valley all the way to the ocean.

That started the new city of Tiburon on the annexation trail. Although it had no police department, no planning department, no recreation department and little public works department, it felt ready to acquire more territory.

Prize plum sought by both Mill Valley and Tiburon was the Strawberry Shopping Center. Neither of them got it. Mill Valley annexed much of Alto. Tiburon got nothing. And after awhile, the contest just faded out.

PRINCIPAL REASON for a revival of the Great Annexation Game at this time is a change in rules by the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau, which puts out ratings that are used as the basis for fire insurance premium rates by most underwriters.

For a decade, residents just outside cities or fire districts — who really have no assured fire protection except the county department — got a preferred rating which kept their insurance premiums relatively low. But this year, the fire rating bureau abandoned that. The result is a sharp increase in the rates.

This puts the squeeze on the old pocketbook. The hate of City Hall appears a lot less rational when the saving in fire insurance premiums would more than pay the city taxes.

This will make no difference to Terra Linda, which has its own fire department. But it is likely to bring annexation of many other areas adjacent to cities. A recent Meadowsweet annexation in Corte Madera was spurred by this consideration.

Election Cost Curbs: Ideas, No Consensus

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Congress is getting more ideas than it can easily digest about how to rewrite obsolete federal laws governing the collection and use of money for election campaigns.

There is no more evidence than ever of a bipartisan or even a partisan consensus on new laws.

President Nixon has neither offered nor promised recommendations, although his party's leaders in the House and Senate have joined in sponsoring election reform proposals. But there is little similarity between the measure introduced by Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott and another co-sponsored by House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford.

IT HAS BEEN almost 10 years since President John F. Kennedy reminded that an earlier Republican President, Theodore Roosevelt, had suggested in 1907 that the national political parties should be financed by the federal treasury.

Kennedy liked the idea and appointed a commission to propose improvements in funding presidential campaigns. The commission refused to endorse treasury financing, at least until tax incentives for campaign contributions were tested.

Congress still has not approved tax incentives for contributions, although they are proposed in many of the election reform bills which have been introduced.

Another common provision in these bills calls for a much better system of reporting who contributes money and how it is spent than existing laws which tend to conceal or to deceive.

BECAUSE OF SOARING television costs, Congress passed a bill last year to limit what couleee spent for campaign broadcasting. President Nixon vetoed it with the explanation that it would plug only one hole in a sieve.

Mansfield's bill includes the provisions of the vetoed bill along with limits on other campaign advertising, tax incentives for small contributions and new disclosure requirements for campaign spending without the present spending limitations.

Democratic National Committee officials recommended that the Treasury finance campaigns for presidential and congressional candidates but said the Mansfield bill was their second choice.

Scott's bill would provide tax incentives for contributors, new requirements for reports on spending, preferential rates for campaign broadcasting and repeal of spending ceilings.

Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, chairman of the House Republican caucus, is author of another bill with Ford and more than 70 other House members as co-sponsors. It would provide tax incentives, new disclosure requirements and federal subsidies for campaign broadcast time for candidates for President and Congress.

Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, the only announced Democratic presidential candidate, has introduced a bill to provide federal money for presidential and vice presidential campaigns while allowing an equal amount to be raised from private sources.

Trial Is Certain To Be Quite Public

Attorney Allen Brotsky's assertion (March 3, "Angela's Attorney Asks Bigger Room") that denying admission to a "substantial representative number of those interested in attending the proceedings denies the defendant her right to a public trial" is laughable in view of his memo attached to his motion noting that 60 seats in the courtroom have been assigned to the press.

If that isn't a public trial, then what on earth is?

Nature Conservancy Stories Appreciated

Now that the full page spread on the Hope Wheelwright Preserve has come out, I want to thank George Nevin, both by myself and in behalf of Huey Johnson, for the excellent job of reporting he did for us on our recent acquisition at Green Gulch Ranch. The attention to detail and positive tone you showed in his writing on both the Green Gulch and Slide Ranch purchase will certainly help in bringing the conservancy's land saving efforts in Marin to the attention of many potential benefactors.

Thanks To Many Friends In Need

When you lose your house and everything you own by fire as we did last Sunday night (Feb. 27), you wonder, after the shock subsides, where and how you begin a new life. I decided I star (1) being grateful for being alive, (2) being grateful for all the help, love and friendship that was without hesitation offered to us.

To say thank you to everyone is perhaps impossible, but — thanks to Chief Frank Nelson, who not only fought the fire but who is also a very kind human being; to neighbors, Jean Bean, Judy Mangelman, who immediately took us in, did our thinking and took care of us; to Bob Simmons, city councilman, who immediately came and got us through all the practical business we were incapable of even knowing about, much less do; to Peter Friedman, the Kimmelmans, the Stewarts, the Cresses, the Motells and the many others who came, called and extended help in all ways. I don't even know some of the names. But thanks.

Material things are important and necessary, but the most important thing in life is people. And when they are so great you can only say thanks and hope they understand how much that word means.

SFO Helicopters Should Be Saved

It isn't enough that the political principals controlling the destiny of Marin County have not yet achieved a reasonable and acceptable surface transportation concept for getting to and from San Francisco, but now we also have an air travel dilemma in the making by subjecting SFO helicopter to economic pressures that may end up with terminated service to S.F. International Airport.

I fail to comprehend the thinking and unresponsive action by our county representatives. For the so-called most income-per-capita county in the state of California we sure are backward in responding to the needs of those filling the tax coffers.

If Marin County can afford to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to provide extraordinary security measures for alleged criminals, then we should also be economically capable of supporting essential mechanisms for the daily living of the County tax payer.

GORDON L. PARKINSON

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The Russians are paying plenty for their Latin American foothold in Cuba.

In Moscow, at the end of February, the Russians and the Cubans signed their annual trade agreement in ceremonies at which Mikhail Kuzmin, a first deputy minister of Soviet Foreign trade, said that 1971 would see an increase of $110 million in the value of Russian goods sent to Cuba.

Soviet aid has been keeping the Cuban economy afloat for the last 10 years, and the Cubans now are estimated to owe the Russians more than $3 billion exclusive of military aid.

With the Cuban economy going deeper into the hole each year, the Russians can have but little hope of ever being repaid.

THE LOGICAL question is how long will the Russians continue a policy which seems to be one of ever-diminishing returns?

In a nuclear war between the United States and the Soviet Union, Cuba's value to the Russians would be dubious.

But, since Latin America is regarded by many as the next great area of cold war conflict between the United States and the Soviet Union, its peacetime value or its value in case of conventional warfare is enormous.

It gives the Russians a friendly port where no other exists. It can provide the Soviet navy with food and facilities for shore leave and repairs.

It could interfere with shipping through the Panama Canal and threaten the canal itself. It also could pose a threat to shipping moving out of the mouth of the Mississippi River.

Further, it has the prestige value of providing the Russians a haven in waters heretofore exclusively American.

AS FOR THE Cuban people themselves, even Fidel Castro admits the immediate future is not bright.

Rationing which began in 1962 has become even tighter. Cigars and cigarets were put on the rationing list last year for the first time.

For Cuba's ills, Castro has the diagnosis but not the cure.

In speeches he has blamed the country's plight first of all on high absenteeism and low labor productivity.

At one point he took to task workers who took warnings on the health hazards of smoking as a reason to neglect the tobacco crop.

Sugar remains Cuba's chief money earner. Last year Castro pressed for a crop of 10 million tons but fell a million and a half tons short despite drawing off workers from industry and all other forms of Cuban enterprise. This year he has told Cuban workers the crop must come to seven million tons.

(Reprinted from Long Beach Press-Telegram)

The Long Beach chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has urged that the Angela Davis trial be conducted in a special way.

The chapter proposes that the trial be held in a "black community" before a black judge and a black jury reflecting Miss Davis' "life style and peer group."

One aspect of the demand is unclear. We are told that "black community" does not mean an area populated by blacks by an "atmosphere and life style." It is difficult to see how a trial can be conducted in any atmosphere and life style other than the atmosphere and life style of the courtroom. Leaving that problem aside, there remains the question of whether Miss Davis can have a fair trial if the judge and some of the jurors are white.

THE LAW, as set forth in many court decisions, would say that she can. Experience in other cases supports the conclusion that fair trials can result where potential jurors are a fair mix of the population of the community at large.

Miss Davis does not feel herself a part of the community at large. She sees herself as part of a minority community. Accepting her notion of what her community is, the Long Beach NAACP argues that the judge and jurors should be drawn exclusively from that community.

An alcoholic charged with drunken driving might contend that his community is that of drunks and that his trial should be conducted in the atmosphere and life style of the saloon, with judge and jurors drawn from its habitues.

MISS DAVIS might reasonably say that her community is not the black community at large but the much narrower community of black scholars who are also Communists. Since there probably aren't 12 such people in the country, she might then argue that a fair trial is impossible.

Such a preselection process in choosing jurors would weight the odds in an intolerable way.

What society wants is an unbiased jury. What both prosecution and defense. Desire is a biased jury. The best way for society to achieve its desire, while giving prosecution and defense a chance to achieve theirs, is to insist that the prospective jurors represent the population at large.

Then the prosecution and defense can exclude those prospective jurors who by statements in court, family background, organization membership or other clues suggest bias — or, to be more accurate, suggest the wrong kind of bias from the viewpoint of the lawyer who is excusing them from the jury.

Tough Selling Job Ahead For Petaluma's City Council

The Petaluma City Council may be spending some late nights in the next few months studying the art of salesmanship, and it certainly will be necessary if the proposed $2 million sewer bond election is to be successful in June.

Even though the final vote on calling the election won't be taken until March 19, the council has been besieged by pessimism and confronted by persons already organized to defeat the measure.

Bond elections — whether for schools or municipal facilities— are hard to sell. Voters simply hate to see their taxes go up. Southern Sonomans made that very clear in heavily defeating the Feb. 20 school tax rate increase.

NOT ONLY WILL the Petaluma Council have to persuade those who are absolutely against anything that will raise taxes, but also those who might be willing to put out more money for progress.

The east side of Petaluma is generally made up of young families who would be inclined to support measures that would better their lives despite higher taxes. What the council will have to prove is that increasing the capacity of the sewer plant will achieve that aim.

All of the ills of the city, including crowded schools, undeveloped parks and traffic congestion, have been blamed on the council. "Poor planning," complain eastsiders.

COUNCILMEN AGREE that things could be better and cite the retention of a planning consultant firm as proof that they mean business in plotting a better community for the future.

The report will cost between $26,000 and $32,000 and is expected to cover such diverse subjects as zoning, land use, housing and a general update of the 1962 general plan.

For the price of $32,000 one wonders how many problems can be solved by the planners. Consultant fees are generally enormous and the fee to Williams and Mocine led some to wonder whether the council is wise in putting all its eggs in the consultant's basket.

If the planners merely spend several weeks at City Hall gathering information, go back to their offices and write professionally worded chapters accompanied by colorful maps and graphs, the council will have a difficult time passing off the report as new and vital.

ONE THING is certain, before the council can swing enough "yes" votes on the sewer expansion plan, it will have to prove that it can control the growth that sewer expansion will promote.

The theory of growth at any cost is dead in Petaluma. Residents would by far rather see a stop to uncontrolled growth and certainly will not pay higher taxes to prolong it.

War Museum Comes In Handy For Defense Chief's Briefings

WASHINGTON — I don't mind the Pentagon lying to me on a large scale such as when they flatly stated a few months ago that they were not keeping any files on civilians.

But it's their little lies that get me down. For example, the other day it was revealed that a rusty piece of oil pipe Sec. of Defense Melvin Laird showed to newspapermen and implied had been captured during the Laos offensive turned out to be over a year old and had nothing to do with the recent Laos incursion.

Secretary Laird was trying to use the pipe to prove the South Vietnamese were making great headway and had managed to cut the North Vietnamese oil supplies in Laos.

When the truth was discovered, the Pentagon naturally protested; they never said it was this year's pipe.

WELL, IT DOESN'T take much imagination to realize what some future Pentagon briefings are going to be like.

I can just see us all filing into the Pentagon briefing room where Mr. Laird, wearing his usual ebullient smile, welcomes us. Besides the usual maps, a display of weapons and supplies are on the stage.

Mr. Laird says, "Gentlemen, I am happy to report that the South Vietnamese have just captured a large cache of weapons in Laos." He holds up a rifle.

"Is that one of the rifles captured, Mr. Secretary?" a reporter asks.

Mr. Laird smiles and says, "Pardon me. I didn't understand the question."

"I said, is that rifle one of the weapons captured in Laos?"

"Well, yes and no," Mr. Laird replies. "This rifle actually was found after Custer's last stand at Little Big Hone. But our intelligence indicates the weapons discovered look just like it."

MR. LAIRD picks up a frozen chicken. "The ARVN found 12,000 chickens just like this one on Route 9."

"Is that a Laotian chicken?"

"Would you please speak louder?"

"Is that a chicken from Laos?"

Mr. Laird confers with a general and then smiles and says, "No, this chicken comes from Belleau Woods. It was captured at the end of World War I. But we wanted to give you some idea of the success of the ARVN mission. Are there any questions?"

"WHAT ARE THOSE ration cans over there, sir?"

"Oh, yes, we captured five tons of those two days ago in Cambodia."

"But there is German printing on the labels."

Laird confers with the generals. Then he smiles and says: "I erred. These cans come from the Battle of the Bulge in World War II. But we wanted to give you some idea how sneaky the enemy really can be.

"Mr. Secretary, where did the sandbags come from?"

"DID YOU FLY the sandbags all the way back to Washington?"

He confers with the general again.

"No, not exactly. These sandbags were captured at the Battle of Iwo Jima. We thought you might be interested to note how far behind the enemy was in sandbag design. Are there any questions?"

"Is that everything that was captured?"

Mr. Laird smiles. "Except for one small surprise." He presses a buzzer. The large doors of the briefing room open and a Chinese tank rumbles into the room.

"What do you think of that, gentlemen?"

"Where did you get it?"

Report Due On Progress Of Gym Work

A progress report on the repair of safety hazards at the Terra Linda High School gymnasium will be presented to the San Rafael Board of Education at 7:30 p.m. today at the district office at Third and E streets.

At its last meeting, the board ordered immediate action to eliminate possible shock hazards from electrical outlets near the pool, slippery tiles around the pool and possible hazards from the steel bleachers.

The board also is slated to adopt the school calendar for 1971-72 and to approve an architect's contract for additions and improvements at Santa Venetia Middle School. Cost of the work has been estimated at $160,000.

Mother, Infant Hurt In Crash

Judith A. Ritz, 27, of 14 Cader Court, Petaluma, and her son, Ronald, 1, were injured yesterday when they were struck by a car at 1:35 p.m. at the intersection of Keller and Washington streets, Petaluma.

Mrs. Ritz told police she would see her family physician for treatment of cuts. Police said they were struck in a crosswalk by a car driven by Vernon E. Acker, 56, of Hamilton Air Force Base.

Prayer Idea On Agenda

Whether to pray or not to pray at council meetings will be discussed by the Novato City Council at 8 p.m. today at the Novato Community House.

The council will also consider purchase of the San Marin Club recreation facilities.

Other matters to come before the council include a study of consolidation of police activities, a foot bridge over Novato Creek at the branch library, a capital improvement program proposed by the park and recreation department and improvements on Reichert Avenue.

Razor Blade Company Defends Its Newspaper Sample As Safe

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

The American Safety Razor Co. defended itself Monday against complaints that a newspaper advertisement insert containing a sample razor blade was possibly dangerous, especially to children.

The company, a division of Philip Morris Inc., said it recently had conducted a test with one of the nation's largest newspapers in which specially packaged (Personna) blades were delivered with the Sunday edition. (In Marin, blades were included in home deliveries of Sunday's San Francisco Chronicle-Examiner.)

"There were no reported accidents or complaints," the statement said. "Therefore it was decided to extend the same method of introducing a new product to other markets."

A number of complaints were reported around the country Monday from person worried about children hurting themselves on the blades, which were pasted to the newspaper advertisement insert in a white plastic package.

Inside the outer bag, the blade was wrapped in two more protective coverings — waxed paper and a sealed paper envelope.

On the outside the package were printed the words "contains razor blade" and "keep away from children". It also carried the instructions: "Do not tear. Cut with scissors along dotted line."

The ad was estimated by the company to have been carried in about 10 cities with a combined circulation of four million.

In California, the Orange County Health department issued a warning to parents about the ad. No injuries were reported, however.

The Los Angeles Times, which carried the ad Sunday, also reported that it, along with several radio and television stations and several police departments, had received complaints.

Some advertising directors of papers involved said they had tried "every way possible" to rip open the package containing the blade but were unable to do so.

SPILL ENDS HILLSIDE RUNAWAY

This garbage truck, loaded with debris from a Mill Valley construction site, overturned on Molino Avenue near Janes Street yesterday, injuring the driver and spilling rubbish onto the shoulder of the road. Driver Lloyd E. Robinson, 40, of San Francisco, was treated at Marin General Hospital for concussion following the 1:37 p.m. accident. Mill Valley police said he told them he was eastbound on Molino approaching its intersection with Montford Avenue when his brakes failed on the steep hillside road. After a 200-yard run, the truck hit a parked car and overturned. The truck is owned by Marin Sanitary Service, 122 Front Street, San Rafael.

Account Of Firm Used In Purchase

Two men who were familiar with purchasing procedures bought $746 worth of plumbing supplies on someone else's account yesterday at a San Rafael firm, police reported.

The purchase was reported by Collins-Marlow Supply Co. of 8 Lovell Avenue, which said the supplies were charged to Dill and Sederberg Co. of 290 Camino Alto, Mill Valley.

The men used a valid Dill and Sederberg purchase order and appeared familiar with that firm's purchasing method, police reported.

One of the men signed the name "Bob Lyons" to the order, but it was a fraudulent signature, according to police.

One man was described as about 32 years of age, six feet tall, weighing 200 pounds with short brown hair. He was wearing a tan ski cap and blue coveralls. The other was about 28 years of age, five feet nine inches tall, weighing 170 pounds. He had long brown hair, a dirty brown hat, a dirty jacket and blue coveralls.

Sewer District To Be Discussed

The formation of an improvement district to install a sewer system at Oceana Marin will be discussed at 8 p.m. today by the North Marin County Water District board at the office at 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato.

The commission will also discuss an agreement with Marin County on the development of a park at Stafford Lake.

Petaluma Valley Homeowners Oppose $2 Million Sewer Bond

The Petaluma Valley Homeowners Association voted last night to oppose the proposed $2 million sewer bond election until a master plan for development has been adopted.

By resolution, the association said that an intelligent decision on the proposed expansion of sewer facilities cannot be made in the absence of a master plan. The group said the city council must first spell out explicitly how new growth permitted by expanded sewer facilities will be controlled.

The group urged the council to move ahead with the master plan development and called the proposed June 8 election "premature."

The association also voted to supply labor to build a park on the Eastside. President R. Richard Courier said the group had been in contact with city hall and civic groups to see that land and playground equipment would be furnished.

Donald Campbell and Kenneth Raithel were named co-chairmen of the park development committee and said they would report back when the target park site has been selected.

The club also went on record as supporting the Old Adobe Fiesta Association efforts to save the grove of trees across the street from the state park. Courier said members had been assisting the association in getting petition signatures.

Association members feared the grove of trees will be sold for commercial development and plan to appeal to the city, county and state to buy the land for a small park.

Donald Carey, merchandise manager at the Corte Madera Montgomery Ward store, last night was elected president of the association.

Carey, 32, attended Yuba Junior College, Trinity College in Chicago, Ill. and Chico State College. He has been employed by Montgomery Ward for eight years and was personnel manager at the Serramonte store in Daly City before moving to the Marin store.

He and his wife, Marsha, and two children have lived in Petaluma since July.

Other officers elected include Murial Birkland, vice president; Richard Frees, treasurer, and Gail Carr, secretary. Elected as directors were R. Richard Courier, William Johnson, Sue Langhans, Dinah McGovern and Nicholas Topolos.

Park Work Due Study

The Novato City Council will consider a recommendation to undertake a $1,046,000 five-year park and recreation capital improvement program at 8 p.m. today at the community house.

The parks and recreation commission has recommended the program for development of existing parks and purchase of additional sites.

Antiques Will Go On Display

Antiques and collectors' items will be on display March 16 at the San Rafael Improvement Club's annual Antique Show and Tea at its clubhouse, Fifth Avenue and H. Streets.

Highlighting the event will be a talk by John A. McKenzie of Scotland, a former senior appraiser with one of the leading British antique houses on "Art at Auction." He will speak at 1:30 p.m.

The show is open to the public.

Students Win U.N. Honors

Nine Terra Linda High School students have returned from a Model United Nations conference in Washington, D.C. after being named one of the four best delegations at the session.

Alexandra Barnett, instructional aide at the high school, said the delegation was awarded a U.N. flag by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., for accurately portraying the mood of France's representatives to the world body.

The Marin group, led by teacher Albert Gautraud and his wife, first flew to New York City last week to visit a UN session and talk with a French diplomat.

In Washington, the students, led by Michael Gould, "attempted to put themselves completely into the role of France" during a General Assembly session, Mrs. Barnett said.

The Terra Linda group was judged one of the four best in knowledge of its country and the position it would take on affairs coming before the U.N., Mrs. Barnett said.

Committee Work

The Marin County Democratic Central Committee will consider appointment of alternate members to the committee at 8 p.m. today at the Blue Rock Inn, Larkspur.

Kentfield Board Fires Teacher, Sees Attrition Cutting Overage

The Kentfield School District will not dismiss teachers because of an expected drop in enrollment next year, but rather will rely on expected staff resignations.

The decision came last night after the district board returned from closed session and announced one district teacher was being dismissed "for cause." Her name and the reason for firing her were withheld as she had not yet been notified.

Supt. Anthony G. Bacich said today the board earlier in the evening approved his recommendation that three teachers be notified they were losing their jobs.

He based his recommendation on a prediction that average daily attendance will drop next year by 60 students.

However, following the closed session to hear charges against one teacher and the vote to dismiss her, the board rescinded its earlier "reduction in force" action.

With the firing of one teacher, Bacich said, the predicted teacher overage is now two, with staff resignations and leaves expected to reduce the overage.

The board also heard last night a report from Dan K. Campbell on the outdoor education program at Adaline E. Kent School.

Sponsored by the school's parent-teacher association, the program for sixth graders includes five one-hour orientation sessions on ecology and six field trips.

Campbell, 23, last year disclosed that the Marin Municipal Water District was dumping sludge into Phoenix Lake. At that time he was conducting a similar program with the Ross School District.

The board voiced its support of the proposed Kent School program and directed Bacich to investigate the possiblity of financial aid in the fiscal 1971-72 budget.

In other action, the board authorized its architect, Corlett and Spackman of San Francisco to proceed with preliminary drawings for the hearing handicapped building at Kent School, heard a favorable report from seven students on the outdoor education camp at Santa Cruz and continued its review of the fiscal 1971-72 budget.

Girl Scouts And Problem Of Drugs

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Girl Scouts and drug abuse sound mutually exclusive but they are not—the Scouts are alert to the drug problem and even the possibility of it reaching out to their girls.

The role they have chosen for themselves in combatting drug abuse is prevention through education, starting at the youngest age levels.

Interestingly enough, the impetus for the anti-drug programs conducted by Councils in areas throughout the country comes from the girls themselves, not from adults.

Take the words of the writer of a background report when a Senior Girl Scout troop in Knoxville, Tenn., wanted a $500 grant to help furnish the living room of an Awareness House in Oak Ridge, Tenn., a grant which they eventually received.

She was explaining how the troop became involved with Awareness House, a youth center with a commitment to preventing and eliminating drug abuse.

In relating the history, she wrote: "Finally in November, 1969, we held our first 'Speak-with'—an encounter session of sorts with a panel of adults from the school, clergy and parents with an equal number of Senior Scouts. Our 'thing' for the evening was to convince our parents to take us seriously . . . please recognize (the drug problem) and give us some help?"

What really has happened in the Scouts is that it is the girls themselves who keep it contemporary, albeit with adult guidance.

When you and I were young, Maggie, Girl Scouts earned badges in first aid or camping skills, very nice but hardly in tune with the '70s. Nowadays, according to a spokesman for the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A., girls may earn badges in anything they wish, if they can provide a good case for its need.

The girls are encouraged to initiate their own projects, for which they must receive approval — usually granted — from national headquarters.

Mrs. Douglas H. MacNeil, president of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. said in the February issue of the Girl Scout Leader that "Girl Scouting and similar organizations have the all-important preventive rather than rehabilitative role. They are in a strategic position to provide the wholesome alternative to drugs and to build key peer-group pressures against drug use, which are so urgently needed."

What the Scouts are doing includes establishing a working relationship with Washington-based national organizations which distribute drug abuse literature; disseminating the best information available through various Girl Scout publications; holding senior conferences across the country on the drug problem.

The Girl Scout Council in Washington is working with Blackman's Development Center, an inner-city black organization devoted to fighting drugs, and its offshoot, B.O.L.D. (Blot Out Lethal Drugs).

SMOOTH SAILING

To Deputy Attorney General

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Joyce Ferris Nedde is a surprisingly gentle and softspoken young woman -- not to mention her model-like appearance — to be a California deputy attorney general who practices criminal law.

Most of her work is in state and federal courts, but she is qualified to argue cases before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Tall and slender, the blue-eyed Titian blonde lives in Mill Valley with her husband, Dr. Norman Robert Nedde, chief resident in orthopedic surgery for the combined program of six hospitals in San Francisco. He is in his last year of residency at St. Mary's Hospital.

PRESENT FOR a few minutes — until he was called on an emergency — during an interview at the couple's apartment in the Shelter Bay area of Mill Valley, he confirmed his full approval of and interest in his wife's career.

This proved to be only one example of what has been amazingly smooth sailing — apart from very hard work — for Joyce since she first decided to become an attorney.

Confidence that a woman can handle both a career and marriage was never a problem, for her mother is a physician who has maintained a general practice in Cincinnati, Ohio, for the past 25 years while rearing a family of three boys and three girls. Joyce is the oldest child.

"I was originally a pre-med student," she says, "I guess because I admired my mother's work, but I decided science was not my field, and I switched over in the middle of college and was graduated from Northwestern University with a B.A. in psychology and sociology.

"Though I had known only one attorney in my life, I thought I would like law and applied for admission to Harvard. I had no trouble getting into the law school. I had had good grades but was not an outstanding scholar.

JOYCE FERRIS NEDDE is a California deputy attorney general who practices criminal law. In her apartment in the Shelter Bay area of Mill Valley she outlines some of the points she plans to cover in a brief she is preparing for a case she will handle.

"AFTER A year at Harvard I transferred to the University of Louisville School of Law in Louisville, Ky." Joyce received her doctor of jurisprudence degree there in 1961.

She and her husband had met at Northwestern.

"Bob — that's what I call him rather than Norman — was head of the science department and taught chemistry in high school in Louisville, but we waited to get married until after I had received my law degree and had passed the Kentucky bar examination. He fully accepted my going on into a career, but he bought me a cookbook first," she laughed.

My first job was as attorney for the U.S. Corps of Engineers in Louisville. The next year we moved to Lexington, where Bob entered the University of Kentucky School of Medicine, and I worked as attorney for the Kentucky Department of Highways."

Joyce's first big job was that of assistant attorney general of Kentucky, the first woman ever to be appointed to that position, where she was chief counsel of the departments of education and mental health.

"I HAD NO trouble getting the job," she recalls. "I didn't even know there was an opening and just walked in and applied. The job was very interesting. I worked on school desegration with school boards and had fewer problems than I had expected."

Joyce held this position two years, until her husband was graduated and he took an internship at San Francisco General Hospital in 1966.

Again she had no trouble getting a good job — just walked in the office of the California Attorney General in San Francisco and was hired the next day for her present job as a deputy attorney general.

Quite unusual is the fact that she practices criminal law, since not many women are in that field. It was not due to any special interest on her part, she explains, but simply the need of a deputy in that field at the time she applied.

She has handled all kinds of cases — including murders, assaults, rapes, kidnappings and drug convictions — and has argued cases in state and federal courts. But she says most of the time her work involves written presentations in connection with appeals following convictions.

"I have never argued cases before the U.S. Supreme Court," she says, "but have handled some not requiring a personal appearance in Washington."

A MEMBER of the state bars of California and Kentucky, the San Francisco Bar Association and the Barristers Club, the 33-year-old attorney is also a leader among women in her profession, for she was recently elected president of the Queen's Bench, a group of more than 250 women attorneys in Northern California. She has been listed in "Who's Who of American Women" for several years.

As for the women's liberation movement, she says, "the main thing women's lib is about is equal opportunities, and I think women should be free to choose any career they are qualified for.

"The legal battle for equal rights is progressing very well. Perhaps now it is a matter of re-educating people and women changing their own concepts of themselves. So many feel the only proper place for them is as wives and mothers and that they can't or shouldn't do anything else.

"Then they pass this feeling on to their daughters with the result that they limit their aspirations, and the daughters don't try to get the necessary education for other careers. Or they may feel guilty if they do try to prepare for careers."

Joyce Nedde's advice to girls who would like to become attorneys is simply to get the necessary education and degrees, stressing a good foundation in English. She says she has found her own background in psychology and sociology very useful, but that no particular interest or field of knowledge is necessary because there are so many different aspects of law.

"THERE IS a place for almost anyone interested in legal problems," she emphasizes.

The Neddes have no children.

Mrs. J. R. Fitzhenry Elected Guild Leader

A native of Marin who has been a member of the Kent Woodlands Guild of Sunny Hills for 15 years has been elected guild president this year.

She is Mrs. J. Robert Fitzhenry of Kentfield, who held the office of president six years ago and has served in various capacities and on the guild's governing council for three years. She has served a year and a half on the board of directors of Sunny Hills Home.

She said that the guild is planning a silent auction and brunch in April to raise funds for the development fund. The guild supports the Sunny Hills Home in San Anselmo.

MRS. ROBERT FITZHENRY

Mrs. Fitzhenry also is a member of Indian Valley Women's Golf Club and the Women's Association of Redwoods Presbyterian Church.

Barbara Fitzhenry was reared in Mill Valley and she attended the University of California, and later Hunter College in New York and Indiana University when she was a member of the Waves in World War II.

She and her husband, who is chairman of the physical education department and basketball coach at Sir Francis Drake High School, are parents of Jack, 21; Colleen, 19; Patrick, 14 and Michael, 12.

"Because my family is sports-oriented, a great deal of my time is spent as a sports spectator," Mrs. Fitzhenry says, but she herself plays golf for recreation.

Other guild officers this year are Mmes. William Ingersoll, vice president; Irving Lewis, treasurer; Lewis Kerlin, recording secretary; Dean Solinsky, corresponding secretary; Thomas Torrison, Grape Festival booth chairman; George McKenna, Bargain Box; Jack Greaves, publicity and Robert Berry, membership.

MR. AND MRS. James B. Phelps, who will have been married 50 years tomorrow, reminisce about the many changes that have taken place in Mill Valley since their marriage as they look at the bridal picture of Mrs. Phelps. She is the former Carolyne Weissich. The Phelpses are the parents of Carolyne Wickham, wife of Mill Valley Mayor George Wickham.

Longtime Marin Couple See 50 Years Of Married Life

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Phelps of Mill Valley, who were married 50 years ago tomorrow in a ceremony at the Mill Valley home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Weissich, are both members of families whose history goes back many years in Southern Marin.

Mrs. Phelps, the former Carolyne Weissich, and her twin sister Marie, now Mrs. F. S. Seitz of Greenbrae, came with their family from San Francisco to Mill Valley in 1912 and were graduated from the Old Summit Avenue elementary school and Tamalpais High School.

James was born in Sausalito in the Water Street (now Bridgeway) home of his grandfather, Edward H. Shoemaker, who was superintendent of the North Pacific coast line. James was living in San Quentin at the time of the 1906 earthquake. His father, Charles Phelps, drove a stagecoach out of San Quentin and went on to a career in railroading from steam to skunk trains and finally as conductor on the Northwestern Pacific commuter trains in Marin.

A food broker, James was president of the Johnson Locke Mercantile Company of San Francisco until he retired 10 years ago.

Wedding party members attending were Mrs. Seitz, who was her sister's maid of honor; Mrs. Katharine Burbeck Johnson of San Anselmo and Mrs. Gertrude Gerdau of San Francisco, bridesmaids; Mrs. Dorothea Wood Kiff of San Anselmo, flower girl; and Mrs. Otto Weissich of Mill Valley, who played the wedding march on the piano with the late Walter Johnson playing the violin during the 1921 ceremony.

Both Carolyne and James Phelps have been active in various organizations.

Mrs. Phelps and Mrs. Seitz played a leading role in the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley, Mrs. helps as a vice president and Mrs. Seitz as a president. Both are 50-year members. Mrs. Phelps has also devoted a great deal of her time to the Red Cross and crippled children and many other organizations.

For 12 years Mr. Phleps served on the Mill Valley school board. Formerly a member of the Olympic Club and Commercial Club in San Francisco, he is a 45-year member of Post 284 of the American Legion (he served in England and France in the U.S. Army during World War I). He is presently a member of Sons in Retirement and enjoys attending their luncheons in Terra Linda.

Both Carolyne and James Phelps have a keen sense of humor, and while they find the changes in Mill Valley over the years not entirely to their liking, they take them philosophically.

"If you don't have a sense of humor nowadays," Mrs. Phelps says, "you might as well be dead. Coming from such a close family, I am saddened to see what is going on in families now. But I think we hear mostly about the bad things."

Not surprising was Mrs. Phelps' naming a sense of humor and love of family as the main necessities for a happy marriage over 50 years.

Mr. Phelps said a willingness to compromise was a most important requirement. With a twinkle in his eye he said, "You should have a daily quarrel — it's so much fun to make up."

Treating Tooth Decay

Tooth decay may be the most common chronic disease in the world. Dental experts estimate that there are now about 800 million untreated cavities in America's 200 million mouths. Almost everyone in every civilized country has had one or more decayed teeth. Even with the high prevalence of decay, both the exact cause and the cure for it are unknown.

Researchers have almost unaimously concluded that people don't get dental caries unless three conditions are present in the mouth: 1) certain bacteria; 2) fermentable carbohydrates; and 3) susceptible tooth survaces.

TOOTH DECAY, according to the National Institute of Dental Health, is preventable. Like many public health problems, the cure will depend on the amount of money available for research and education.

How To Lose A False Reputation And Still Keep The Boyfriend

DEAR HELEN:

A friend who has trouble getting guys got a thing going on this fella, so she asked me to call him and try to fix her up. I did, but instead of him getting interested in her (he's seen her around and says she isn't his type), he said my voice really sent him. So he got my phone number and started calling.

I knew my girl friend would be furious so I wouldn't let him come to see me. Then he called her and told her the score. Sure enough, whe was wild; said I'd double-crossed her, and started bad rumors all over school.

Well, I figured if I was going to be blamed, I might as well enjoy it, so I made a date with my unknown admirer. It turned out Jim (we'll call him) is the greatest guy in the world — and he likes me too.

But my former friend is making it tough. To hear her, I am a sneaky man-stealer. And you know how kids love to believe gossip.

How do I lose this false reputation and still keep the fellow I love? — LAURA

DEAR LAURA:

It takes a while, but truth usually wins over false gossip. Tell a few key people (good talkers) the real facts, and let the word spread.

Meanwhile, don't let it get you down. After all, you won a great boy friend: You're still ahead of the game. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm 18, what older people would call the hippie type, but I've had it with that scene. I've tried dope, sex and the rest and I don't want any more.

I almost lost my mind thanks to a bad tab of LSD. Not counting all the times I almost drove my parents crazy because they knew I was on drugs. They are the kind who don't want others to know our problems so they wouldn't call for help Maybe if they had, I wouldn't be writing this letter.

Everywhere I go I hear kids talking about love but I wonder if they think their sexploits are love? Ha! I oughta know. I started when I was 15, and learned my first lesson in love the hard way: I fell. He laughed. Since then I've just drifted from one dude to another, not really caring — just a physical thing.

And then I found out a month ago that when you meet someone who really cares, you feel you can't love in return because you're cheap and dirty. So you just walk away from the best thing you'll ever find.

That's what free sex and drugs do for you. I'm writing this so maybe it will help other girls who are tempted: Please don't. It only leads to heartache and lots of regrets. — WAY-OUT, NOW ON HER WAY BACK

DEAR WAY:

Don't walk away from a boy who really cares. He knows where you've been. He'll help you come back. Punishing yourself for things past can put you down again.

Forget the last three years and with his trust and strength, you can reach the highroad. (Natural high I mean.) — H.

tropics. Genetics andnutritional or emotional disturbances have been found to contribute to tooth decay.

A summary of current dental caries research, issued by Sugar Information Inc., promises that new weapons against decay are being pursued.

The most successful widely used means for building tooth resistance has been found to be flouridation of public water supplies. It has reduced the caries rate, according to reports, by 50 to 60 per cent where it is used.

Scientists are testing methods such as special mouthwashes and enzymes, for breaking up the sticky, transparent film called plaque that forms on teeth and furnishes a breeding ground for mouth bacteria. The traditional attack on plaque has been regular use of the toothbrush.

Hot-Pants Are Short-Shorts Of The '40s

NEW YORK (UPI)—In the 1940s they were known as short shorts and worn for sports or on the beach. In the '70s they are called "hot pants" among other things, are designed for wear anywhere, and are the hottest selling women's fashion in the country.

Stores throughout the nation surveyed by UPI confirmed that nothing is coming off the shelves faster than the new shortie fashion. It goes by many names. A number of stores shy away from the "hot pants" tag and call them "short cuts," "city shorts," "minishorts" or even just "short shorts."

THE DIFFERENCE today is the shorts are sold for all occasions and in all fabrics from denim to wool knit and jersey to satin and velvet, and for wear in almost any setting from temmis court to office to dance floor.

The heaviest buying is among slim girls in the 18-25 years bracket, with high schoolers also definitely interested. But it isn't confined to that group —a spokesman for Lord and Taylor in New York said the first "hot pants" shipment the store received, in bleached-out-denim, was sold to "all ages, up to the 40s."

Where they will be worn is another matter. Hot pants may be cool gear among the discotheque set, but most of the women checked by UPI were interested in them for sport and at-home wear.

For city wear, the new shorts have been seen on the streets of Beverly Hills and at Hollywood parties. Offices around the country are expected to take a dim view and few women would admit to wanting to wear them at the typewriter or behind the desk.

THERE ARE always some daring girls, of course. One 24-year-old editor for Simon and Schuster, Diane Neustadter, tried wearing a pigskin pair to the office and found, "The men loved it; the women hated it." She found them more comfortable than a miniskirt.

Store personnel in the warmer climates—cities such as Miami, Los Angeles, Houston and Dallas—predicted the shorties were a natural for those areas.

The colder and more conservative cities also seem to be panting for the new shorts, however, with sometimes meager store supplies selling well in Boston, Chicago, Milwaukee, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and elsewhere. In Washington, some women even are resorting to seamstresses to cut down longer pants.

The styles vary, from within an inch of indecency to more demure Jamaica and even Bermuda lengths. Some are worn with overskirts, preferably slit to reveal leg.

REACTOPMS RAMGE from Mrs. Ken Smith, 22, a Houston bookkeeper, who said, "They are going to be a lot more fashionable and a lot more flattering than the midis," to Atlanta's Aurelia Sawyer, who said, "Ye , Gad. It's just one more step toward nudity."

Men have something to say in the matter, too, if a married 20-year-old Atlanta girl is any judge. Asked if she would wear "hot pants," she said, "No, I'm too fat."

Today is Tuesday, March 9, the 68th day of 1971.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Pisces.

On this day in history:

In 1947 one of the longest strikes in American history ended after 440 days when the United Auto Workers came to terms with the Case Manufacturing Co. in Racine, Wis.

In 1962 a coal mine explosion in West Germany killed 31 men.

In 1967 Russian Communist dictator Josef Stalin's daughter Svetlana defected to the United States.

Another Look At A Deep Finesse From A Top Player

Yesterday I reported Edgar Kaplan's deep finesse with the four of trumps. Since we were swapping stories, I had to try to top him with a deep finesse of my own. My story describes a deep finesse that may be tied but will never be beaten.

DURING WAR

"The hand was played during one of my trips to Chungking in World War II," I told Kaplan. "Because of international complications I still can't identify the other players, but everybody who reads newspapers would recognize their names."

West, I related, led the eight of spades against a badly bid slam. I put up dummy's nine, and East covered with the jack, flashing his partner a look of the purest hate.

I took the king of spades, led a heart to dummy and returned the ten of spades. East muttered something vicious in Mandarin and covered with the queen of spades. I won with the ace, noting the fall of the seven.

OBVIOUS PLAY

The rest was obvious. I cashed the ace of hearts, ruffed the jack of hearts with dummy's last trump, cashed the ace of clubs and began to run the diamonds.

The trump situation was perfectly clear. East had the 4-2, and I still had the 5-3. Since there were no trumps in dummy, East hoped to get a trick with the four of trumps.

TRUMP FINESSE

As I ran dummy's diamonds, East discarded; and so did I. That brought us down to two cards each. When I led the king of clubs from dummy, East ruffed with deuce of trumps, and I overruffed with the three. In effect, this was a trump finesse; and nobody can ever top a winning trump finesse with the three of trumps.

"Can you swear to the truth of this story?" Kaplan demanded. "As soon as I can get permission from the State Department," I assured him. After all, I wouldn't want to start World War III over a lousy three of spades.

Change any king to an ace, and all experts would open the bidding.

Two Injured In Car Crash

Two 18-year-old men received minor injuries in a one-car accident at 2:21 a.m. Saturday, on Wolfe Grade road one mile north of Meyer Road, San Rafael police reported today.

Michael Bruce Friend, the driver, of 25 Rocklyn Court, Corte Madera, was treated for a cut forehead and right knee, Marin General Hospital officials reported. His passenger, Richard Arthur Morse, of 25 Antilles Way, Tiburon, was treated for bruised right elbow and chest, according to Marin General Hospital officials.

Police had no details of the accident.

Sir Francis Drake High School

When you first meet Betsy Chapman, Marin folk singer, something comes across even before she speaks.

Dressed in pink-and-white-striped bell bottoms, white pullover sweater, brown shoes, her shoulder-length hair tied back with pink yarn, Mrs. Chapman stood, smiling, before a Sir Francis Drake High School journalism class during an interview.

She spoke almost jokingly of her success. Her hopes are not colossal, she said, because she won't let her singing interfere with her family life. "I have no manager, I have no agent. My husband has suddenly become my manager, but I would like to have an agent sometime later."

"When I was a freshman," she said, "I had a guitar with two strings and we had a rally in the girls' gym, so I had the nerve to get up and play with only two strings. Can you imagine?"

Mrs. Chapman obtained the other four strings later and then went through a long process of learning to play the guitar — she still insists that she's not a musician.

Mrs. Chapman, who lives in San Anselmo, was reluctant to compare the Drake High of today with the school when she attended, but did make this observation about education:

"I'm sure you have much more going for you than we did. You're so much more sophisticated, inasmuch as your courses are more relevant. When I went to high school, it was more like an extension of grammar school."

She told of her experience in making commercials. With waving hands, exaggerated facial expressions, and convincing sound effects, she described the television commercial she did for Dolly Madison products to be shown during one of the "Peanuts" specials.

It hasn't been shown yet, and perhaps never will, but Mrs. Chapman still has hopes. Her most profitable commercial was made for Foremost Milk, in which she hummed the background music, played the guitar and boosted the product at the end.

"Everyone's style is something he develops himself," she said. "I think my best are ballads. I sing songs about love, unrequited love, songs of how people feel when they've lost someone they loved, ecology, anti-war, and some just plain fun songs."

"I started with religious songs, but I believe religion is just a way of living. Many people have turned off on it because they believe it's regimented — conforming."

Mrs. Chapman has written from 150 to 175 songs. "I always love every song I write when I write it, but after a few months I usually re-evaluate it," she said.

Her 11-year-old daughter, Terry, is a big fan of hard rock, especially of the big bands like Chicago, Credence Clearwater, and the like, but she still enjoys her mother's style, occasionally accompanying her.

Two years ago, when she cut her first and, up to now, only album, "A Gift of Love", Mrs. Chapman met several celebrities. One thing which stood out in her mind were the name-droppers, and listening to the talk of someone telling how he met " 'Bing the other day and he invited me to play golf.' "

Mrs. Chapman dislikes what she terms the phoniness of the business. She is happy with her success and would like the opportunity to do something big, but she is content now, being able to turn down jobs if she wishes. Her family comes first, she says.

There was something very refreshing in meeting a person like Betsy Chapman, someone with a bright personality, turned on to the people of today. Before the interview was finished, she sang two of her own songs; her talent and versatility were proven.

Addiction Hearing Is Next Week

I-J Special Report

UKIAH — A hearing has been set for next Tuesday in Mendocino County Superior Court to determine if John Rene Rodigou, 22, of San Rafael, is a narcotics addict or in danger of becoming one.

Rodigou has pleaded guilty to a charge of manufacturing LSD stemming from a $3 million LSD raid in Fort Bragg last June.

Meanwhile, three other Marinites are on trial before visiting Judge Kenneth M. Eymann of Sonoma County on charges of conspiring to make LSD, manufacturing it, possessing it and having it for sale.

They are Craig B. Champie, 21, of Fairfax; Michael B. Aylwin, 23, of San Rafael, and Wayne Butler, 23, of Forest Knolls.

The three, along with Rodigou and three other persons, were arrested after a dawn raid on a Fort Bragg house which police said contained an LSD laboratory and warehouse.

Judge Eymann was assigned to the case after two Mendocino judges and another visiting judge were disqualified.

The prosecution was expected to complete its part of the case today and the defense to begin tomorrow, according to a court clerk.

In addition to Rodigou, one other defendant, Ronald Gregory Wiggins, 23, of Santa Rosa and Los Angeles, has pleaded guilty. He is to be sentenced March 26 for conspiring to make LSD.

Broken Wrist In Fall Into River

Jeff Riley, 10, of 626 C Street, Petaluma, was treated at Petaluma General Hospital for a broken right wrist suffered Sunday at 4:20 p.m. when he fell into the Petaluma River.

Police said the youth was standing on the municipal dock at Water Street when he fell into the water, striking the side of the piers.

Volunteer Army Call By Clausen

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District, has called for passage of legislation to create an all-volunteer Army.

Clausen, who has coauthored bills in the past two sessions of Congress to create an all-volunteer Army, told the House Armed Services Committee that it would be "not only workable, but fair and just as well."

With proper incentives, he said, the services could attract and retain volunteers while eliminating the draft and permitting young persons to pursue their educations and careers without interruption.

"There just is no way to reform the draft or completely remove its many inequities," Clausen testified. "Military conscription, in the final analysis, is exactly what the name implies — inducing a young man to serve in the armed forces and, in many instances, against his will."

Clausen suggested that the base recruit salary, now about $2,750 a year with benefits, be "very close" to the $6,000 a year now paid the average unskilled blue collar worker.

Savings in reduced training costs and in the present high turnover would at least offset the higher cost of increased salaries, Clausen said.

Robbers Take Man's Wallet

A Mill Valley man was robbed of his wallet by two hitchhikers he picked up near Tamalpais High School last Tuesday, the Marin County sheriff's office reported yesterday.

According to deputies, James G. Weil, 27, of 65 Summit Street said the two men asked to be dropped off near Marin City.

Baar To Discuss Marin Welfare

"The Welfare Situation in Marin County" will be discussed by Louis H. Baar, chairman of Marin County Board of Supervisors, at noon March 17 before the Novato Republican Women Inc. at the Alvarado Inn in Ignacio.

A business meeting at 11 a.m. will precede the talk. Mrs. Harold Chapman is in charge of reservations.

Americans Freed By Turk Captors

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI)— Antigovernment Turkish guerrillas freed four kidnaped U.S. airmen Monday night, leaving them in an unguarded apartment 700 yards from the U.S. Embassy. The GIs walked to freedom through a door their captors left open.

The Americans said they had been well-treated and adequately fed on cheese, bread and olives in five days of captivity at the hands of guerrillas who called themselves the Turkish Liberation Army.

They threatened to kill the Americans unless the Turkish government paid $400,000 ransom.

"We did not pay a single cent," said a Turkish government spokesman.

Gholson said the guerrillas left the apartment about 11:30 p.m. Monday night without a word.

"We waited until we were sure we were alone," said Gholson. "Then we went out the door and down the stairs to the street and grabbed the first cab that came by."

"Every time we would lose our appetite because of some bad news or something, they (their kidnapers) would ask us if we wanted something to eat or drink. They kept emphasizing to us they would not hurt us," said Gholson. "They were great." But he said the Americans were nervous, "knowing our lives were on the line."

"They said they wanted to liberate Turkey," he said of their captors.

Radioman Testifies He Heard No 'Waste' Message

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—A radio operator who was with Capt. Ernest L. Medina's headquarters at My Lai testified today he never heard Medina message Lt. William L. Calley Jr. to "waste" Vietnamese civilains.

Roger D. Murray, 30, of Waukegan, Ill., was called by the government as it wound up its rebuttal case against Calley and prepared to rest in its attempt to convict him of the premeditated murder of 102 civilians during an American infantry sweep of the hamlet.

Calley, 27, who led a platoon in Medina's company on that March 16, 1968, sweep, has testified in his own defense that Medina twice ordered him in the field to shoot civilians who Calley said were impeding the desired fast advance of his platoon.

Medina is scheduled to testify here later.

Murray recalled that he carried the radio-telephone set that connected Medina, the company commander, to Task Force Barker headquarters. The task force was in command of the mission.

Murray said on cross-examination that his radio was not the one used to communicate with Calley at platoon headquarters and he would not have been directly involved in messages to Calley. But he said he stayed with Medina's command post all during the assault.

Murray said that he attended a briefing by Medina to his company the day before the operation and heard no instructions to kill women and children or to refrain from taking prisoners. Calley has testified that in answer to a question at the briefing, Medina said he meant women and children to be included in his "kill everything" orders.

Murray was the eighth rebuttal witness for the government to testify he heard no Medina order to kill women and children.

Murray's testimony followed that of Roger A. Alaux of Tempe, Ariz., who told the court that not long before the My Lai mission he went with Calley and the platoon Calley commanded on a mission to another village. He said one of two prisoners that Calley took and interrogated there was put in a well and shot.

Critics Hear ABAG Wins Top Award

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors — often critical of the Association of Bay Area Governments — heard yesterday that the association's regional plan had been judged as one of the top five in the nation.

Sonoma Supervisor Ignazio A. Vella, also ABAG president, sent word that the award had been made yesterday at the fifth annual conference of regional councils in New Orleans, La.

The ABAG 1970-1990 Regional Plan had been in competition with 600 other regional government plans. The award was based on substance, achievement of purpose, imagination, design and quality of writing.

The ABAG plan, which was adopted in July, provides a basis for continued federal funding for Bay counties in regard to open space, water, sewerage, mass transit and highway construction.

Vella's fellow supervisors have been critical of ABAG's operations and have called for a county-wide opinion poll on April 20 to determine if Sonoma County should withdraw from membership and form a new regional governmental with North Bay Counties.

No Changes Seen In Nation's Draft

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Selective Service said today the Supreme Court's decision prohibiting conscientious objector status solely because of the Vietnam War would cause very little change in the nation's draft.

A spokesman said the ruling confirms a guideline under which the Selective Service has been operating for some time. But had the Court ruled the other way, he said, "it might have opened up the floodgates."

The court ruled 8 to 1 Monday that Congress in passing the Selective Service Act intended to exempt persons "who oppose participation in all war —participation in war in any form."

The Selective Service spokesman, Ken Coffey, said most young men who opposed only the Vietnam War knew this and had not sought the objector classification.

The Selective Service said that between 90,000 and 100,000 young persons apply for objector status each year, but only about 36,000 receive such exemption.

The Selective Service has set up three guidelines for granting the status —the objection must be to all wars; it must be based on religious training or belief; and it must be of sufficient sincerity to have left a profound influence on one's life.

Local draft boards make the decision whether a young man qualifies.

The Court ruled in the case of Guy Porter Gillette, New York City, sentenced to two years in jail for refusing to report for induction, and against Louis A. Negre, of Bakersfield, Calif., who sought to get out of the service after he was drafted.

High Court Backs Utility Credit Rules

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Utilities may lawfully demand deposits from customers who can not establish credit, California's Supreme Court ruled on Monday.

The high court found the State Public Utilities Commission had acted correctly in approving the credit rules for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. and the Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

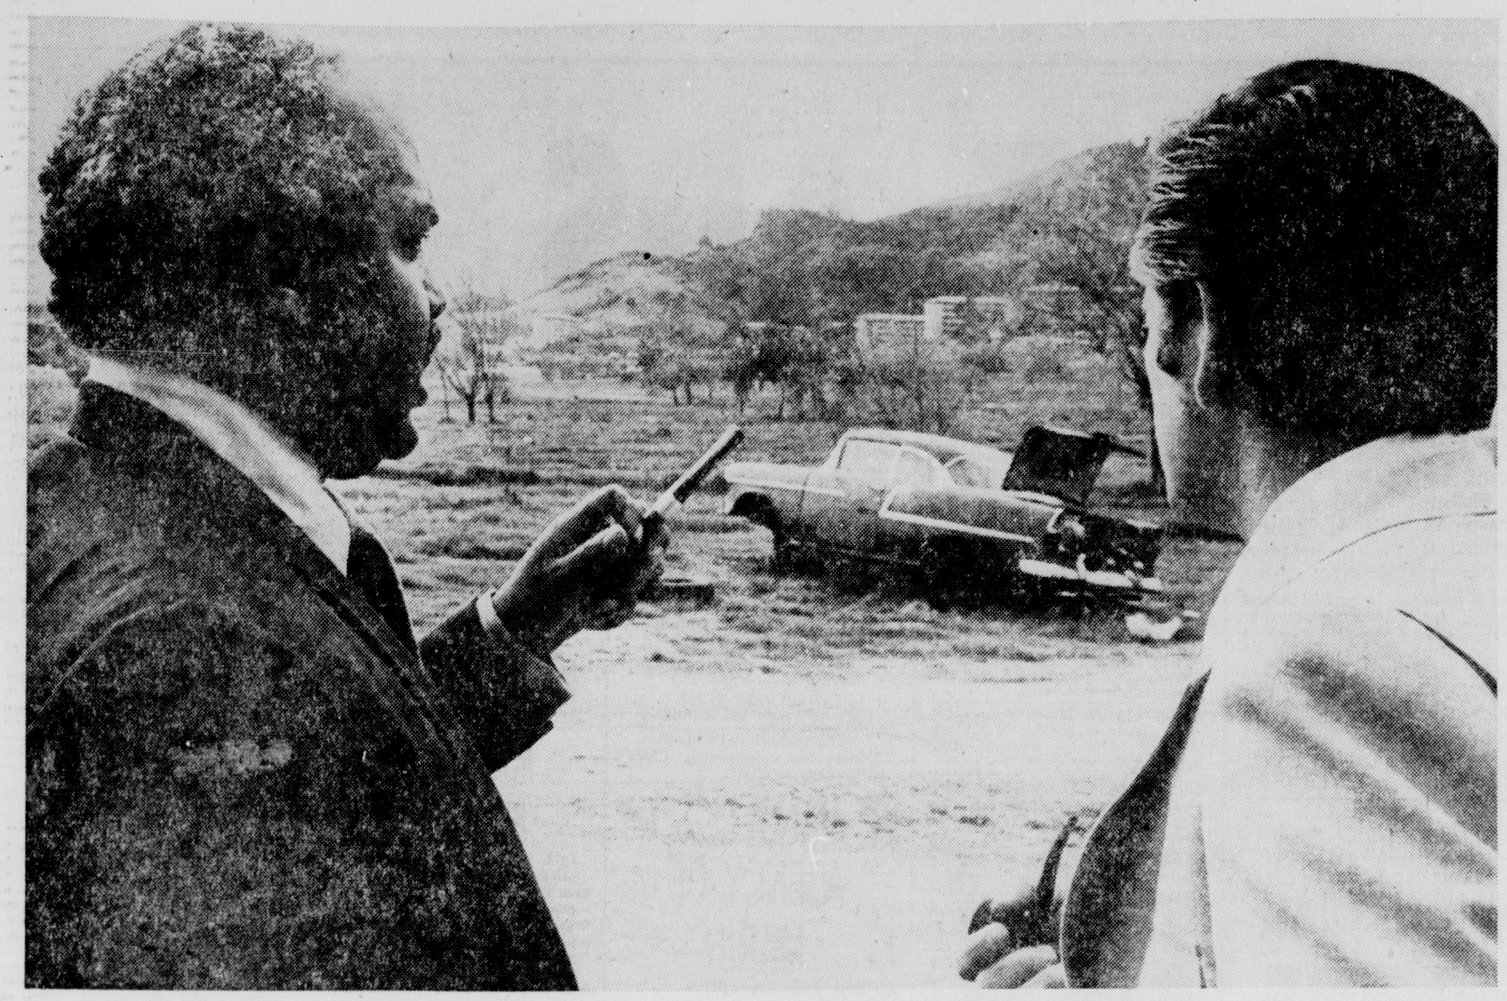
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, MARCH 9, 1971 15



VANISHING HOPE — Wallace K. Shepherd (left), executive director of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency, and his assistant, Keith Kelly, survey the junk-ridden land in the heart of Marin City. This was to have been the site of a Tamalpais High School District school building. Time is running out for development of Marin City under local control, Shepherd warns.

A Bleak Redevelopment Outlook

By PAT ANGLE

For the past 15 years the Marin County Redevelopment Agency has had the responsibility for developing Marin City into a complete suburban community.

But the shopping facilities, schools, businesses, recreational centers and private housing which the agency hoped to bring to the Southern Marin community have not materialized. For the past several years growth and development have bypassed Marin City.

Now, time may be running out for the redevelopment agency. According to its executive director, Wallace K. Shepherd, the agency currently has only $50,000 left in its coffers — enough to pay its administrative expenses for another 18 months.

And the situation is further complicated by the fact the agency has been operating illegally for two years, according to Shepherd, because his predecessor, Donald O. Stutsuran, did not seek anextension from the federal government when development of Marin City remained incomplete by a 1969 deadline.

"Even though it's a bleak picture, it's not a hopeless one," said Shepherd, who became head of the agency and the Marin County Housing Authority in December.

"What we have to do is make this agency — which hasn't moved in years — move forward to serve not only Marin City, but the entire county," he said.

Shepherd is aware that if the agency is to survive, a solid program of development must begin in Marin City. If the redevelopment group folds, Shepherd said the government will come in, take over the project and develop it as it wishes. "That would mean absolutely no local control on what kind of community we have here," he said.

The task facing Shepherd and the redevelopment agency is a formidable one. More than half the community's 300 acres of land — about $900,000 worth — has yet to be sold and developed.

A $1,556,297 loan from the federal government in 1958 to pay for streets, sidewalks, lighting and sewers needed to ready the land for development has not been paid off. And interest on the loan continues to pile up at the rate of $79,000 a year.

When the government granted the loan, four local agencies — the housing authority, the county of Marin, the Tamalpais High School District and the Sausalito School District — agreed to develop facilities in Marin City as the $778,000 local share required to obtain the federal money.

The county promised to build a police and fire station in Marin City as its contribution. The Tamalpais High School District agreed to build a high school and the Sausalito School District promised to build an elementary school in the community. To date, none of the facilities has been constructed, although a new fire station has been approved.

"Marin City's history is a history of broken promises," Shepherd said.

At the moment, the executive director's most important task is to ask the government for a five-year extension on the loan and an additional $900,000 to allow the agency to operate and pay interest on the existing loan for that period.

Shepherd said obtaining federal funds will not be easy, particularly because of the agency's history of nonaccomplishment. "We will have to have a solid, financially feasible plan for development and a developer who can really come through," he said. "We will have to prove to the government that we can really complete development of Marin City in five years or we won't get the money," he said.

To get the funds, about $300,000 will be needed from local sources. And Shepherd is hopeful some of the local agencies which made promises in 1958 will fulfill them in 1971. The only alternative, he said, is to ask for the money from the county which is already heavily burdened with financial problems and high taxes. "I don't want to have to go to the county," Shepherd stressed.

"I have been told over and over that no private developer would be interested in coming into Marin City," Shepherd said. "But I am finding out this is not true."

Whatever group is chosen, it will have to work closely with the redevelopment agency in convincing the federal government that the additional $900,000 sought will be well spent and result in real development in Marin City. "We have to prove to them we can do it this time," Shepherd said. "This is our last chance."

Finding the right developer may be the key to the entire problem. The lack of a developer who could make real progress in developing Marin City has hampered agency efforts in the past. For seven years the California Development Co. was the community's official developer, but the firm — after obtaining six agency extensions — left Marin City much as it found it — undeveloped.

At present, the Marin Urban Development Association MUDA, a group of Marin City residents, is seeking to become the community's official developer. The association already has obtained tentative approval from the housing authority and redevelopment agency boards, but Shepherd said no contracts will be signed until the association is approved by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The Marin City-based group is asking the redevelopment agency for a one-year contract to give it time to prepare complete development plans and studies showing its proposals are practical and economically sound.

Although Shepherd said he was not opposed to having the association as the community's developer, he would like to see any prospective developer come up with precise plans and financial studies before a contract is granted.

"If at the end of a year, MUDA does not come through — for any reason — the agency will have spent another $108,000 (for administration and interest costs) and accomplished nothing," he explained. "We cannot afford that."

Recently, several private developers have expressed interest in coming into Marin City, according to the executive director. Three of them — O'Donoghue Investment Co. of Marin, the Housing Corporation of Hawaii and Kaiser Aetna — will present proposals to the redevelopment agency board at 8 p.m. today in the Manzanita Center.

Shepherd said the O'Donoghue group, which built the Tiburon Hills Housing Project in Tiburon and the San Marin development in Novato, is interested in purchasing all the remaining land in Marin City and completing community development. The Hawaiian firm would like to build low-cost plastic housing in Marin City and a factory to manufacture that housing. And Kaiser Aetna is proposing construction of 110 units of multi-family housing, to be built privately, without federal subsidy.

Commune Ordinance Vote Urged

The Mill Valley Youth Commission, one of two city bodies that opposed an anticommune ordinance adopted last week by the city council, will mount a campaign to put the controversial law to a vote of the people.

Commissioners voted 6-5 to circulate petitions calling for a referendum election on the ordinance, which defines a family as no more than five unrelated persons. Other sections of the Mill Valley zoning ordinance prohibit any but a single family from inhabiting a residence in a single family zone.

Both the youth and planning commissioners asked the council not to enact the measure, but councilmen did so March 1 by a 4-1 vote. It becomes effective March 30.

Youth commissioners set a special meeting for tomorrow at 7:45 p.m. at the public library to discuss the petitions and hear an opinion from City Atty. Leland H. Jordan on legal requirements for the referendum.

Jordan said the youth commission has 30 days from March 1 to file with the Marin County Elections Office a petition bearing the signatures of at least 592 registered voters, 10 per cent of Mill Valley's total.

If the signatures are valid, Jordan said, the council has two options: It may repeal the ordinance outright or call a referendum election, which must be held between 60 and 75 days later.

Tools Stolen

Another Stabbing At Tense Quentin

One San Quentin inmate was stabbed in the back yesterday and two more suffered cut wounds today in the latest outbreaks of violence at the prison.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that the weapon apparently used to attack a death row inmate on Sunday was found in the cell of the man described as "San Quentin's most dangerous inmate," Leo Estrada Robles.

Injured yesterday was Wayne Dennis Early, 24, who was stabbed in the back three times at about 4 p.m. in the east cell block, according to James W. L. Park, associate warden.

Park said that Early was in good condition today and that prison officials had isolated a man suspected of being responsible for the stabbing. He did not identify the suspect.

Today about 7:40 a.m. two convicts who apparently got into a fight while returning from breakfast were treated for cuts, he said. Frank D. Tubach, 28, had a three-inch cut on his back and Douglas R. Spencer, 26, was treated for cuts on his shoulders.

No weapon was found, Park said. Both men had told officers they were injured.

Meanwhile, yesterday in Marin Superior Court, Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry R. Herman said that a seven-inch bed spring honed down to a sharp point and attached to a broom handle had been found in Robles' cell.

The weapon was believed to be the one used in an attack on death row inmate Million L. McShane, 29, who suffered a puncture wound in his chest but would not say who had assaulted him.

Robles, on trial for his life in superior court, also reportedly tried to stab a guard with a homemade weapon on Thursday.

Robles has been called the meanest man in San Quentin after being convicted of two murders and repeatedly having prison-made weapons taken from him.

He is currently being retried on the penalty phase of a murder case dating from 1967. The jury is expected to start deliberations tomorrow on whether he is to get life imprisonment or death for the murder of a fellow patient in the San Quentin psychiatric ward.

He had earlier been sentenced to death but the sentence was reversed by the California Supreme Court which ruled that the late Judge Harold J. Haley should not have allowed Robles to act as his own attorney.

During his current trial he has threatened to kill his attorney, Deputy Public Defender Edward Briggs, as well as numerous other people.

Arraignment In Pot Case

David Michael Dunbar, 18, and Matthew Martin Hanzlik, 18, both of Novato, were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of possessing marijuana and possession of alcohol by minors.

They are to plead to the charges Monday.

They were arrested Thursday when Novato police stopped their car for an equipment defect and found suspected pot and beer in the car, according to the police.

TV Set Stolen

Refusal For Rev. To Visit Angela Davis 'Misunderstanding'

It was just a "misunderstanding" that caused Rev. Cecil Williams of Glide Memorial Church to be kept from visiting Angela Y. Davis in Marin County Jail, County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney said today.

"It's all been worked out and Miss Davis has the same right as any other jail inmate to see a minister for two hours a week," Maloney said.

He explained that Williams, who has also "visited other jail inmates in the past," was excluded by mistake by jailers who didn't find his name on a special list of persons allowed to see Miss Davis at times other than regular jail visitng hours.

As to the minister's right to be a spiritual adviser to the avowed atheist, "That's out of my ken," Maloney said.

"Even if she's an atheist, maybe she gets some kind of consolation from Williams — or maybe he's trying to convert her — I don't know," Maloney said.

Meanwhile, Miss Davis, accused of conspiracy, murder and kidnapping stemming from the August shoot-out in which Judge Harold J. Haley was killed, was due in court today for her first appearance since she was arraigned on Jan. 5.

The court hearing today was at the request of her attorneys who ask that all future appearances be moved to a facility larger than the 104-seat courtroom in the Hall of Justice which has been used in the past.

The next court date for Miss Davis is next Tuesday at which arguments on several defense motions are scheduled.

Bicycle Rider Hurt In Crash

A 17-year-old Tiburon girl was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for multiple scrapes and bruises after her bicycle collided with an auto on Tiburon Boulevard, Tiburon sheriff's deputies reported.

Officers, who had no details of the accident, said Yvette Vloeberghs, of 5 Linda Vista Avenue, was hurt about 12:40 p.m. when her bike struck a car driven by Emily Aguilar of Tiburon.

Woman Hurt In 101 Crash

A 19-year-old San Rafael woman was injured yesterday at 9 p.m. when her car spun out on Highway 101 a half mile north of the Greenbrae Interchange, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Denise D. Watson, of 222 Coleman Drive, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a scalp wound.

Officers said she was northbound on the freeway when her car ran off the road. No further details of the accident were available.

Hurt In Wreck

Richard Donahue, 22, of 1145 Elm Street, Novato, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for head cuts suffered in an accident Sunday at 9:45 a.m. on Highway 101 at East Washington Street, Petaluma. The California Highway Patrol had no details on the accident.

"... Past the second stop sign, then to the left three blocks, then ..."

"When I look at an investment I have several important criteria — one, I want a good return on my investment; two, I want to know my investment is a secure one; and three, I want my money to be accessible. The Savings Counselor at Bell Savings showed me how one of the Golden Passbook Accounts paying 5¾% or 6% interest met all my requirements. In my own case I found the 6% Account worked into my portfolio perfectly. A $5,000 minimum deposit for two years has a yearly return of 6.18% after daily compounding. At Bell Savings they really care about you and your investment, and I appreciate it."

Marinwood Fireman To Training School

Marinwood Fire Commission members last night approved sending Fireman Kenneth Fowler to a fire officers' training school in Fresno during May.

Fire Chief Gaylord E.Bonfield said the commission also approved purchase of new parts for work needed on the district's fire engines.

Ordinance Wanted On Larger Animals

There's something wrong with a city ordinance that restricts the number of cats, dogs and chickens in a residential area but says nothing of horses, cows and donkeys, the San Anselmo Planning Commission decided last night.

Grabbing the mouse by the ears, commissioners directed Charles R. Leitzell, city engineer and planning director, to draft an amendment controlling larger animals.

Leitzell said today the matter grew out of discussions last night as the commission reviewed the city's zoning ordinance.

"We have situations where the larger animals are almost a public nuisance," he said, adding flies drawn by animals have limited the summertime use of some residents' patios.

Explaining there are strict restrictions on the keeping of chickens, geese and other fowl, and limits to the number of cats and dogs in residential areas, Leitzell said the commission became disturbed by the lack of regulations for larger beasts — mainly horses.

"No more than six cats over the age of eight months may be kept without a permit," he quoted the ordinance as stating and "fowl must be kept in cages." But there is no regulation on the size or condition of lots for the large animals, he added.

The question of raising horses in residential areas is not new to San Anselmo.

"About a year or two ago I brought it up," he said. At that time overgrazing of an area caused silt washed down by rain to plug city storm drains." drains."

He said horse owners protested any restrictions and persuaded the city council to allow them to draft an ordinance controlling animals.

Army Provost Accuses CID Of Hushing PX File

WASHINGTON (UPI) —One of the Army's top policemen testified today that military brass in Washington hushed up reports of questionable activities of former Brig. Gen. Earl F. Cole, who has been accused of undercover dealings involving military service clubs and post exchanges (PXs) in Vietnam.

Brig. Gen. Harley L. Moore, the Army's provost marshal in Europe, told the Senate Investigations Subcommittee that the Criminal Investigations Division (CID) approved in February, 1970, an "abysmally negligent" report on Cole.

Communications from Washington, Moore said, "led us to the inescapable conclusion that we weren't going to get certain major matters from the CID."

The subcommittee has been conducting hearings into alleged corruption in the war zone for three weeks. Cole was in charge of clubs and PXs in Vietnam from 1966 to 1968.

Summoned unexpectedly from the audience, Col. Henry H. Tufts, the CID commander, acknowledged that his agency had a full report on Cole while he was in Vietnam before Cole was moved to Europe as head of the PX system in that area two years ago.

Tufts declined to discuss Cole's assignment to Europe because he said "it is a sensitive matter that gets into the judgment factor" of Gen. William C. Westmoreland, now Army chief of staff, who was U.S. commander in Vietnam at the time Cole was there.

Moore said Cole was busted last summer because he went AWOL (absent without official leave) during a weekend in October, 1969, while assigned to Heidelberg, Germany.

Moore testified that Cole said he had spent the weekend in Frankfurt with a former secretary and "he was in serious trouble as his name was being blackened by various persons" in connection with the Senate investigation.

"Cole stated ... that he met three men in the Frankfurt airport ... (and that) these men offered him $50,000 to take the 5th Amendment and keep his mouth shut'" Moore testified.

That was not fully explained.

Moore said Cole told Army investigators that "someone had taken a shot at him," but Cole refused to disclose even to his commanding officer details about either incident.

Subcommittee staff said it sent the Army a letter Friday contending this information had been withheld from the subcommittee and demanding to know "who made the decision to withhold the fact."

57,040 Trillion BTUs During '70

Petroleum accounted for about 43 per cent of the energy used, gas 33 per cent, bituminous coal 20 per cent, water power 4 per cent, anthracite coal 0.3 per cent and nuclear energy 0.3 per cent.

Ross Town Council To Eye Rate Hike

The Ross Town Council, meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. at city hall, will consider a request by Marin Sanitary Service for a garbage rate increase.

Also on the agenda is council discussion of a bill pending before the California Senate to outlaw hitchhiking except at certain "collection points." Councilmen have said they fear Ross's hitchhiking ordinance, similar to the proposed state law, will be declared unconstitutional unless the legislature reinforces it.

Work Sentence On Pot Charge

George Robert Schoenfield, 20, of San Rafael, has been ordered o work four days with a Marin County Public Works crew for his conviction on a misdemeanor charge of possessing marijuana.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court also placed Schoenfield on probation for two years and fined him $25 Friday.

He was arrested Jan. 3 in Sausalito.

Lagunitas Board To Oppose Vote

Supt. Joseph Amato said the board voted to back an assembly bill authored by William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, that would exempt Marin from the state requirement of a unification election.

The Laguinitas School District board also:

DRUG CONFERENCE — Selected Mrs. Glen Twitchell to attend a conference on drug abuse April 16-17 and 23-24 at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of June Moore, a first grade teacher, and Mrs. Lee DiVincenzo, a second grade teacher. Each quit for family reasons.

SENIORITY — Heard a report from Amato that the seven teachers who were hired in September have drawn lots to determine seniority. Those with the worst draw would be the first fired if the state cuts back funding, Amato said.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to closed session to discuss hiring and firing of employees Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at San Geronimo School.

Park School Principal Reassigned

The Mill Valley School District board last night reassigned the principal of Park School to a district administrative post and replaced her with the principal of Homestead School.

Betty Grimm, a principal in the district since 1944 and head of Park School for four years, was named to the newly created post of special assistant in the district.

She will be replaced by Dr. Logan Miles, now principal of Homestead School. He also will serve as supervising principal of Homestead and a vice principal will be hired for that school, the board decided.

Carol Taylor, secretary to Supt. James A. Collins, said principals commonly are reassigned within the district. Miss Grimm will coordinate the reading specialist and remedial reading programs and perform other administrative duties.

Mrs. Taylor said the board voted to fill the post of vice principal at Homestead from within the district.

The Mill Valley School District board also:

QUAKE — Heard that all district schools meet state requirements for earthquake safety.

PROPERTY — Agreed to add a 5,000-square-foot strip of land to the 1.68-acre Harvard Avenue site, which the district is attempting to sell.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted resignations from four teachers now on leave: Sally Rinkreit, Donnalee McIvaine, Mary Cornelius and Lyda Stokes. The board also accepted the resignation of Keith Wilson, teacher at Edna Maguire School, for personal reasons.

EMPLOYMENT — Approved contracts for the rest of the school year for two long-term substitutes at Tamalpais Valley School: Marilyn Carroll, who will receive $3,275 for the rest of the year, and Carmelita Crane, who will receive $3,620.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Dupuytren's Contracture Causes Hands To Close Up Like A Claw

Dupuytren's contracture is a common problem of the hands that affects approximately 5 per cent of the population. Men in their middle and late years of life are usually afflicted. The condition involves the tough sheath of tissue (palmar fascia) that reinforces and strengthens the heavy skin in the hollow of the hand. Fascial tissue extends over the entire palm and into the base of the fingers as far as the second joint.

FOR SOME REASON, the padding slowly degenerates and thickens. Dupuytren's usually begins with a lump (the size of a millet seed) that forms and continues to grow until it reaches the size of a pea. The swelling adheres firmly to the underside of the skin which eventually becomes hardened and puckered. In time, the thickened area extends, forming bands or cords that spread into all parts of the palm like the roots of a tree.

Ultimately the scar tissue extends over the metacarpal bones and into the base of the fingers. Contractures soon pull on the small and fourth fingers which curl inwards until the tips almost rest on the palm. At this stage, the condition becomes disabling and unsightly. The involved area often is tender to the touch and occasionally the hands ache.

THE CAUSE OF Dupuytren's contracture is not known, although heredity may play a role. A sufficient number of the victims are heavy drinkers and diabetics suggesting that the contracture is a manifestation of a chronic nerve disorder (neuropathy). But the majority of sufferers are otherwise healthy.

Injury is frequently blamed because the initial manifestations are mistaken for thickened, callouslike nodules. The objection to this theory is that many sufferers are professional people, not manual laborers. Using the hands may aggravate the tenderness.

Surgery is the only cure. Many surgeons recommend early removal of the thickened palmar tissue because the results are better. Others suggest waiting until pain or contractures of the fingers are causing severe disability.

HER JOINTS CRACK

REPLY

No. The noise stems from the fibrous capsule of the joint cartilage or the membrane linking of the joints. The knees should be X-rayed and if there are no visible defects, the physician may strap the joints to minimize bending until all signs of irritation disappear.

10 HOURS SLEEP

Y.T. writes: My 23-year-old daughter sleeps 10 hours every night. On days off, she sleeps all day. Is this a sign of a starved thyroid?

REPLY

Some people require more physical sleep than others. If a physical disorder is suspected, this girl should consult a physician. An insufficient amount of thyroid secretion could be the answer.

ENLARGED LYMPH GLANDS

E.G. writes: Why do various glands in the body enlarge when an infection develops?

REPLY

Because the glands filter out the poisons that result from an infection. For example, glands in the armpit enlarge when infection occurs in a finger.

Today's Health Hint — There is nothing wrong with a fat person that losing weight will not help.

Signatures Short On Initiative

Only 489 signatures were filed in Marin by yesterday's first deadline to qualify a tough air pollution control initiative for a statewide vote this year, the elections office reported.

A similar measure failed to qualify for the 1970 ballot, but got 4,699 signatures in Marin by the first deadline. More than one-third of the signatures that time were disqualified for failure to match voter records.

To get on the ballot this yaar, 317,000 valid signatures of registered voters will be needed. The campaign by the People's Lobby, a Los Angeles-based organization, now will have a 60-day extension to gather the needed signatures.

The new initiative would phase out leaded gasoline by 1976, set standards on other gasoline contaminants, shut down polluters until they install standby control equipment, sharply limit variances, ban new coastal drilling, ban persistent chlorinated hydrocarbons and increase fines.

Sainthood Urged For Father Serra

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —The State Senate Monday urged Pope Paul VI to confer sainthood on Father Junipero Serra, who founded California's first Spanish missions in the late 18th Century.

The Senate sent the resolution to the Assembly, where a similar measure was killed last year on grounds it violated the separation of church and state.

Innocent Pleas To Kickbacks

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Sgt. Maj. William D. Wooldridge, formerly the Army's top ranked enlisted man, and four other men pleaded innocent Monday to conspiring to defraud noncommissioned officers' clubs in Vietnam.

U. S. District Court Judge Warren J. Ferguson did not set a trial date but he did give the defense and the government until July 13 to present and answer pretrial motions.

The others entering innocent pleas were M. Sgt. William Higdon, Sgt. 1. C. William Bagby, and two retired Army noncommissioned officers, Narvaez Hatcher and Theodore Bass.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Donald Fareed said another retired sergeant, Seymour Lazar, was a fugitive in Stuttgart, West Germany. He also said two civilian defendants, Clifford Terhune and his wife, Irene, were fugitives in England and have refused to return here.

All were charged with conspiring from 1965 to 1969 to defraud the government through bribes and kickbacks and falsification of records.

They also were accused of overpayment of supplies bought from Marmed Inc., of Fullerton, Calif. That firm was indicted but was not represented in court because of the fugitive status of its president, Lazar.

Wooldridge, now stationed at White Sands Missile Range, N. M., appeared before the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee in 1969. He invoked the Fifth Amendment 105 times in refusing to answer questions about Army clubs.

The Army did not prosecute him on grounds it lacked sufficient evidence to sustain convictions but he and the others were indicted by a federal grand jury here.

Alioto Brings Look Into His Fee Case

SEATTLE (UPI) —San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto seems to be combining his battles against Look Magazine and against charges of fee-splitting irregularities in Washington State.

Hours before he was to testify here before the grand jury probe into his fee-splitting arrangement with former Washington Attorney General John O'Connell, his lawyers submitted a series of questions to Look's publishers bringing that issue into his $12.5 million libel suit against Look Magazine.

The federal grand jury probe reopened today. The jury is investigating how and why O'Connell and his aide, George Faler, shared $530,000 of Alioto's $2.3 million fee paid for Alioto's representing the state and 15 public utilities in anti-trust price-fixing suit.

Both men appeared last month before the jury while Faler was in Switzerland. He has since returned.

O'Connell had hired Alioto, then a practicing attorney, and Faler to work on the pricing cases against electrical equipment manufacturers. The state won a $16 million settlement and Alioto was given a $2.3 million fee.

The state has sued to recover the entire legal fee on grounds it was never informed of either the raising of Alioto's fee from an announced $1 million nor the sharing with O'Connell and Faler. Democrats Alioto and O'Connell charge that high Republican officials are behind the probe.

The libel suit sprang from a September, 1969, article in Look which said Alioto was "enmeshed in a web of alliances" with leaders of the Mafia.

A first trial of the suit ended in a hung jury, divided 8-4 in favor of Look, over the question of whether malice was involved. A second trial is scheduled for next December.

The questions put forth by Alioto in federal court asked whether, prior to Sept. 9, 1969—about the time of the Look article—there had been a visit to Look headquarters by Henry Petersen, chief of the organized crime and racketeering unit of the Justice Department.

Reed Candidate To Attend Fund-Raiser

A fund-raising dinner for Margaret Jones, candidate for one of two seats on the Reed Union School District board, will be held at 6:30 p.m. Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Welsh, of 270 Round Hill Road, Tiburon.

Mrs. Jones is one of five candidates running for two positions on the Reed Board in addition to one recall seat. The dinner will be sponsored by the Committee to Elect Margaret Jones. Reservations may be made by calling the Welsh home.

Next Hot Spell: The Year 2000

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Anyone hoping for a warming in the general climate might just have to be patient until the year 2000.

According to Michigan State University geology professor Maynard A. Miller, the world is experiencing a cold spell that should last for some 30 years.

Miller, head of MSU's Glasciological and Arctic Environment Institute, says a historical study of the world's climate shows 90-year cycles of cold-hot weather followed by warm-dry weather.

The world is back into a 45-year cycle where the general climate is becoming colder and wetter, Miller says. A progressively warmer, drier period peaked around 1958.

Council Due Library's New Plan

The San Rafael Library Board last night reviewed a $711,000 expansion plan for the city library which will be presented next week to the city council.

The plan, by the Consulting Organization of San Francisco, would expand the library from its present 10,800 square feet to 23,770 square feet. It would include demolition of the original Carnegie Library structure — the portion fronting Fifth Avenue — to make possible better use of space by replacing its high-ceilinged room with one extending nearer to the avenue, designed so another story could be added sometime after 1985.

The city council will review the plan with the library board at a special meeting March 17 at 7:45 p.m. in the children's room of the library.

Donald R. Hegstrom, managing director of the Consulting Organization, recommended in his report that funds for the addition be acquired by a temporary addition to the city library tax, which is now 12 cents per $100 assessed valuation. However, this would delay expansion for some years. Raising the tax to 22½ cents — the rate now charged in the county library district — would produce $143,850 per year, based on last year's assessed valuation figures.

Another possible means of financing the proposed expansion would be a bond issue.

Leak Admitted From Alioto's Spy Charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Justice Department said today an FBI agent was a source of government information for a Look Magazine article linking San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto with the Mafia. The agent was "disciplined" and he retired.

William H. Rehnquist, assistant attorney general in the Office of Legal Counsel, reported to the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights the results of an investigation ordered by Attorney General John N. Mitchell after Alioto charged in testimony March 3 before the subcommittee that eight federal, state and local law enforcemen agencies have provided confidential information about him to the co-authors of the article.

The mayor has filed a $12.5 million libel suit against Look.

"Because of the seriousness of (Alioto's) charges," Rehnquist said, Mitchell had immediately queried FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, Director John E. Ingersoll, of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, and Commissioner Raymond F. Farrell of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

He also said Henry Petersen, deputy asistant attorney general for the Criminal Division and former chief of the Organized Crime Section, contacted Rehnquist about a meeting he had with the magazine's editorial board just before publication of the Alioto article.

Petersen told Rehnquist the purpose of the meeting was "in connection of Look Magazine reporting about organized crime, and had nothing to do with Look's article about Mayor Alioto. The FBI reported that after Alioto filed his libel suit, "it received information that one of its San Francisco agents had been a source of data for the controversial article," he said.

"The agent acknowledged that he had been in contact with one of the co-authors of the article and had on various occasions given and confirmed information that appears in the article," he said.

"At no time were official files of the FBI furnished to Look, and the agent's disclosures and confirmations of information were not made with FBI or other Department of Justice authorization."

Records of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, according to Rehnquist, "do show that one of the co-authors of the Look article and an investigator for the magazine attempted to obtain information from its San Francisco office. No information was given."

The Bureau of Narcotics reported that four exhibits introduced in the first trial on Alioto's libel charges had originated with its predecessor bureau, the Federal Bureau of Narcotics.

"There is no indication of how these reports were released," Rehnquist said.

Rehnquist noted that it has been established practice for the Bureau of Narcotics to make its reports available to state and local law enforcement agencies "who have a legitimate interest in their contents."

Unanimous Decision Over Ali

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) —Victory and vindication —now there's only one more thing that Smokin' Joe Frazier wants from Muhammad Ali, the man he conquered.

"I want him to come to me and apologize for all those things he said about me before the fight."

One thing Ali said over and over again was that Smokin' Joe wasn't the "real champion," but that's exactly what the left-hooking Philadelphian is today as the result of his 15-round unanimous decision over Ali in as savage a no-quarter bout as the ring has seen in recent years.

Frazier now is the real champion —and as the undefeated winner over a champ who had been undefeated, flooring him once in the 15th round, he ranks up there with the greats of heavyweight boxing history — with Dempsey, Louis, Marciano, Tunney.

And there were two places for Frazier to go today —into retirement, or into a return bout with Ali, possibly in Los Angeles. As of right now, the 26-year-old Frazier hasn't decided. His handlers want him to quit.

"I want him to retire," said manager Yancey "Yank" Durham. "He's won enough, and he's taken enough punishment."

"I'll have to talk about it with Yank," said Frazier. "But I do have to live a little. I've been working for 10 years now, and it's time for a little rest."

But then, asked about a rematch, Frazier said through swollen lips:

"I'd give him a rematch anytime, but I don't think he wants one."

The X-ray findings were not announced immediately, but he left the hospital after 40 minutes and indications were he had suffered a blood clot and not a fracture.

Some of Ali's handlers were bitterly convinced Muhammad could whip Frazier in a return bout. One of them, Chris Dundee, hinted Ali refused to follow the ring tactics his handlers had urged on him.

"We didn't want him to fight that kind of a fight," said Dundee, "but that's the way he wanted it. All I can say is he showed a lot of heart."

The "battle of champions", which was watched by 20,455 in the Garden and perhaps 300,000,000 around the world by television, was a fight that turned several times.

It began with Ali, resplendent in red trunks and white boxing shoes with red tassels, outboxing Frazier at long range, whacking him with head punches, taunting him, and mugging to the crowd that he wasn't hurt whenever Frazier did manage to get inside for a punch.

Frazier did work inside for the third and fourth rounds, even though Clay continued to wave contemptuously after his best shots. From the fifth through the 10th it was Ali in charge again, using his four-inch greater height and six-inch longer reach to land three, four, five times as many punches as he took. He strutted, he yakked at Frazier, he played games with that longer reach.

But then the legend of Ali began to fade in the 11th with a

Not Going To Cry, Says Subdued Ali

NEW YORK (UPI)—A very subdued Muhammad Ali lay on his bed at the Hotel New Yorker this morning and said, "I'm not going to cry."

"I made a lot of people unhappy when I beat them...so it's my time now. I'm not going to cry. A lot of great fighters get whipped."

However, the uncommonly subdued Ali was angered but not at Frazier. He was angry he said because "I make 2 1-2 million dollars on this fight but of that $1,500,000 goes on taxes, $348,000 goes to the city of New York, and then there's another $255,000 for training expenses. How much does that leave me?"

Ali, who admitted that the man he was going to whip was "a good man" still thought " I won most of the rounds on points."

But he said he wasn't going to argue with the decision.

"This is not an excuse but I've been off three and a half years. I wasn't supposed to handle him that easy."

Ali conceded that Frazier could hit and he said the one that caught him in the 15th round was a hard punch.

"No one can hit as hard as Frazier. I saw that hook coming in the 15th round and I'd figure I'd ride with it. But it was hard. I don't remember falling. Boom, just that quick. But one, two I was up quick as well."

When asked if he wanted a rematch with Frazier, Ali said at first, "It's up to the public. It's up to him (Frazier.)"

But when pressed later on by his brother Rahman he said, "Ya," he would like a rematch.

Frazier Aides Want Retirement

Joe Wants To Think About It

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joe Frazier may have had a few songs in his heart, but he wasn't singing any for his own victory party after demolishing Cassius Clay.

The 27-year-old Philadelphian's right jaw was badly swollen and his left eye was nearly closed and he simply didn't feel like singing with his band for the people who had paid $35 a head to attend the party.

Everyone, including Joe's wife, Jo Netta, and his manager Yank Durham, agreed that Joe's victory over Clay should be his last fight.

"I'll just go back to Philadelphia, wait a few months, think things over and then decide what to do next," Frazier said. "I'm not tired now but it's just all the pressure is relieved and it makes me feel weak."

He slumped on a chair in the kitchen in the Statler Hilton Hotel, trying to escape the crowd that had pressed around him. He sipped on a glass of water through his swollen jaw and peered from behind dark glasses that helped hide the swelling around his eyes.

In the other room, Duke Ellington's band blared out another tune and Joe's friends danced. However, Mrs. Frazier sat at a table signing autographs and hoped her husband would quit.

She has never liked him fighting, and she likes it even less when he is on the road with his band "because it takes him away so long. I'd rather have him fight because at least he's home when he's not training."

Durham also said he would like to see Frazier quit.

"He's done enough," Durham said. "He's been monkeying around this game for 12 years and that's enough for any man. But if he doesn't want to quit, I'll be with him the next time he fights."

Even Joe's sparring partners, Billy Williams Ken Norton, and some of his close friends also said they wanted to see him retire.

"He took more punches out there than Clay did," said Williams, who has been Frazier's sparring partner for four years. "I really think that should be his last fight."

However, Frazier said he will take his time in making a decision and didn't even like discussing the topic of retirement. After a few minutes at the party, he returned to his motel.

TURNAWAY CROWDS IN BAY AREA

Fans Leave Broken Windows Behind

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Turnaway crowds to the Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier closed circuit telecast tried to storm closed gates and broke windows in their frustration Monday night.

More than 35,000 fans packed into four auditoriums in San Francisco, Oakland and Richmond to watch the heavyweight championship bout. The Cow Palace in San Francisco drew the largest crowd at 10,927. Some 10,500 turned out at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena.

Fans unable to buy tickets to the sold-out telecasts tried to rush past ticket takers but were mainly repulsed by security guards at the Cow Palace and Richmond Auditorium.

"The kids broke a few windows and we took a couple in custody," said a security spokesman at the Cow Palace.

Approximately 18 persons were arrested for disturbing the peace and vandalism.

"A few people tried to shove their way through...some windows were broken, but nothing serious," said a spokesman for the Richmond police. He added "less than half a dozen" persons were arrested.

A spokesman at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena said: "We got a big crowd and I've been sitting here in the office watching the police taking people by in handcuffs."

Between 6,000 and 7,000 persons viewed the telecast at the Richmond Auditorium while an estimated 6,500 watched the 15-rounder at Winterland in San Francisco.

Some who thought they would see it, didn't.

A Faulty projector at Chicago Coliseum canceled the scheduled closed circuit telecast. The manager apologized and told the 7,000 fans to check their newspaper for news on refunds, but the crowd did not like it.

"We want it now, we want it now," they chanted. Windows and chairs were broken and the front door of the coliseum and box office was smashed. Three persons were arrested on

Many Hits But A's Still Lose

MESA, Ariz. (UPI)—The Oakland A's take a 2-2 record into today's Cactus League action with the Chicago Cubs.

The A's banged out 10 hits Monday, but still fell in a wild 8-6 affair to San Diego, which has won three in a row.

Dick Green banged an Oakland homer and added a single and Don Mincher and outfielder Angel Mangual had two hits apiece and Steve Hovley banged a two-run pinch single.

Bobby Locker was the only one of four A's pitchers who seemed able to get anybody out, but the A's still might have won it had not Reggie Jackson and Mangual let a routine looking fly ball fall between them for a key double.

Contract Renewed

Novato Baseballers Win; Drake Loses

Jeff DeRecat and Randy Jackson, who learned the fundamentals of baseball in the Novato Little League, combined talents yesterday to lead Novato High School to a 4-3 victory over Berkeley High in a non-league game at Novato.

In the only other game played by a Marin County Athletic League school yesterday, Drake bowed to St. Ignatius of San Francisco, 5-2, at San Anselmo.

As if that no-no mound performance weren't enough, DeRecat also drove in two runs with a triple and a double.

Jackson, meanwhile, drove in what proved to be the winning runs with a two-run single in the fifth inning. Then his defensive talents saved the day for Novato in the top of the seventh when, with the potential Berkeley tying run at third base with only one out, he leaped to grab a line drive and touched third to complete a double play that ended the game.

It was Novato's second victory without defeat.

Over in San Anselmo, Coach Dick Creighton of Drake continued his liberal substitution policy in the loss to S.I. "We're going to use everybody in these preseason games," said Creighton, "and by the time league play starts we'll be a strong contender."

Highlight for Drake was a sensational defensive play by second baseman Dave Ortez who made a diving, somersault catch of a short fly ball into rightfield that ended a bases-loaded rally by S.I. That in itself earned Ortez an audition with the Barnum & Bailey Circus.

Drake now has a 1-1 won-lost record.

A Good Day For Lanier And Fuentes

PHOENIX (UPI)—That old San Francisco Giants keystone combination of Hal Lanier and Tito Fuentes may be around for a while after all.

The Giants have a crop of hot rookies trying to win the second base and shortstop jobs but Lanier and Fuentes played smooth defense and led the hitting attack Monday in a 7-5 win over the Lotte Orions of Tokyo.

The win squared the Giants' Cactus League record at 2-2 while the Orions have lost four in a row by two runs apiece. Last year in Japan, the Orions won three out of five.

The Japanese visitors hit Juan Marichal and Skip Pitlock well and went into the sixth leading 5-3.

But then some big hitting by Lanier, Fuentes and Ken Henderson got the Giants out in front and Jim Barr, a youngster from USC, worked three innings, gave up but two singles, and got the win.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

Things are sure tough! The striped bass have been hard to come by, sturgeon have been pretty scarce too; and over the weekend the salmon were only half heartedly cooperative.

AND A friend of mine is having his woes, too. This friend (a bashful type) recently oiled and cleaned his guns for the season, put them away in his gun locker, and then the "worst" hit! His darned cat, named Pasquale, got into the gun locker, decided the guns didn't smell outdoorsey enough, so proceeded to give them a treatment of his own!

Then to top this off, my friend suddenly noticed that his skull boat oar was missing. This was and still is a catastrophe! The last place he used the oar was out on Tomales Bay during the week of the close of the Black Sea Brant season Feb. 21. In loading the gear and boat at Nick's Cove, he put the oar up on the rock wall next to the launching ramp, then drove away, forgetting it!

So if you happen to find or know something about this "lost piece of art," please contact me and I'll be glad to pick up the oar. It's an old beat up skull boat oar, but to my friend, it is worth its weight in gold! I'm sure we can make a good deal, and you can really raise the spirits of this fellow who has a strong sentimental feeling for the old oar.

THE STRIPERS? Where are they? It looks like the lack of rain has caused the fish to make their spawning migration just a little earlier than usual. Unless it's just that the water is so cold from the snow runoffs that they are not hitting.

Saturday, I checked three bass out by Corrigidor in San Pablo Bay for about 20 boats. Some of the fellows had from five to ten big flounders, and a few had a redtailed perch or so in their catches. But things would have to be considered slow. It was reported better out by the S. P. Buoy which is between the Pumphouse and Pt. Richmond. One boat reported having eight bass.

BOB WILSON of Woodacre gave it a go on Sunday. He caught one sturgeon — maybe a 40 pounder, three flounders, an 18-inch bass, and one perch, fishing below the Richmond Bridge. He said things were slow. The good weather along with excellent outgoing tides should have produced a top fishing weekend.

SUNDAY, ABOUT 200 boats were out for salmon, fishing generally in the lightship area. I'd say all of the boats took fish, though there were lots of shakers noted. The weather was great, and lots of small boats were out there in company with the party boats. Fred DeVita of Fairfax reported taking five salmon with a friend, but nothing big. That's the way it seemed to go.

I NEGLECTED to mention last week that though the steelhead season closed Feb. 28 in the Papermill Creek tidewaters at Pt. Reyes Station, the fish did hit during that last week. The fish had been staying in the bay off Inverness because the dry spell has made the spawning areas of Papermill Creek almost inaccessible to the fish because of lack of water flows. The small rains started the fish up, and about 30 fresh-run fish were taken. It saved what was considered to be a tough year.

Incidentally if you catch a steelhead in Tomales Bay or San Francisco Bay, you can still legally keep it. The carp are open the year around.

Defenseman Redmond Joins Seals

OAKLAND (UPI)—Young defenseman Dick Redmond will be in the uniform of the Calipornia Golden Seals when they host Boston Wednesday night.

They also sold stubby defenseman Wayne Muloin to the North Stars for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Coach Fred Glover called Redmond, 21, an offensive-minded defenseman who "can move the puck out of his own end, has a good shot, maneuverability and lots of assets."

Redmond, younger brother of Detroit's Mickey, was Minnesota's first draft two seasons ago.

Spellman Leading In Singles

Spellman rolled a 636 scratch series in singles, and with his 52-pin handicap came out with 688. The Horvath-Robertson doubles team rolled 1182 scratch, had 136 pins of handicap and a 1318.

The Roto-Rooter team took a commanding lead in the team competition, a 3251 scratch score, 64-pin handicap, and 3315 total. All Events leader is John Busse, 1924 (66) and 1990.

The tournament winds up next weekend, singles and doubles being rolled at Nave Lanes near Ignacio, and team event at Greenbrae Lanes.

Singles — Spellman, 688; Lou Pfaff, 663; Jack Ecton, 661; Rene Bacho, 658; Rolf Singlemann, 655; Anthony Piazzi, 655.

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER

I know, some of the best bowlers on television appear to be off-balance after they've let the ball go. But a smooth, sure finish still is preferred. Some of the stars became good in spite of their hopping at the foul line, but they might have been even better if they smoothed out their approach. Work on your delivery until you can deliver the ball and hold your position without fear of toppling.

UCLA Advantage If There's A Tie

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA Monday won a coin flip and will be the host team to the University of Southern California if a playoff game is necessary to decide the Pacific-8 basketball title.

The Bruins face USC Saturday and a Trojan victory would make a Monday playoff necessary, since both teams would be tied for the Pac-8 crown. Only the conference winner is allowed to participate in post-season tourney play.

thunderous left hook, the Frazier trade mark, that staggered Ali and left him to box his way to safety for the rest of the round. After that there were no more taunts, no more mugging, even though Ali came back strong in the 14th.

And in the opening minute of the 15th came the crusher — another booming left hook that dumped Ali on his back in a neutral corner. Ali rolled up quickly and was off the floor at "four" to take the rest of the eight-count standing. Suddenly the right side of his face ballooned, and he had nothing left. He finished, but at the end he was sobbing with helplessness and pain on the ring ropes.

Frazier had the last laugh. As the final bell tolled, Frazier threw both fists in the air shouted, "Ha-Ha," and went to his corner.

Frazier was battered, so much so that he couldn't sing at his victory party in a hotel later. He had bled from the nose and mouth, and his right eye and right jaw were swollen.

Frazier was willing to pay tribute to Ali for his courage.

"He took some punch," said Frazier. "The shot I hit him with in the 15th, I had to go all the way home for."

But he thinks Ali should pay some kind of tribute to him, too.

"I didn't make him crawl across the ring to me on his knees," said Frazier, referring to what Ali said he'd do if he lost. "But I do want him to apologize.

"Before the fight he said to me, 'I'm going to kill you, nigger.' He underestimated me. He thought I was flatfooted and slow, but I showed him."

Ali had outweighed Frazier, 215 to 205 1-2. But he trailed in the important figures — the votes of the two judges and the referee. Referee Arthur Mercante scored it 8-6-1 for Frazier, judge Artie Aidala had it 9-6, and judge Bill Recht saw it more lopsided, 11-4.

It was the 27th victory in 27 fights for Frazier, and the first loss in 32 fights for Ali. His defeat left Floyd Patterson still the only former heavyweight champion who came back to win the title —and Patterson did not have a 3 1-2-year absence from the ring in between.

Warriors Host The Celtics

OAKLAND (UPI)—If the San Francisco Warriors and Boston have a close battle tonight at the Oakland Coliseum, it will be the exception rather than the rule.

The two teams figure about dead even and are 2-2 against each other this season. But all four games have been lop-sided ones.

Nor does the home court seem to matter. The Warriors won by 38 at Boston and the Celts waltzed 129-99 in their last meeting here.

San Francisco is coming off a win over tough Baltimore and has forward Bob Portman back in the starting lineup. He broke a bone in his hand last month, but played well against the Bullets.

One good thing that happened to the Warriors Tuesday night was Milwaukee's 104-99 win over Seattle. That shoved both Seattle and San Diego 3 1-2 games back of the Warriors in the struggle for a playoff berth.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Tough Luck Singer Hopes To Rebound

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Bill Singer hopes to point a scornful finger at hard luck today —the same finger he broke last August.

The hard-throwing, 26-year-old righthander of the Los Angeles Dodgers suffered through injury and illness in 1970. He became a casualty last spring when stricken with hepatitis and subsequently missed 52 games of the regular season.

He came back long enough to pitch a no-hitter against the Philadelphia Phillies on July 20 and compile an 8-5 record before a pitch in August broke the index finger of his throwing hand and finished him for the year.

The resident of Diamond Bar, Calif. managed to stay healthy in 1969, when he won 20 and lost 12.

Singer hopes to take the first step back to his 20-game-winning form when he faces the New York Yankees in a three-inning stint at Vero Beach, Fla. Singer reported the finger felt fine after pitching batting practice last week.

Don Pavletich got back at his old ball club Monday when he lofted a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the eighth inning to give the Boston Red Sox a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. It was the third straight Grapefruit League loss for the National League champions.

Art Shamsky touched rookie left-hander Phil Meyer for a two-run home run in the eighth inning to lift the New York Mets to a 3-1 win over the Phillies. Jim McAndrew, Charlie Williams and Tug McGraw worked for the Mets and held Philadelphia to eight hits.

Fine fielding by centerfielder Bobby Murcer and third baseman John Ellis helped the Yankees preserve a 2-1 triumph over the Atlanta Braves. Murcer robbed Hank Aaron of an extra-base hit with a runner on second base in the first inning and Ellis made a backhanded stab of a shot by Felix Millan with the bases loaded and two out in the second.

Joe Hague hammered home four runs with a homer and single as the St. Louis Cardinats swamped the Kansas City Royals, 11-7.

In other games, San Diego edged Oakland, 8-6, San Francisco beat Lotte Orions of Japan, 7-5, Milwaukee tipped California 4-3, the Chicago Cubs whipped Cleveland, 6-3, Houston nipped Montreal, 2-1, Pittsburgh trounced Detroit, 9-3, Washington squeaked by Baltimore 4-3, and the Chicago White Sox clubbed Minnesota, 6-2.

"We reached an agreement with Theissman on his contract. The negotiations were brief and to the point and the terms are satisfactory to both sides," said Dolphin managing partner Joe Robbie.

Coach Don Shula said he felt Theismann would "fit in well with what we want to accomplish with the Dolphins."

Basketball

NEW YORK (UPI)—Lew Alcindor, a vital cog in the Milwaukee Bucks' record-setting machine, continues as the National Basketball Association's leading scorer, according to figures released Monday by the league office.

Alcindor, who leads the league both in total points — with 2,344 —and in per-game scoring average —31.3 —helped the Bucks establish an NBA consecutive game winning streak of 19 last week. The Bucks downed Detroit, 108-95, on March 5 to break the record of 18 straight set by the New York Knicks in 1969-70.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) —Jerry West of the Los Angeles Lakers was released from Centinela Valley Hospital Monday six days after undergoing surgery for a torn ligament in his right knee.

The injury suffered at Buffalo last Tuesday night will cause West to miss the National Basketball Association playoffs. His leg will be in a cast for six weeks.

Auto Racing

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Richard Petty won the Richmond 500 stock car race Sunday, but Bobby Isaac's second-place finish kept him slightly ahead of Petty in the NASCAR Grand National point standings.

In standings released Monday, Isaac has 543 points to 534 for Petty, 512 for James Hylton, 467 for Elmo Langley and 460 for Benny Parsons. Petty is top in winnings with $64,765, to $21,165 for Isaac.

A projector in Duluth, Minn., blew up four minutes before the fight was to begin. The capacity crowd of 2,300 heard the fight but could not see it. They will get their money back.

The top price for ringside seats was $150 but there were reports of scalpers selling tickets for $500 or more. More than 600 persons paid $150 each to attend a Democratic fund-raising dinner in New York and watch a closed circuit telecast.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., the son of former heavyweight champion Gene Tunney, attended as did former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg, Ethel Kennedy, the widow of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and entertainers Frank Sinatra, Andy Williams, Robert Goulet and Deborah Kerr.

The Apollo 14 astronauts were at ringside as guests of Mayor John V. Lindsay. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., former vice president and Democratic presidential candidate, walked almost unnoticed through the Garden crowd, but the fans quickly noticed fried chicken King Col. Harland Sanders.

Singer Bing Crosby decided to watch the telecast at Radio City rather than go to ringside, because he said it "would be a better way to see it."

Celebrity watching and fashion shows were almost as important as the fight. Diana Ross, former lead singer of the Supremes, caused a minor disturbance by showing up in black velvet hot pants and Walt Frazier's the New York Knicks' basketball star, was attired in mod clothes topped off with a wide-brimmed "Clyde" hat.

About 200 youths stormed barricades after a false report that Ali had knocked out Joe Frazier. Other youths tried to get inside and at one point almost overturned an automobile. Police on horseback and on foot regained order after making arrests.

Inside, an unidentified man died of an apparent heart attack.

Prices for the closed circuit telecast varied from city to city with the top being $30 at the Washington Hilton where a capacity crowd of 2,500 watched. Several persons in Washington bought the same ticket—a phoney made from a photostat copy of ticket number 00943.

Most promoters around the country reported sell-out crowds.

"Dollarwise, this is the biggest fight I have ever promoted in 25 years in the business," said Mike London, an Albuquerque, N.M., fight promoter.

Promoters in New England expected to gross $1 million on the venture. Dozens turned away in Honolulu tried to crash the gates and punched a guard, but were kept out.

Persons living near the Mexican border in Texas were able to watch the fight for free from a television station in Monterrey in Northern Mexico. The station had gotten the telecast from Independencia Mexicana Network in Mexico City which bought the rights.

JUST PRIDE

Clay's Jaw Not Broken

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cassius Clay's battered, swollen face wasn't "pretty" today but at least he had one consolation after losing his world heavyweight championship.

His jaw, which was badly bruised when Joe Frazier decked him in the 15th round, apparently isn't broken.

Ali was rushed to a hospital immediately after the fight for a 40-minute examination and the flamboyant showman skipped the mass press conference that was set up after the fight.

Although Ali, who's always had the first and last word throughout his career, was making no statements, a spokesman in his camp said that X rays taken of the jaw proved negative.

"He'll be up and ready to go again tomorrow," the spokesman said. "He went back to his hotel room from the hospital and went to sleep after having some orange juice and ice cream."

Clay, who's always bragged that his face has been unmarked and "pretty" throughout his career, was obviously marked this time and he seemed subdued after suffering his first loss in the ring.

A security man at the hospital said that Ali, "didn't say a word, not a sound." And a nurse at the hospital said, "for a man of his size, he was very badly shaken."

But Ali, who had predicted himself a winner in the sixth round on the closed circuit TV before the fight, still hadn't completely lost his showmanship. He winked and smiled to the crowd as he got into the car en route to the hospital.

And when Drew "Bundini" Brown, the handler who wept in Clay's corner even before the decision was announced, asked Clay about a rematch, Brown claimed Clay replied, "get your guns, we're going to set traps."

Ali said, "I'm glad I wasn't knocked out. I'm satisfied with the fight even though I lost. I know I lost to a great champion but maybe at another time when both of us had been fighting regularly, the result would have been different. I don't know, but maybe."

Brown, who substituted for Clay at the post-fight press conference, was convinced that better days are still ahead for Ali.

"We ain't through yet," he said, "the car's been in the garage for three years and the next time it won't be." He was referring to Clay's 3 1-2-year layoff from the ring.

The layoff has obviously rusted Ali's great skills and he's lost some of the speed and flair that were his trademark before his exile from the ring.

But it's questionable whether at age 29, he can ever regain those skills that were eroded during his absence from the ring.

Of course, there's also one more thing that has to be considered before Ali's future in the ring is clear—his draft evasion conviction.

The case is now up before the Supreme Court and if the high court upholds the conviction, he'll go to prison.

But for the time being, the silence from Ali was deafening. In another day, though, his vocal cords should be back in shape.

Milwaukee Express Keeps Rolling Along

By United Press International

The Milwaukee victory express keeps rolling along.

The Bucks extended their National Basketball Association record winning streak to 20 games Monday night with a 104-99 victory over the Seattle Supersonics.

Lew Alcindor scored 10 of his game high 32 points in the third quarter and Oscar Robertson added 10 more to break open a close game. Seattle held a 53-48 halftime lead before Alcindor and Robertson rallied the Bucks.

Lenny Wilkens, the Seattle player-coach, had 11 assists in the game to become only the fourth player in NBA history to record 5,000 assists. The others are Robertson, Bob Cousy and Guy Rodgers.

Spencer Haywood scored 30 points for the Sonics and Don Smith had 28. Robertson finished with 24 for the Bucks.

In the only other NBA game Monday night, Don May scored 31 points to boost the Buffalo Braves to a 114-98 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers. Cornell Warner also had 15 points to help the Buffalo attack while rookie Geoff Petrie led Portland with 20 points.

Snead Fifth On Money List

Young Snead, who scored his second victory of the year and pocketed $30,000 in last week's Doral-Eastern Open, moved into fifth place in the PGA money race with $57,886, according to figures announced Monday.

Miller Barber, who had been trailing Tom Shaw in the earnings derby for the last four weeks, took the lead when he collected $10,650 for his third-place finish in the Doral to boost his earnings to $79,860.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Old Securities Can Be Valued

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. In going through my father's old papers I found these certificates (duplicates enclosed) dated 1924. I can't find this company listed on any exchange. Can you tell me if they have any value? If not, could you direct me to the proper source for this information? J. F.

A. Unfortunately I was unable to find any information on the current status of your shares in our research library. However, the brokerage firm of R. M. Smythe & Co., 170 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10038 specializes in the appraisal (for a modest fee) of obsolete securities and should be able to enlighten you.

Q. We are 64, retired and need advice on investing the $40,000 we will realize from the sale of property. Our primary concerns are safety and income. Would a bond such as American Telephone 8.70s 2002 be suitable? L. R.

A. Entirely; this Telephone debenture is currently selling at a premium to yield 7.9 per cent and carries a triple A rating. I would, however, suggest investing your capital in three or four different issues. This plan has the advantage of spreading income payments, reducing risk and varying maturity dates.

You might consider AA-rated Duquesne Lighting 2¾s of 1980 selling well below par to yield 6.7 per cent to maturity. Also qualifying are: AAA-rated International Bank 6½s of 1976 and Public Service Electric & Gas 4⅜s of 1986. The yields to maturity on these two bonds are 6.2 per cent and 7.1 per cent respectively.

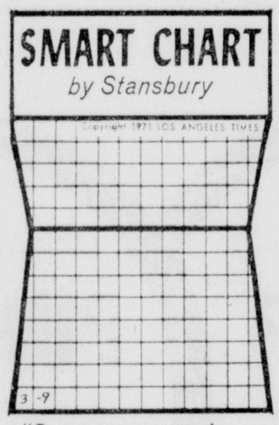
We hold shares of Scudder, Stevens & Clark Balanced Fund. Most of these were acquired at prices higher than the present. Do you think their value will continue to increase as they have lately or should we sell? H. W.

A. Because of the conservative nature of Scudder's portfolio, growth is below average. For example, from December 31, 1964 through December 31, 1970, your fund's net asset value appreciated only 7 per cent. There are various other funds which offer more aggressive growth, with minimal risk, which you may wish to consider. They include: deVegh Mutual, Johnston Mutual and Windsor Fund.

Pilot Support For SST Prototypes

WASHINGTON — (BW) — The Airline Pilots Assn. (ALPA) has announced its support of the government sponsored American-built supersonic transport (SST).

John J. O'Donnell, president of the Professional Pilots Organization, said it is in the best interests of this country that the U.S. SST prototype production and test project be completed.



"Our management is uptight."

Prices Gain In Heavy Trading Day

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market moved forward in heavy turnover near noon Tuesday.

Some analysts attributed the gain to favorable economic news and talk of further cuts in key interest rates. However, one analyst said "the market is not rejoicing about anything." He noted that internal forces are governing the market's move, but that these forces appear to be getting a little bit sluggish.

Of the 1,534 issues crossing the tape, 717 pointed higher, while 473 retreated.

Prices also gained in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange. Advances led declines, 472 to 296.

On the Big Board, Corning Glass (ex-dividend) and Texas Instruments gained more than 3 each. Memorex rose 2 5-8, while issues up a point or so included Kerr-McGee, Louisville & Nash-ville Railroad, KLM Royal Dutch Airlines, Polaroid, and Itek Corp.

Steels showed a steady tone, chemicals were firm, motors and aircrafts were fractionally mixed.

More Cadillacs Than Ever Roll Out Of Detroit

DETROIT — (BW) — More Cadillacs were built during the month of February than in any other month of the division's 69-year history, according to H.B. Brawner, Cadillac general manufacturing manager.

Weekly and daily production records were also broken during the month.

A total of 27,783 cars were produced in February surpassing the old record of 27,559 set in October 1969.

The new weekly record was established during the week of Feb. 22 when 7,507 cars were produced. The old record of 7,263 had been set the week of Jan. 18.

Season Ski And Sports Shop Ready To Open In San Anselmo

A new business which should be ready to open in San Anselmo by next week is The Season Ski and Sports, at 40 Greenfield Avenue.

Owners Steven Sibley of San Rafael and Michael De Luca of South San Francisco have leased the former Building Supply Center yard and store of A. Von Rotz, who moved his hardware business out to Point Reyes Station last year. The lease transaction was handled by John Hourihan of Grubb and Ellis Co.

During the summer season, Sibley and De Luca will carry major lines of camping and back packing gear, both for sale and rental, and will probably use the yard to display small fishing boats as well as for parking. During the winter, ski and snow equipment sales and rentals will be offered.

Sibley was formerly a salesman for Berkeley Farms. De Luca has been in the sporting goods business in San Francisco for three years.

MULTIPLE LISTING real estate sales in Marin for February zoomed up to $9,574,635, making this some kind of February record.

At least executive manager Daniel F. Deedy of the Marin Board of Realtors finds an all-time record in the history of the board for combined January and February sales totaling $15,650,059. This is far and away ahead of last year's first two months total of $9,977,789. February's figure alone was $5,158,431 in 1970.

Total completed sales for January and February this year reached $8,354,750. That, too, is comfortably ahead of last year's $7,774,119.

JOHN A. EDWARDS of Petaluma has been named assistant vice president at the San Francisco office of Alexander and Alexander, Inc., international insurance brokers. Before joining the company in 1966 he was state manager in Florida for Phoenix of London. Before that he was with the General Accident Group in Florida and with Johnson and Higgins in California.

ROGER E. DELL'ERA of Novato has been appointed an installment loan officer at Crocker-Citizens National Bank's Northgate-Terra Linda office. He joined the First National Bank in San Rafael, one of Crocker-Citizens' predecessors, in 1960 and has worked in various capacities in offices in San Rafael and Novato as well as Northgate.

Mrs. DeMartini

THE SAN RAFAEL OFFICE of Hansell Associates has given promotions to three of its employees: Mrs. Kathy DeMartini of Larkspur has been made placement agency manager;

Mrs. Limont

Mrs. Hodgdon

Mrs. Kay Limont of Mill Valley has been appointed development and training coordinator; and Mrs. Jane Hodgdon, also of Mill Valley, is now administrator of the secretarial school and industry training programs.

All are accredited business school teachers with considerable agency and employment background. Mrs. DeMartini joined the firm in San Francisco in 1953 before her marriage. Mrs. Limont and Mrs. Hodgdon have been with Hansell's since 1968.

TWO NORTH BAY MEN, Richard Miller of Marin Roofing Co., San Rafael and Horace Henris of Henris Supply Co., Petaluma, have been elected directors of the Associated Roofing Contractors of the Bay Area Counties, Inc.

Penney Reports Profit Decline

NEW YORK (BW) — Despite a strong fourth quarter performance, J. C. Penney Co. Inc. reported a narrow earnings decline for the 1970 fiscal year on the basis of preliminary and unaudited figures.

In its strongest quarterly showing of the year Penney's had net income of $48.5 million for the 13 weeks ended Jan. 30, an increase of 10.5 per cent over the $43.9 million recorded during the comparable 14-week quarter of 1969 ended Jan. 31, 1970.

Sales for the fourth quarter advanced 5.4 per cent to a record $1,397.5 million from $1,325.6 million. For the full 52 weeks of fiscal 1970 the department store chain's earnings declined .2 per cent to $114.1 million, or $2.14 per share.

Over-The-Pole Jet Sets New Record

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — A new commercial jet speed record over the Polar route from London to Los Angeles was racked up by a Pan American World Airways 747 Superjet which covered the 5,552 mile distance in 9 hours and 38 minutes.

The aircraft, piloted by Capt. William Kirkpatrick, flew at an average ground speed of 500 miles per hour to eclipse the old record of 9 hours and 50 minutes.

CALIFORNIA REALTY FUND

BACKGROUND
In 1970, the California Realty Fund acquired six apartment complexes totaling 1,379 units with a total value in excess of $20 million. A total of $3,320,000 of equity capital was utilized to purchase these properties.

POTENTIAL SAFETY
In the opinion of the General Partner of the Fund, the acquisitions made to date provide the Fund with geographical diversification, an opportunity for appreciation, and financial stability, in that the properties are all leased back to the sellers.

OBJECTIVES
In 1971, it is the intention of the General Partner to acquire additional apartment complexes, as well as other types of income-producing property, such as shopping centers, office buildings, industrial complexes, and mobile home parks. This will provide the Fund with a diversified real estate investment portfolio.

ADVANTAGES
We fully intend to structure the acquisition of these properties so that the following benefits will be derived by the Limited Partner Investors:

1971 Tax Deductibility ..... 50 to 60% of investment
Future Annual Tax Deductibility ..... 15 to 20% of investment
Annual Cash Flow (Tax Sheltered) ..... 5 to 7% of investment
